France Leads Race To Rule Atlantic

Normandie's Maiden Voyage Marks New Chapter in Ocean Rivalry

IN 1840, Samuel Cunard, founder of the British shipping-line, began regular ocean-sailings with the building of the first group of sister-ships, Britannia, Acadia, Columbia and Caledonia. The latest ocean greyhound, the French Line's Normandie, has just docked at the new Hudson River pier after her maiden voyage.

The Queen Mary, the British bid for Atlantic supremacy, will come a year later. The Literary Digest reports that enormous first-class dining-salons of either of these superliners easily could hold the Britannia, which made a record ocean-crossing in 1840 from Liverpool to New York of fourteen days and eight hours.

Financed, in part, by government banks, work was begun on the French Normandie and the British Queen Mary to win for one or the other the tourist and luxury passengers to Europe.

Simply in line, an honest, sturdy sea-worthy ship, the 1,018-foot Queen Mary, now a mere hull, will dock in the Hudson River some time in 1936. But the sleek, pert, smart Normandie, with all the chic of the latest creation by a Paris dressmaker, has taken the lead. Her predecessor in the French Line docked in New York from Havre in 1864, a mere 340 feet long, and 3,400 tons.

Eleven Stories High Approximately 1,028 feet long, of 79,280 gross tons, eleven stories high, 125 feet from keel to top of chart-room, the Normandie is equipped to carry 2,000 passengers and a crew of 1,339.

Her beam of 119 feet and six inches will not permit her to pass through the Panama Canal.

Needed New Docks To dock such an immense floating mass, New York City, through a PWA grant of $1,193,000, has erected a three-story steel and concrete shed at Dock No. 88 in the Hudson at a total cost of $4,275,500.

Dredging operations to assure a depth of forty feet—the Normandie draws thirty-eight feet—and supplanting the present twenty-three piers by thirteen larger of steel and concrete will cost $19,200,000.

Cardwell Gives Season Summary On Strawberries

While There Was Little Difference In Acreage This Year, Yields Were Heavy And The Fruit Of Good Quality

CHADBURN HEADS KLONDYKE MARKET

Columbus Town Enjoys Distinction Of Being The Largest Klondyke Market In This State

By Guy A. Cardwell The 1935 Carolina strawberry season is at an end. As a general thing the growers have made more yand there is rejoicing in many homes. While there was little difference in acreage, (7,500) compared with last year, yields were heavy and the fruit of good quality.

Strawberry time is always a season of high pressure work and some confusion for those persons actively engaged in carrying on the work of the industry; and during recent seasons changed transportation conditions have added to the confusion both within and outside of the industry.

Formerly the railroad was depended upon to take care of the transportation needs of the shippers, and for many years the flood of berries was cared for with few mishaps moving by rail in an orderly manner over a privately owned and maintained road. But now during the season the berry towns are cluttered up with motor vehicles and by day and by night mammoth trucks, behemoths of the road, are to be seen plunging and swaying—hurting along the highways—our highways—at high speed, endangering lives and property, and cracking and crumbling roads that were not constructed to withstand the pounding to which they are being subjected.

Wallace and Chadburn are the chief local markets, but Rose Hill, Burgaw, Teachey, Tabor City, Loris, Mount Olive, Clinton, Garland and Stedman each have a place in the picture. For the first time since the beginning of the industry years ago carlot shipments of strawberries were made this season from New Hanover County from farms of Geor-

A musical stage show will be the feature attraction at New Columbus theatre in Whiteville next Wednesday and theatre goers in this section have a real treat in store for them.

This modern stage presentation includes music by Julian Stanley's Collegians, a red-hot eight-piece band, considered one of the best on the road. Charlie Carlisle, sensational drummer, Manny Davis, vocalist, and the modern trio appear with the orchestra.

Other features include the Raymond Brothers, clever young comedians, who do knock-about acts and play various musical instruments; Billy Riley, outstanding young dancer who also does comedy talk; Ted and Mildred, comedy dance team; Faye Thomas, beautiful blues singer and male impersonator; the Joye Sisters, two beautiful girls, who do modernistic specialties; and the Six Modernettes, a line of good looking specialty girls.

The show is presented under the direction of Marie Purl, who has had wide experience staging shows in leading theatres of the country. This is said to be one of her best productions.

George H. Hutaff, who has sixty acres of berries in cultivation near Wrightsboro.

Chadburn is proud, and justly so, of being the largest Klondyke berry market, while Wallace is the largest market featuring Missionary and Blakemore berries.

There is always a good demand for Klondykes and a study of the daily market sheets show that this variety consistently brings a premium over Missionary, and the new berry, the Blakemore, also sells consistently for higher prices than the Missionary. Both Blakemore and Missionary plants generally yield a larger number of quarts of berries per acre than do Klondykes.

As mentioned, prices were good, ranging on local markets during the height of the season from $1.50 to $4.80 for Klondykes, from $1.50 to $4.40 for Missionarys, and from $1.75 to $4.50 for Blakemores.

It is interesting to note that berries transported by rail, according to Government market reports on several days, sold in New York and Boston for substantially higher prices than did those berries received on over the road trucks.

A rough estimate indicates that more than eighteen and one-half million quarts of berries were exchanged for coin of the realm, a fair trade with no one the worse for the deal. A most successful season is now behind us and the good grower is going to work to shape his plants for next year's crop. There is little rest for the strawberry grower; his is a steady job.

VISITORS AT CAMP

Mrs. Fred Leitzsey and Misses Ruth Davis and Willomena Livingston, of Wilmington, spent last Thursday visiting at the local CCC camp. Lieutenant Leitzsey is the commanding officer at the camp.

GUEST IN HOMES

Little Miss Enid Jackson, talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Jackson, was guest in several homes in Southport last week and gave her unusual dancing exhibitions. On Thursday she was guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Davis. On the same day she was guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Burns. She was visitor in the J. H. Russ home on Friday. Her musical accompaniments were played by Miss Mabel Farley.

Miss Woodside Is Made County Superintendent By Board Of Education

Protesting the eligibility of chairman Rourke as a member of the board, members of a delegation offered a letter from Attorney General Seawell stating that the position of assistant postmaster is a public office and that membership on the county board of education is also a public office; and that, consequently, one person cannot hold both offices at the same time without violating the state constitution.

Mr. Phelps notified members of the board of a letter which he received from Attorney General Seawell stating that membership on a local school board also is a public office and that the position of county attorney is a public office. According to the above ruling this would disqualify any man holding both office. J. W. Ruark is county attorney and is chairman of the school board at Southport.

In view of the questions raised concerning business transacted during the day, all matters were held in abeyance until the next meeting of the board, which is scheduled for Friday night. This action was by consent of all the members of the board.

R. I. Phelps appeared before the board and asked that the membership of the local committee at the Waccamaw school be increased from three to five. No action was taken on this question.

REGULAR MEETING OF CIVIC CLUB

Continued from page one and cost of dinners served club members. Another amendment regarding delinquent members was proposed by R. W. Davis and Frank Sasser, but final action on this question was deferred until the next meeting.

The name of S. B. Frink was presented by Frank Sasser as an applicant for membership and this application was referred to the membership committee.

Thirty-six members were present at the meeting, which was presided over by G. Van Fesperman, vice-president of the club.
