GOOD FOR EARLY OAT CROP.

Sixty Day or Khorson Oats Beat Others by About Ten Days.
 The two varieties of oats, Sixty Day and Khorson, look so much alike that the same description may be applied to both. The plant is a vigorous but not rank grower, usually less inclined to lodge than varieties with coarser straw. The head, or panicle, is loose and spreading, bearing a large number of grains. The grain is small to medium in size, long and rather slender, but under favorable conditions plump and well filled. Heads of Sixty Day oats are shown in the illustration taken, with the reading matter, from a bulletin of the United States department of agriculture. The color of the Sixty Day and the Khorson oats varies with the locality. In the corn belt the grain is a deep golden yellow, while farther north and in drier sections it is much paler, becoming almost white in the extreme west and northwest. The hull is very thin and the weight per bushel usually high. The crop ordinarily reaches maturity in ninety to a hundred days, or about ten days earlier than most of the varieties commonly grown.

 The principal objections urged by farmers against this class of oats are the yellow color and the small size of the berry. In some markets there is a discrimination in favor of white oats of 1 or 2 cents a bushel, but by far the larger portion of our oat crop is fed on the farms where produced, and yellow oats are just as good for feeding as those of any other color. On the other hand, on account of its thin hull this particular type of oats is higher in feeding value than are most other varieties.—United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin.

It is not wise to trust the seasons with only one or two crops. Good business judgment requires that several crops be planted, all of which are adapted to your soil and for which there is a demand. This is diversified farming.

Making Muleh of Litter.
 Don't burn up any kind of coarse litter that accumulates around the feed yards, but save to mulch different plants in the garden. If some manure is mixed with the litter, so much the better. Such mulch will make melons, cucumbers and many other plants bear more heavily and will save cultivation after they are well started.

Live Stock Notes.
 The durability of the mule is a strong point in his favor. He lives and works to a good old age. His "sense" of self protection is strong, and he avoids many injuries.
 The colt should be taught to respect the whip and it will never be worn out on him.
 Out straw makes a good roughage for the mule when it is well saved, but feed a little hay along with it.
 Sheep should be turned out on every nice day. Lambs should not be allowed to get chilled. Their frail bodies cannot withstand severely cold weather.
 No living creature can be very comfortable with the body all stained and smeared with dirt. The skin must be kept clean to be able to do its destined work.
 Recent experiments at the Iowa station show that with corn at ordinary prices cheaper gains in lambs may be made with dry feed than with roots or silage.
 Speltz makes very good hog feed when ground, and some folks soak it for feeding. It has nearly the same feeding value as wheat.
 Art may make a suit of clothes, but nature must produce a man.

 The diving bell was not mentioned before the sixteenth century. Poultry Pointers.

Boys and girls attending school have splendid opportunities for poultry raising. Except the close attention that must be given to incubators and young chicks, school hours do not stand in the way of poultry raising. Ambitious boys and girls can solve the problems of poultrymen.

The orchard is a splendid place for poultry to range in. Poultry is a very good insect destroyer.
 Save all the grain, such as Kafir, milo, sorghum, brown corn seed, winter seed, etc., for poultry. It is often difficult to get a variety of food for fowls during winter.
 Nearly all diseases of poultry can be traced to filth. Clean up the drop boards frequently.
 Don't forget the charcoal, grit, etc. Keep plenty always in reach of the poultry.
 A coat of lime inside the poultry house is an improvement in many ways. It makes the room lighter; it preserves the woodwork; it fills up the crevices and prevents them from becoming breeding places of insects.

Leaves Prison To Wed Widow

New York, Nov. 25.—Free from Sing Sing prison where he spent a year for misappropriating $48,000 of the funds of the Eagle Savings and Loan Association of Brooklyn, Frederick H. Schroeder, a former Quarantine Commissioner, stepped from an Ossage train at the Grand Central station yesterday afternoon, only to be charged, by rumor, with another theft.

The papers in the case have not yet been drawn up, but it is said, he has stolen the heart of a Brooklyn widow who has been his foremost friend all his trouble.

Schroeder's wife died four years ago. For some months before the scandal bobbed up that sent him to prison, gossip linked his name with that of a Mrs. Davidson, widow of a wealthy laundryman, who has known him for several years. A year or so ago, when his name was used in connection with the candidacy for congressman, this Mrs. Davidson remarked to him:

"I shall marry you when you are elected to congress."

It was two weeks later that he and Col. E. E. Britton were arrested for misappropriating the savings institutions' funds, and, being sentenced to serve an indeterminate term of not less than one year nor more than four years and six months.

Among the friends who steadfastly refused to believe that Schroeder had erred intentionally, none was more prominent nor faithful than the widow. She believed, against the decision of a jury, that he had invested the money in a western gold mine to protect the interests of his friends and stockholders of the company.

Schroeder disappeared from the view of all but friends yesterday as soon as he reached this city. Inquiry at the home of Mrs. Margaret Davidson of No. 470 Quincy street, Brooklyn, failed to bring out where he had gone.

Mrs. Davidson declared she had long been a friend of the liberated man.

"I have known him from girlhood" she said, "and, as regards his being sent to prison, I think it was schemed to send him away. Think of all that he did to protect the interests of his friends."

It was suggested to the widow that she might possibly be the Mrs. Davidson whose interest in affairs matrimonial were directly concerned with those of Schroeder. She denied it strongly.

"He is only a good friend of mine" she said, "and I have stuck to him because I am his friend and never have believed him guilty."

"Well," ventured the reporter, "has there been any date set for the wedding?"

"I told you plainly enough that I regarded him only as a friend," she said firmly. "Certainly we have fixed no date," and she stamped her foot.

Mrs. Davidson stated that she had not seen Schroeder since he was released, adding that she hoped to, because of regard for him as a friend.

Then she closed the door with: "But he is a good man, don't you think so?"

Mrs. Davidson is president of a concern which manufacturers shirt-waists and she owns considerable realty in the neighborhood of Pulaski street, Brooklyn.

Schroeder could not be found at his former home, No. 169 Pulaski street, where he lived with Franklin B. Van Wart. Mr. Van Wart said Schroeder was not there but that he might possibly be found at Mr. Margaret Davidson's home.

Decided Improvements

The alterations now being made to the residence of Mrs. Mary P. Baughman on Second street, when finished, will make that home one of the most attractive in Washington.
