FEMALE DIVERS OF JAPAN
Women Who Begin at 13 to Search for Pearls in the Coast Waters.

The pearl divers of Japan are women. Along the coast of the Bay of Ago and the Bay of Kōkahe the thirteen and fourteen-year-old girls, after they have finished their primary school work, go to sea and learn to dive.

They are in the water and learn to swim almost from babyhood and spend most of their time in the water except in the coldest season, from the end of December to the beginning of February. Even during the most inclement of seasons they sometimes dive for pearls.

They wear a special dress, white under-wear and the hair twisted up into a hard knot. The eyes are protected by glasses to prevent the entrance of water. Tubs are suspended from the waist. A boat in command of a man is assigned to every five or ten women divers to carry them to and from the fishing grounds.

When the divers arrive on the grounds they leap into the water at once and begin to gather oysters at the bottom. The oysters are dropped into tubs suspended from their waists. When the vessels are filled the divers are raised to the surface and jump into the boats. They dive to a depth of from five to thirty fathoms without any special apparatus and retain their breath from one to three minutes. Their ages vary from thirteen to forty years and between twenty-five and thirty-five they are at their prime.—Oriental Review.

REMEDY FOR LIVER TROUBLE

Generally Caused by Indigestion Brought on by Irregular and Improper Feeding of Fowls.

Generally speaking, liver troubles follow acute indigestion. This indigestion may be brought about by irregular feeding or being fed on one kind of grain too long, dirt and sour feed, with a poor supply of grain. To withhold the feed a long time and then allow it in over amount is one of the most fruitful sources of digestive disorders.

Drinking water which has been contaminated with filth, or which has stood in a warm place or in the sunshine until it has become putrid; exposure to draughts, cold rains, or damp roosting quarters, particularly during the molting season, are all conducive to indigestion.

If any one of these conditions surrounds your fowls, change them, putting them in light, dry houses, and giving them wholesome, nutritious food. In very bad cases give daily five grains of rhubarb and every day one grain of calomel. Give them plenty of grit and charcoal. Charcoal is one of the best purifiers for the system of either fowl, animal or man.

The liver is one of the most important organs of the body, furnishing bile, one of the principal digestive fluids. It also assists in some of the most necessary chemical changes which occur in the blood. It is therefore an easy matter for it to become deranged from the causes that produce indigestion.

Inflammation of the liver is quickly followed by death unless immediate relief can be given. The symptoms are a yellow appearance of the skin and yellow or slightly bloody evacuations.

One of the chief indications of this disorder is lameness, especially of the right leg, and when this shows itself you may be pretty sure that inflammation of the liver is going on. The treatment of birds so affected is not profitable unless they are very valuable for breeding or exhibition purposes. The remedy is one-half to one grain of calomel to begin with, followed by 20 grains of Epsom salts and 2 grains of bicarbonate of soda after 12 hours. Naphthol or benzo-naphthol may be given twice a week to disinfect the intestinal canal.

When the sick bird is considerably improved, give green food, tonics of raw beef, and allow the bird free exercise in the open air. The disease is not contagious, but the cause that produced it in one bird may affect the whole flock.

FOUNTAIN IS SELF-FEEDING

two inches of the top. It was then filled with water and a milk pan inverted over it and turned upside down. Water will flow in pan till it reaches the hole in the can, says a writer in the Farm and Home. Using a deep pan prevents getting it full of dirt.

Nationality of Eggs.
Is it possible to tell the nationality of an egg by inspection? The question is raised in acute form by the evidence given by the prosecution of a Lancashire, England, firm for selling Russian eggs as Irish, which resulted in acquittal. The experts varied, as even experts will. One confidently pronounced the eggs in question Russian nearly five weeks old; another said they were second class Russians; a third specified the south of Russia.

On the other hand, experts for the defense were equally positive that no body could tell the birthplace of an egg from external examination. One witness said that when eggs were bad their nationality was indeterminate. On the whole, one is bound to come to the conclusion that the average purchaser of eggs must take their nationality upon trust.

Science of Feeding.
The feeding of fowls has become as much a science as the feeding of dairy or beef cattle. Poultrymen have their balanced rations for their fowls. They feed especially for egg production, growth and fattening purposes. The farmer too often feeds for convenience and relies on corn to produce all the above requirements. But the best results on many farms, especially in the spots of life in the poultry yard as well as with humans.

