Raw Musk.
Musk in the raw looks a good deal like axle grease and smells worse.
The popular notion that the musk is a mistake. There is obtained a somewhat similar perfume from the muskat, but most of the supply comes from the musk deer, a creature that is carefully reared in India for the sake of the secretion. The secretion is shipped in the crude state and is used not only in the manufacture of the liquid perfume sold as musk, but also in very small quantities to give strength and staying power to many perfumes made from the essential oils of flowers. Curiously enough, the blossoms of two native plants have a noticeably musky odor.
One is the small yellow blossom of a creeping vine known as the musk plant. Its odor is marked and is comparatively strong. The other is the blood-root. The pure white blossom of that early spring plant has a distinct though delicate musky odor. A bean known as the musk bean is a cheap substitute for animal musk.

Fine Language.
In the school year of 1907-7, in the town of Topsheld, Mass., there was at least one committeeman whose command of language was unusual. This is shown by the annual report of the school committee for that season, part of which is copied here:
"The primary center school was instructed by Miss _____. Under the guidance of this master hand in genuine philosophic simplicity the school presented the same phase of unvarying successful advancement as in former years. From the dissimulated mouthings of half fledged juvenile articulation, through the winding passages of syntacticism to the Mount Hope of spell-reading, the same grateful interpen-etration of gymnastic, vocal, recessive and studious enaction rendering every exercise equally a pastime and romancing the reality of the first efforts in dry study."—Youth's Companion.

An Ancient Die.
In the museum at Athens is shown what is probably the only genuine antique die used for coinage that is now extant. It was found in Egypt in 1904 and consists of bronze, engraved with the owl that was stamped on Athenian tetradrachma pieces, which contained about as much silver as three quarters dollars. The die is of scientific interest on account of the evidence it gives of the skill of the ancients three or four hundred years before Christ in metallurgy. It contains about 2 1/2 per cent of tin and nearly 70 per cent of copper. It is extremely hard, but at the same time possesses a certain malleability, due to the great purity of the copper and tin, which were carefully freed from all traces of lead and zinc to preserve the hardness and from arsenic and antimony to avoid brittleness.—Harper's Weekly.

Making a Locomotive.
A young lady once visited the Bal-win Locomotive works and then told how a locomotive is made.
"You pour," she said, "a lot of sand into a lot of boxes, and you throw a stone into the molten stream into a hole in the sand, and every body yells and sweats. Then you pour it out and let it cool and pound it, and then you put it in a thing that looks like a boiler. Then you screw it together and paint it and put steam in it, and it goes splendidly, and they take it to a drafting room and make a blue print of it. But one thing I forgot to tell you to make a boiler. One can get inside and one outside, and they pound frantically, and then they tie it to the other things, and you ought to see it go!"

Napoleon's Peephole.
A curious Napoleonic relic was preserved in St. Helena is a pair of spectacles, each with a peephole. St. Helena was strongly garrisoned by Napoleon's troops for divers reasons, and the British soldiers exercised on Deadwood plain, close to Longwood.

Deaths at Florence.
When the Italian Bay Tending company began its trading among the Indians it was found that by selling the Indian liquor they could more easily be induced to trade their peltries. The first whiskey or intoxicant of inferior quality was distilled in England and brought to America in large barrels, but in transporting it overland it was found more convenient to divide it into small kegs. The traders soon became aware of the fact that by distilling the whisky with water more furs could be obtained. This was practiced for some time, but the Indians learned that good whiskey poured on a fire would come to a flame up, whereas had the whiskey been diluted the fire would be quenched. It was by this simple experiment that the term "fire water" became a common word among the Indians. A chief who had experienced the bad effects of whiskey among his people said it was most certainly distilled from the hearts of white men and the tongues of women from the effects it produced.—Red Man.

Symbolism Didn't Appeal.
"Charlie," sorrowfully sighed the young lady in the parlor of the concrete house on Washington avenue, "it is nearly 12 o'clock."
"Yes, Belinda," was the breathing response of her poetical companion, who was sitting on the sofa beside her, "the minute hand is drawing closer and closer to the hour hand, and when the time of midnight is reached the two hands will be even as one. Oh, darling Belinda," he continued as he literally stimulated the action of the minute hand, "may not the coming together of those two hands be symbolical of us?"
She broke away and stood firmly on her feet. "No, Charles-Henry Smith," she retorted angrily, "those two hands will remain as one but a single second, and then the minute hand will divorce itself and go on its way alone. No, Mr. Smith, a minute hand that doesn't pick isn't the kind of symbolism I want!"—Boston Post.

