'LITTLE BITS OF BIG NEWS'

Solve Case Argentina's "Lindbergh case" was solved Monday, police said, when a dull-eyed hobo confessed kidnapping and killing Baby Eugene Pereyra Traolo. Police announced Jose Ganceda had admitted the crime after five days of questioning. A detective, garbed as a fellow hobo, or "liniero," posed as a prisoner. He obtained the confession, writing an end to one of the greatest man-hunts in the history of the country. The two-year-old child, son of a wealthy Argentine family, disappeared from the garden of the family's vast Estancia on Wednesday night. His body, unclothed and with arms crossed on the breast, was found in a pig pen on the estate, a mile and a half from the garden, Saturday. There was evidence he had been strangled.

Murder Money At least one life insurance policy on Annie Thelma Smoak, for whose murder her father, Edgar Leroy Smoak, faces death in the gas chamber April 23, will be paid, it was learned Monday. Smoak, however, may not be the beneficiary. Robert Romeo, local manager of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, which insured the 16-year-old poison victim's life for about $400, said the claim will be paid. If Smoak's conviction, now on appeal, stands, he will forfeit the rights of a beneficiary, he added.

Home Stretch The general assembly, most of its major work behind, entered the home stretch this week with social security and free text book legislation as two of its most vexing problems. Proposed reorganization of the highway commission and a change in the school machinery act that would make the superintendent of public instruction chairman of the state school commission and place the spending of almost $25,000,000 annually directly under his supervision also remain for

Basketball

WORTH SEEING

Although the general public appears not to be aware of the fact, Southport has one of the best basketball teams that has held forth on the court in years. Herbert Rogers, captain, is speedy and shifty. Robert Thompson, John Shannon, Robert Hood, D. I. Watson and Lonnie McDowell are also all fast and dependable players, who can give spectators plenty of thrills, if those spectators are interested in good basketball. The next time the Southport all stars have a game scheduled at home, Southport people can be assured of some real entertainment if they will turn out to watch the boys.

COMPETITION

The Bolivia high school girls are moving merrily along with their record of having lost only one game this year and that to a team 200 miles from here. They will afford pretty strong opposition in the county tournament and also in the tournament that is to be staged in Wilmington in March. It is interesting to note that the Shallotte and Waccamaw girls also have aspirations for the county championship that Bolivia has been holding down for three years.

RETURN GAME

Coach Walker, of the Bladenboro girls, wrote the civic club this week that his girls had improved 90 per cent since they played Bolivia here while the Perch was a visitor. It seems he would like another game here or there and it has been suggested to him that the Southport boys and Bolivia girls would be willing to join forces for a double-header against the Bladenboro teams at whatever place Bladenboro would elect to have it. The Bladenboro boys team is reputed the best in Bladen county.

COLORED BOYS

Since it is in order to mention good basketball playing, it may be observed that the boys of the Brunswick County Negro Training School, at Southport, have won eight games and lost only one this season. They have been taking on the best from far and near and putting on good basketball.

Waccamaw vs. Shallotte The Waccamaw high school boys defeated the Shallotte high school basketball team Thursday night, February 18th, 26 to 5 in a game played in the Waccamaw gymnasium. Score at the half was 8 to 1 in favor of Waccamaw.

And the State College extension service, which Dean Schaub is director, is firmly convinced that anything it can do to help the newspapers supply their readers with worthwhile agricultural news is a service to farm people of the State.

County farm and home agents and extension officials are urged to keep constantly on the alert for any farm news or suggestions they can give to papers.
