

Gorham-Dumay

The city wide hospitality of the Dumay home was never more happily extended or eagerly received than on last evening. The wide open doors invited one from the cold of the November evening to a scene of matchless beauty and warmth. The whole lower floor of this palatial home was admirably arranged for such a purpose—having been thrown into one large reception room by using decorations in a color scheme of yellow and white that harmonized most pleasingly a background of white garlanded and entwined with festoons of Southern smilax, banks of ferns, and a profusion of cut flowers and over all the soft lift of numerous waxen tapers.

The guests were received at the door by Mrs. George T. Leach and Mrs. E. W. Ayers. In the receiving party, besides the bride and groom were, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dumay, Mr. Edward L. Merrill, Mrs. Gorham of Wilson, mother of the groom, and Mrs. J. P. Jackson of Georgetown Ky.

Those serving were: Misses Mary Elizabeth Thomas, Ethel Fowle, Louise Moore, Mae Ayers, Olive Burbank, Elizabeth Warren and Mary Shaw.

In the dining room Mrs. A. D. McLean and Mrs. J. B. Moore presided. Here the color scheme yellow and white was carried out in the table decorations.

The library was the cynosure of all who called for there was located the many presents. They consisted of cut glass, silver, china, brass and checks attesting the love and esteem felt for the happy couple. One noted especially a silver service sent by the grooms family—an heirloom. It was admired by all who called.

The punch bowl was presided over by Misses Julia Moore and Carrie Simmons and the marriage register by Miss Annie Cox.

The bride and groom took the midnight Norfolk Southern train for a tour of northern cities amid a shower of rice and old shoes. They expect to visit all the principal north era cities and when they return they will reside with the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dumay.

They enter the married relations under the brightest of skies and with them go every desire for happiness and long life. The "star of memory" will long linger over their nuptials and when the evening of life is reached may they carry with them that same high esteem in which they are held by those they now count as friends. To them the Daily News wishes every joy as one in this life and in the life to come.

Among out-of-town guests were Mrs. Gorham, Wilson; Mr. and Mrs. Staunton, Wilson; Mrs. J. P. Jackson, Georgetown, Ky.; Miss Rena Brown, Greenville, Tenn.; Miss Francis Dockery, Rockingham; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ashburn of Tarboro; Mrs. S. S. Spruiks of Scranton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gorham of Morehead City; Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Taylor of Wilson; Mr. Archie Clark of Wilson, Mr. and George Dupuy of Greensboro; Mr. F. S. Worthy of Carthage and many others.

N-S. TO PUT ON PULLMAN BROILER PARLOR CAR

The Norfolk-Southern Railroad, with its already excellent passenger train service, announces beginning today its "Day Express" leaving Norfolk at 11:00 a. m., will carry the latest and most modern Pullman broiler parlor cars between Norfolk, Washington and Newbern in order to properly care for the increased travel.

With this improved service on this train the road now operates Pullman cars on all of its through trains between Norfolk and Eastern North Carolina. By the addition of dining cars on the Norfolk Southern quite a novel opportunity is afforded its patrons. While comfortably seated in its parlor cars passengers can enjoy their lunch in much the same manner as passengers on the ocean liners.

The Norfolk Southern has improved its passenger service wonderfully within the past few weeks a night service with Pullman sleeping cars was established between this city and Goldsboro.

The vast fertile section through which its lines traverse is brought into closer and more intimate touch with the business interests of this city, and where, before the bridge over the sound was constructed and transportation, both freight and passenger was inadequate and unsatisfactory, fast and comfortably equipped express trains now operate bringing that section south of the sound and as far down as New Bern and Beaufort into closer commercial and social relations.

