Second Graders Perform

Unknown to their teacher, Mrs. L. J. Dawkins, four little second graders got permission from Mr. Dawkins to add to his commencement program Monday morning. Tootsie Jones, Little Robbins, Rosco Rogers and Betty Potts sang several songs which showed real talent and interest in songs which they had been taught at music class. Each little fellow showed unusual stage presence, and also sang songs asked for by the audience.

CLASS DAY

Mr. L. J. Dawkins began the morning exercise on last Tuesday by calling on each Senior for an impromptu speech, in which they gave advice to all expressions of appreciation to the faculty and school, and a farewell to the student body.

Each class president expressed appreciation for the co-operation and loyalty of their respective classes and a hope that they might progress to a better class next year.

Mr. H. N. Radcliffe presented eighteen diplomas to those finishing the grammar school and entering high school next year.

The senior class had the privilege of impersonating the faculty, which they did in perfect style. Each faculty member was ordered to the stage in order to be able to see themselves as the students knew them. Each peculiarity was extremely emphasized by the seniors and many jokes were played on the faculty.

Perfect attendance certificates were awarded to thirty-five children of Southport school. Misses Margaret Bastel and Ester Mae Potter have the splendid record of nine years of perfect attendance. Victor Bartel has had perfect attendance for eight years.
