

Home Agent Gets New Work To Do

Circulating Library In The Home Agent's Office In Cabarrus County Opens Up New Phase Of Home Demonstration Work

The circulating library in the home agent's office in Cabarrus county is opening up a new phase of home demonstration club work in North Carolina.

Miss Ruth Current, district home agent at State College, reported that the library was started in the Whitehall Club by Mrs. Mary L. McAllister, home agent.

The members contributed $10 to buy a number of books, and one of the women agreed to stay two afternoons a week in the club house to look after the library and distribute books.

A little later three other clubs donated $15 each and the county commissioners added $50 to the fund. Another contribution of $50 was received from a citizen of the county who is interested in club work.

Recently a wind storm damaged the Whitehall Club building and the library was moved into the county agent's office in concord. Some of the club women secure books when they are in town. Mrs. McAllister also aids in the distribution by carrying books with her when she visits the different clubs in the county.

At present the library has $25 books available for lending to club women without charge. The State Library Commission has commended the club women and the county agent on the selection of books in the library.

Miss Current added that in some of the clubs, the women are making a study of a book at each meeting, discussing its points, and exchanging their opinions about its subject matter. This is both educational and recreational, she pointed out.

BIG BUSINESS

In North Carolina there are 15,000 people who derive their living from the fishing industry and there are an additional 50,000 inhabitants dependent on them. The majority of the residents of this section fall into this group.

HEAVY RAINS DAMAGE ROADS AND DELAY TRAFFIC IN THIS COUNTY

Continued from page one employees of the state highway department advised John and Emogene Garrett, of Southport, who had reported for work at the office of county agent J. E. Dodson, to get back across the bridge before it became impassable. Later in the day traffic over this bridge was stopped. There were reports of railroad washouts between Southport and Bolivia but these were not confirmed.

In spite of all the storm and strife, Southport citizens enjoyed their regular mail service. First reports of trouble up the road were brought in by Rollie Walton when he arrived with the mail Tuesday morning. He told of being forced to ford torrents which were so deep across the road that the water came up in the foot of his truck. In one place he removed the fan belt in order to keep it from spraying water over his engine.

When he left on his return trip to Wilmington in the morning Rollie was doubtful that he would be able to get through again, but he did. Furthermore, he made his regular round-trip afternoon run.

In addition to several thousand dollars worth of damage done to the roads, it is probable that considerable crop damage also resulted from the Monday night flood. However, there have been no definite reports of other damage.

Commissioners Draw Schedule For The Vaccination Of Dogs

(Continued from page one) where in today's State Port Pilot. These vaccinations are being given in compliance with a law passed during the last session of the North Carolina General Assembly for the purpose of stamping out rabies in this state. There is a charge of 50 cents for each dog vaccinated and for this amount the inspector will administer the vaccine, furnish a tag and certificate of vaccination. The 50 cent fee for vaccination will be credited on the county dog tag if the certificate of vaccination is presented.

Everything possible has been done by the commissioners for the convenience of the dog owners of the county and members of that body urge the citizens to cooperate in making this effort to stamp out a dangerous disease a 100 per cent success.

TWO CHOSEN FOR CMTC SERVICE

(Continued from page 1.) dred applications received, more than seven hundred acceptances have been made, and the successful candidates are now waiting only for their final orders to go to camp, which opens on August 5th at Fort Bragg and lasts for thirty days.

The camp course of instruction is a combination of military training and physical education, calculated to promote better citizenship among trainees. An interesting feature of this schedule is the large number of awards for excellence in various lines of endeavor. Medals are given for military superiority among each of the four classes of trainees, Basic, Red, White and Blue. These awards are donated by the Military Training Camps Association and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Seven medals for essays on citizenship will be given by the Associated Civitan Clubs, while the winners in every branch of athletic endeavor will be likewise rewarded. The total awards of all classes, it was announced, will number nearly one hundred.

A four-day guest trip to Washington is to be given to the outstanding C. M. T. C. trainee from each corps area, while a baseball autographed by Lou Gehrig and a bat autographed by Babe Ruth will be among the prizes at each camp. The baseballs are donated by Colonel J. A. Ruppert, of the New York American League Baseball club, and the bats by Mr. J. A. Hillerich, of the Hillerich and Bradsy Company, of Louisville, Kentucky, makers of Louisville slugger bats.

E. O. Gandy is principal of the Chapel Road school, a three teacher unit located on the Southport-Wilmington highway near the Riverside Filling station.

CHEERS DECLARES STORY IS UNTRUE

Cheers said that he knew absolutely nothing about any plan to burn the house and that the first knowledge he had of the affair was when he received a letter from the insurance company.

On the eve of his departure for the state prison, the man seemed particularly concerned for the safety of his five-year-old child.

He seemed anxious for Mrs. Cheers to be liberated in order that she might care for their baby.

He expressed his appreciation for the kindnesses shown him by Jailor Jimmie Russ.

YOUNG OFFICER SUICIDE VICTIM

There was a bullet hole in the rear cushion of the automobile about on a line with the steering wheel. This slug was found in the rear of the car, but the one that went through the head apparently went out of the side window.

When the body was discovered about 5 o'clock yesterday morning the pistol, a .45 calibre automatic, was grasped in the right hand, which was lying on the officer's lap. Investigators were frankly puzzled over the spots, and because of the there was no bullet hole in the coat Schellhouse was wearing. It was pointed out, however, because of the way the coat probably was worn, it was seated in the car. No reason for the whether it be murder or could be learned.

Lieutenant Schellhouse, native of Oregon, having been in that state on Nov. 11, 1901. He was appointed cadet at the Coast Guard Academy on May 1, 1924, was graduated as the No. One in his class in 1927 and was commissioned an ensign on March 8, 1929 and Lieutenant Junior Grade on March 8, 1931. Presently reporting to the Modoc, he served on both the east and west coasts and was at one time communication officer of the fleet at New London, until the force was taken over by the commission.

NOTICE

In compliance with Chapter 122, Public Laws Session 1935, each dog owner or keeper of a dog is required, under penalty of law, to have the dog vaccinated against Rabies by one of the inspectors listed below, or by a licensed Veterinarian, in which case a certificate from said Veterinarian must be furnished the inspector.

The inspector will administer the vaccine, furnish the tag and certificate of vaccination for a fee of 50c. Every dog must wear the tag showing that it has been vaccinated. The fee for vaccinating a dog after the schedule below is closed will be 75c except for dogs that become six months old before the next annual vaccination. The fee for such dogs will be 50c.

Meet your inspector at one of the places listed below and co-operate in stamping out Rabies.

The 50c fee paid for the vaccination of a dog will be credited on the dog tax if Certificate of Vaccination is presented.
