WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 7, 1914

We have demonstrated before that we are the actual leaders in the mercantile arena of Washington, and we have now done so again. Where we lead others follow. James E. Clark Company, Washington, N. C.

After you have attempted to get some of the things advertised by other so-called "sales" and failed, come to the most dependable store in town, where each and every item will be just as advertised, and where the only guarantee of its kind will be made—"Satisfaction, goods exchanged, or your money refunded any time during the sale." James E. Clark Company, Washington, N. C.

Since the recent four murders that have occurred in Beaufort county it seems as if rumor is endeavoring to add another to the list. Yesterday and Sunday reports were circulated around town of cutting scrapes at Chocowinity and Keyville, a negro settlement about one mile from Washington near the County House. Both reports were without foundation.

The weather man seems to be trying himself since the birth of the New Year. Wonder what he is up to anyway.

There is hardly a house in Washington that is vacant, going to show what people think of the town as a place to reside. This is not only the case now but this condition of things has been known for months.

There's a world of satisfaction in buying Uneeda Biscuit because you know you will get what you want—soda crackers that are oven-fresh, crisp, clean, appetizing and nourishing.

Uneeda Biscuit are always uniform in quality—they are always alike in crispness, in flavor—they are soda crackers you can depend upon. And all because Uneeda Biscuit are uncommon soda crackers packed in an uncommon way. Five cents everywhere in the moisture-proof package.

You tried for the Woods. They had met on an ocean steamer—the daughter of a retired steam engineer and the son of a seaman—merchant in that vast territory known as "out west." Correspondence followed after both had reached their respective homes, and early in the summer the young man received an invitation to "visit papa's camp in the North Woods. The young man accepted, was met at the nearest railroad station by "Brother Tom" and was carried, together with two huge trunks, to the camp, 16 miles away. The trunks contained a carefully selected wardrobe, which "Tom" described as "just as appropriate for the woods as a gas stove. He was the best dressed man in camp and will probably never know that his style pleased him for further invitations."

"Tiddy, was 1913 an' today is 1914"
 "Gee! How's that! We must've slept a whole year last night!"

A New Year's Wish
 My New Year wish is that all through the year the yesterdays will have continued as much happiness as the days for the tomorrow.

Buttons From the Tropic Palm
 Does the average well-dressed man know that the buttons he wears are made of the fruit of the South American targa palm, which produces ivory nuts? The latest design of the Pan American Union is of the annual "button-crop" of Guyana and the South American countries. The yearly export of buttons amounts to $5,000,000. The nuts are all the same size and will match every line and pattern of men's and women's dress. By means of steel dies and coloring material the texture and richest and softest effects of even satin and silk may be imitated in this durable but plastic substance.

Courteous to the Last
 When on the scaffold Robert Bamford, who was hanged at Nottingham, England, several years ago, politely asked the hangman if he could have more rope. On his request being granted, he endeavored to shake hands with the hangman, but being unable to do so with his plumed arms he gave him a courtly bow and smile of thanks.

POLLEN HAD TRAVELED FAR
 Over Nearly Four Hundred Miles It Made Its Way to Fertilize Similar Tree.

In Paris dwells a man interested in rare and exotic plants, says the Christian Herald. A friend who had been in the Amazon brought him home a rare tree. In the winter he keeps it at the greenhouse, but when summer comes he carries it into his garden. So beautiful is the bloom that he gave garden parties that men might behold the wondrous flower. One summer's day he noticed a strange thing that set his pulses throbbing—a singular fruit had begun to set. Sending for an expert, they took counsel together. They knew that this was the only tree of the kind in Paris, and they could not understand from whence had come the pollen that had fertilized the plant. At length they published the story in the papers, and that story brought the explanation. A merchant wrote that years before he had brought to Marcellus a young plant from the Amazon. The pollen of that tree, nearly four hundred miles away, had been carried on the wings of the wind over hill and vale and found out the blossom that awaited its coming.

Judging by the increased number of bicycle riders on the sidewalks old Santa Claus must have done a great thing for Young America this Christmas.

Said a citizen Sunday. The establishment by the Methodist church of a college in Washington means more to the community than people imagine. I have lived in a town where there is a college and I know what I'm talking about. Right you are brother.

son of a prominent tailor. The two lads were very gummy, and this afternoon they decided to launch upon a little advertising expedition. A pain brush was the means devised to accomplish the advertising and the lecturing was quickly but plainly traced over any smooth surface of wood or stone encountered en route.

After office hours in the evening the doctor was having his customary chat with his son and during the time he asked: "And what have you been doing today, William?"

"Advertising," he announced.

"Advertising whom?" questioned his father.

"You and Tom Stanwood's father (the tailor)."

"Oh, we fixed a sign up that road. Buy your pants from Stanwood and your babies from Dr. White," announced the lad, proudly.—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

IMPORTS ITS PAVING STONES
 Peculiar Condition of Affairs Existing in Brazil Is Due to Savage Indians.

Street paving in the towns of the Brazilian seaboard and of the Amazon river region is not the simple matter it becomes in this country. Because of the lack of accessible quarries from which paving material might be obtained, it is necessary to import cobblestones from Portugal for this purpose. Stone quarries in the lower Amazon basin are non-existent, and the headwaters of this great river, where it would doubtless be possible to locate quarries—are not only practically unexplored, but are also guarded by many tribes of hostile Indians. No one has yet been found who will brave these dangers for the sake of the despised cobblestone. Asphalt or crude oil is unsuitable for paving the thoroughfare of tropical cities because of the intense heat. The city of Para, situated near the mouth of the Amazon, is the largest user of Portuguese paving stones. This metropolis lies almost on the equator, and is the chief "rubber port" of Brazil.

Local Anesthesia.
 A discovery in surgical science, claimed to be the greatest since Lister founded antiseptic surgery, has been made by Professor Leduc, a prominent French scientist, and is now being exhibited in London. The purpose of the discovery is to render a patient locally insensible to the pain of an operation by applying an electric current to the part of the body to be operated upon. Its action is said to be such that even when only a small amount of current is applied needles may be stuck deep into a man's flesh without his feeling any sensation of pain whatever. This local anesthesia consists of a series of electrical impulses to the number of 100 to the second, each shock lasting one-thousandth part of a second. These are applied rapidly and alternate with longer intervals. Under the particular part to be operated on quite insensible to pain without producing any ill effects. The current is applied by two metal pads covered with wash leather and pressed against the flesh. The apparatus works on a voltage of 50 and for ordinary operations a strength of current of two mill-empere is considered sufficient.

Course in Highbrow Literature.
 After trying to read the problem, tales his highbrow wife delights in, an Atchison man now begins at the back of a volume and reads straight through to the front. After finding out what happened in the end he says he realizes what the author is driving at in early chapters, and he can now read a Bernard Shaw, Ibsen or Maeterlinck story almost as understandingly as a baseball score.—Atchison (Kansas) Globe.