Vernet in a Storm at Sea.
Verpax, the celebrated painter of sea pieces, eager in the study of nature, made several long voyages in his younger days in order to observe the various scenes which the changeable elements exhibit. In one of these excursions undertaken merely for the love of the art a most violent gale of wind arose, when Vernet, without attending to the perils with which he was surrounded, desired one of the sailors to lash him fast to some of the rigging. Soon after this request was granted the storm increased, attended with thunder and lightning and with every circumstance that could add to the horror of the scene, and consternation and terror sat on every counteenance, but in the young painter every emotion was just in that of admiration, which he wholly engrossed his attention that he every now and then exclaimed in the most enthusiastic terms, "Good heavens, what a noble scene!"

Knives Duels in Mexico.
A duel between cattle herders on the Mexican plains is about as savage and deadly a manner of fighting as one could possibly imagine. Each opponent extends his left arm, and a third party who has been selected to act as referee binds their wrists together with a thong of rawhide. He then places a knife in the right hand of each, and the fight is on. Needless to say, it does not last long. Every stab may be calculated upon to do damage, and it often happens that both duelists receive fatal wounds. Yet, in spite of the severe rules of the game, there are men who become experts and terrorize a whole neighborhood. They pride themselves on being able to strike so quickly and so surely that they can kill an opponent with the first blow and get away unscathed.—Exchange.

The Suicide of Hannibal.
Defeated at Zama, Hannibal fled to the east to avoid falling into the hands of the Romans and found temporary security in the dominions of Mithridates. He flattered this monarch to engage in a Roman war, and, his advice as to its conduct being rejected, the war proved unsuccessful, and Mithridates was required as one of the conditions of peace to deliver up Hannibal to his enemies, the Romans. The unfortunate Carthaginian heard of his approaching fate, swallowed the poison which for years he had carried about his person and expired just as the envoys arrived to take him in charge.

Ancient Repartee.
A volume of discordant particulars is laughable as what is wanting to him except fortune and virtue? Similar to this is friendly admonition by way of giving advice, as when Crassus peruaded a bad pleader, who had made himself hoarse with speaking, to drink a cold mixture of honey and wine as soon as he got home. "I shall run my voice," said he, "if I do so."
"It will be better," said Crassus, "than to ruin your clients."—From Cicero's "Oratory."

An Exciting Contest.
Henson-I bet my wife that I could draw a needle before she could harpen a lead pencil. Benson-Which won? Henson-I won in exactly thirteen minutes, but I believe I'd have lost if she had not run out of pencils at the end of five minutes.—Chicago News.

Bill Stronger.
GROVER-Good morning, Mr. Popple.
How are those eggs I sent you? Popple-Better, thank you. They are gaining strength every minute.

Life is a plant that grows out of death.—Rosenet.

Death in Roaring Fire may not result from the work of fire, but often severe burns are caused that make a quick need for Buckley's Arnica Salve, the quickest and sure cure for burns, wounds, bruise, scalds, etc. It soothes inflammation, kills the pain, it soothes and heals. It is a life saver in all cases of burns, scalds, etc. It is a life saver in all cases of burns, scalds, etc.

Diabetes.
In people of stout and over results are quite common. Probably nine-tenths recovering. While at first only over a large majority of all cases yield to the treatment, before fifty and approaching forty the percentage is not high—probably not much over half yielding.
Under thirty the percentage is low and in children recoveries have been very few and most of these were obtained with the aid of skilled physicians forcing restriction and abstinent treatment to gradual formation of asthenia.
The new emollient treatment I know as Blaudine Blood and Kidney Tablets. They can be had in Washington at Dr. Ira M. Hardy's.

We desire every patient to write us who is not noting the usual improvement by the third week. Always state age, literature mailed free, and stamp to pay postage. Dr. Ira M.
Hardy, Special Agent.

WHAT CURES ECZEMA?
We have so many inquiries lately regarding Eczema and other skin diseases, that we are glad to make our answer public. After careful investigation we have found that a simple wash of Oil of Wintergreen, as compounded in D. D. D., can be relied upon. We would not make this statement to our patrons, friends and neighbors unless we were sure of it—and although there are so-called Eczema remedies sold, we ourselves unhesitatingly recommend D. D. D. Prescription.

Because—We know that it gives instant relief to that torturing itch.
Because—D. D. D. starts the cure at the foundation of the trouble.
Because—it cleans, soothes and heals the skin.
Because—it enables Nature to repair the ravages of disease.
Because—the records of ten years of complete cures of thousands of cases show that D. D. D. is today recognized as the absolutely reliable Eczema Cure.