Bulls in Parliament.
The Irish bull has crossed the St. George's channel and is at large in Britain. Major Archer-Shea, who is a Unionist and represents an English constituency, is somewhat Irish. In discussing the insurance bill he set the house of commons in a roar by declaring: "Not even the Stygian eloquence of the chancellor of the exchequer will enable him to whitewash a bill which is now a white elephant to him." Mr. Bjerril is credited with a fine Hibernian bullock, thoroughly English as he is. He was being questioned about some newspaper interview in which he claimed to have been "misrepresented" and solemnly assured the house that "the newspaper reports were highly garbled accounts of what never took place." There is, after all, a fine touch in this that our statesmen never attain, and is much better than the ugly, vulgar little word of three letters.

Self-Evident.
"There is one bit of decoration I know I've had in that without business purpose."
"What was it?"
"A fine frieze."

Profits From a Creamery.
The total profits from a creamery will depend largely upon the amount of cream that can be bought. If the factory can be run at its capacity, it will be much more profitable than if only half the amount of cream desired is secured.

Does Silage Affect the Flavor?
Have you noticed anything different in the flavor of the milk since you began feeding silage? If there is any change at all the flavor will be a little more pleasant, says O. E. Reed, head of the dairy department at the Kansas State Agricultural college. But if the silage is allowed to ferment too long and then fed, the milk will have a taint much like that noticed when weeds are eaten in the summer.

Ground Grain is Best.
If a farmer who is really trying to learn how to conduct his business most economically will make a common-sense test during a season of say, six months, feeding a portion of his cows ground grain, and the same number whole grain, noting the difference in milk flow, he will then some pretty near knowing the truth.

HOODWINKED BULL IS SAFE

Leather Device Can Be Put Over Eyes of Ugly Animal, Giving Good Ventilation and Light.

The following description of a hood for a bull that has become broaky is written by a contributor to Hoard's Dairyman:

I got a flank of leather for about $1.25, took a good five-ring halter that fit (you can vary the size), cut the front, 13 inches at top by 8 inches at bottom and 12 inches long; two side pieces 8 inches wide at top by 6

Bull Hoodwinked.
Inches bottom, 12 inches long; cut front of side pieces square, back on a miter. Put inside of leather together, black side down of front and up of side, rivet about three-fourths, of an inch from edge with copper belt rivets and burrs long enough to rivet well, and 1 1/4 inches apart center to center (as he will try it severely).

The hood will stand open like a box at corners over his eyes, giving good ventilation and some light. Rivet back of side pieces to side strap of halter between the rings, make a loop around back of upper ring and rivet; rivet a strap to lower corner of side piece; rivet bottom of front to nose piece of halter. The drawing shows how it is used. Those who have tried it recommend it.

KICKING COW IS ELIMINATED
Rods Arranged in Manner Shown in Illustration That Will Do Away With Vicious Animal.

Draw the rods out, lead the cow in from behind, place the rods in position again, tie the cow to manger post and go to milking. The cow can't kick, says a writer in the Farm and Fireside. I am using one of these devices and find it a pleasure to milk now, when I was always in fear before.

Stops Kicking Cow.

The Kerry Cow.
The Kerry cow is a light framed cow of varying size, but generally smaller than the Ayrshire. She is black in hair. The Dexter, although derived from the same stock, is quite different, being thick and blocky, and in color may be either black or red. Both of these cattle are particularly good dairy cows, doing well in moderate feeding and giving surprisingly large quantities of milk, very rich. Many Keries give quite as rich milk as is produced by the Jersey. The Kerry does not fatten kindly until she has reached full age, but the Dexter may be fattened younger.

All the Cheerfulness of a Log Fire

When the thermometer gets down around the zero mark, with the wind howling and shrieking, sending shivers and creeps up and down your spinal column it's a real pleasure to pull your chair up to an open fireplace and sit there, watching the red hot coals or the blazing logs, forgetting all about the biting cold outside. The very sight of this brings comfort to the body. The open fireplace effect is approached very closely in the Vulcan Odorless Gas Heater.

The iron cone is heated to a red heat. The glowing metal very closely resembles the open grate. The incandescent cone pleases the eye, and its glowing warmth brings comfort to the body. POSITIVELY ODORLESS
