THE SOMME DRIVE ENDANGERS
GERMANY'S ZEPPELIN BASE

By WILBUR S. FORREST.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, Nov. 3.—The great Anglo-French offensive on the Somme in Northern France today has direct bearing on future Zeppelin raids on England. This hint was given to the United Press today by a British official in a position to know.

If the Anglo-French forces on the Somme drive a wider and deeper wedge into the German line, the entire line must eventually fall back to straighten itself. This would mean that the Allied aerial bases in Northern France would also move forward. The natural sequence is that German military and aviation bases both in Belgium and across the Rhine, become from a strategical and military point of view, more legitimate objectives for Allied air squadrons. Hitherto, Allied air forces have been able to make long distance raids, but not heavy ones.

The great Zeppelin hangars in Belgium, including those now under construction and those in Germany from which the present raiding Zeppelins operate, will become practically useless to Germany.

According to expert opinion here it is not illogical to believe that these hangars and their contents, under such conditions, would be a total loss unless the German move them to safer places. Safer places in this instance would mean far into the interior of Germany. Thus all present calculations concerning the Zeppelin radius of action, atmospheric conditions and other scientific problems of Zeppelin raids on England would have to be made over again. Even the radius of the great super-Zeppelins would be seriously cut down and the smaller type of airship probably would become wholly useless so far as strafing England is concerned.

A recent British communique, detailing a raid by eighty aeroplanes carrying tons of high explosives, gives a further hint of the force which the allies can put into use against Zeppelin lairs within a safe radius of a readjusted Western front.

GIVE GERMANY A REPUBLIC
WHEN SHE IS DRIVEN BACK TO THE RIVER RHINE

By GEORGE MARTIN.
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Nov. 3.—A poll on the French front not long ago told President Poincaré that when the Allies have pushed the Teutons back to the Rhine they will "give the German people a republic."

In the East today is a very husky, very earnest, very intense Frenchman with a close-cropped van Dyke beard who is preparing to travel all over the United States and explain that remark.

M. Jules Bois, the man, is a special envoy of the French government to the United States. His task is to explain the difference, as he sees it, between French and German culture. He said today that the poll's remark was the result of his mental schooling in French culture—"a feminine culture based on love, not a masculine culture based on conquest."

"The teaching of French culture is as important a part of the training of fighting men in the armories of France," said M. Bois, "as is the military drill. I do not know that this is true in your United States, but it might well be. The poll's remark epitomized the spirit of French culture. Along with his bayonet and gun he got the idea that he could not use either in attack, but only in honorable defence. French culture is a culture for the women, the children and the weak as much as it is for the strong man. Every Frenchman who falls upon the battlefields of Europe dies that the ideal of individuality in nations may endure."

Between now and January 1, M. Bois will deliver addresses at all the large universities in the east. After the first of the year a tour of the west, beginning at New Orleans, will be made by him.

NURSES GO ON STRIKE

Buenos Aires, Oct. 15.—(By Mail)—The city authorities today believe they have beaten the strike of nurses in the Buenos Aires municipal hospitals. The walkout resulted from the attempt to substitute women for men nurses. It was contended that the former were better than the latter who were gradually being replaced as women were graduated from the local school for nurses. In an effort to compel abandonment of this system, the men nurses struck, leaving 4,645 patients temporarily uncared for.

Sisters of Charity, medical students and other volunteers rallied to the aid of the women nurses already in the service and now the city officials say the change from men to women nurses has been made for good, though they were forced to affect it sooner than they had originally intended.

MANY FREAK BETS MADE IN NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 3.—Today in New York City could be seen the effects of many a lost bet on the election. One man came down Broadway in a wheelbarrow with his hat put on bottom-side up. On 42nd Street could be seen a man dashing down the street wearing a full dress suit and a ladies hat. At the corner of Broadway and Twenty-third street there was seen a man riding down town on a surface car. He was pulled off by a policeman before he had gone very far.

Men came down town about noon wearing one tan and one black shoe, with trousers rolled to the knees and coats on inside out. But the funniest sight of all was a man at the Grand Central station who, with long mustache and whiskers, was clearly shaven on one side and wore white suspenders over a blue coat and striped trousers of red, white and blue. At other points could be seen men riding horseback backwards and wearing most unsightly uniforms.