CARD OF APPRECIATION

The agricultural Exhibition is past but not over. Mr. Editor Daily News, Washington, N. C. Please allow me space in your paper to express my gratitude to the citizens of Washington including the Chamber of Commerce as far as I am able to do for their great and good effort they made in getting up the agricultural exhibition and the good they have done to stimulate the farmers, also the Stevens Arms and Tool Company and the nice cups presented by Mr. C. H. Fuller of Rhode Island and congratulate Mr. C. Bragaw with all the committee for their untiring effort to show no partial favor to no one and the good Judges and the editor of the News. I do expressly thank Mr. J. F. Tayloe for the nice barrel of flour he gave me for my premium on yield of corn on high land. It seemed to be a pleasure to him to give the prize.

I also especially thank Mr. W. Gray Willis for the 5-pound can of coffee he gave me the best 10 ears of corn on high land.

I also especially thank Russ Bros Co. for a nice pair of No. 54 Sampson shoes on the weight of 25 ears of shelled corn grown on high land. All the above premiums are as nice as they can be had at any price. They all seemed glad to give the premiums.

I also thank the Chamber of Commerce together with the Stevens Arms and Tool Co., for the fine gun they awarded me for a premium on cowpea hay. It is a nice gun and I feel that all the farmers ought to feel much aroused and send a good cheer up for the citizens of Washington, the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. C. H. Fuller and the Stevens Arms and Tool Co., and show their appreciation to the boys by trying to make the grandest display of agriculture in the town of Washington next November, that has ever been seen. As for my part I have not been in your midst long but I have learned to love the people of Washington, in fact, I must say the people of Washington will make you love them. As I have said I have not been in your midst long and, as by so small an effort as my part, the citizens of Washington, together with the Stevens Arms and Tool Company and Chamber of Commerce has awarded me as premiums on my little exhibit on Nov. 17th, while I cannot express my gratitude to them, I will, if God be my helper, show them my gratitude by making a strong effort to make the next exhibition better if I live. I will demonstrate two acres of cotton No. 1 and No. 2, and one acre of corn, on high land near Washington and show the people of the world that the high land around Washington, N. C., will compete with almost any land in many parts of Country. With many thanks to you all and praying God's blessings upon you all I close.

Yours truly,
LOUIS T. MCGOWAN.

ADVERTISE IN THE NEWS.

There Was No Applause.

Just before the operation began the operating surgeon said to the students, "Now, gentlemen, no applause, if you please."

When he was convalescing the patient declared that that whirling remained his most vivid impression of the ordeal. "I wondered then how any human being could have the heart to applaud an act that had brought another face to face with death, but later I understood. On account of heart trouble they did not dare administer an anesthetic, so I was conscious of everything, and in spite of the pain I realized that the surgeon was doing a mighty skillful piece of work. No wonder the students wanted to applaud. They were justified in it."

"Some years ago they would have clapped the house down after an exhibition of that kind," an old hospital attendant told me, "but nowadays doctors discourage any such demonstration."—New York Sun.

Forgery in Excelsis.

The most remarkable literary forgery on record was perpetrated in 1870 on Michael Charles, a French scientist of European reputation. Charles, who was in his dotage, purchased within a few years from one Vrain-Lucas no fewer than 27,000 autographs. A. M. Bradley tells the story in his "Chats on Autographs." Beginning with a supposed correspondence between the youthful Newton and Pascal, Vrain-Lucas proceeded to fabricate letters of Rabelais, Montaigne and La Bruyere. Before he had finished M. Charles became the possessor of letters in French, and written on paper made in France, of Julius Caesar, Cleopatra, Mary Magdalene and even of Lazarus after his resurrection. Vrain-Lucas was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, and among other forged manuscripts from his pen there were produced in court letters from Alexander the Great, Herod, Pompey, Judas Iscariot, Sappho, Pontius Pilate and Joan of Arc!

For the Sake of the Cause. The other day a tramp called upon a pronounced advocate of woman's rights. His tale was a very plausible one, but did not seem to meet with much sympathy.

"Why don't you go to work?" asked the suffragette.

"Please, mum," explained the weary one, "I made a solemn vow ten years ago that I would never do another stroke of work till women was given a vote."

He was taken in—so was she.—Ex. change.
