NEWS PICK-UPS

CAT-DOG FRIENDSHIP
H. M. Shannon and his boys have a large pure-bred bull dog that is very gentle. Its most devoted admirer and constant companion is a large house cat, also owned by the Shannons. The other night the cat was indoors and the dog was outside and got into a fight with some passing dog. Hearing the commotion the cat went frantic and when someone opened the door she dashed outside and flew to the defense of her friend. The bull was amply able to take care of himself and the visitor was doubly disconcerted when the cat lit on his back.

BOATS GOING NORTH
Yachts that have been wintering in Florida are beginning to move northward. Something like a dozen stopped here the past week. The number will increase rapidly, as surveys made last fall are indicative that something in excess of four hundred of the beautiful boats will make Southport between now and the middle of May. To some of the gas and fuel oil dealers the spring and fall movement of yachts is of the greatest importance.
Many of them buy their fuel here, often taking on several hundred gallons.

GOOD CITIZENS
Among a number of good citizens that Southport has gained this winter are four or five men and their families from Morehead, Manteo and other places on the upper North Carolina coast. Two of the men from Morehead are experienced boat builders and have been having their hands full all winter, building or repairing boats. At the present time each of them has just started construction on large boats for S. I. Burris. One of the craft is to be 55 feet in length and the other 60 feet. They will be used for shrimp trawling and various purposes.

EARLY BATHERS
Eighty-five school children from Tabor City visited Southport Saturday and apparently had a great time. About half of them went bathing in the river from some of the docks and proved good swimmers. One of the boys, after doing a Kellerman into 18 feet of water, remarked to his companions that it seemed just a little bit cool down there.

with them on the trip. Mr. Collins enjoyed visiting his brother, who lives at Myrtle Beach.

Friends will be glad to learn that Mrs. W. G. Collins is able to be out of bed after being sick for some time.

Shallotte Point

Shallotte Point, March, 23.— Citizens are all glad for winter to emerge into spring, for the bright, warm, sunshine, for the refreshing showers, for the singing birds, and fragrant flowers.
The health of the community is fairly good. Most all people seem contented and happy as they go about their daily pursuits.

Farming and gardening are the principal occupations, though some are engaged in merchandise business, boarding-house keeping, fishing, oystering.
The Zephyr breeze, the broad Atlantic, the clear peaceful Shall-lotte river, the friendly attitude of our people, the abundance of wholesome food, entices people here from all parts of North Carolina, and many other states.

Occasionally a yacht as it winds its way north or south, spends a week or more here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Watts and daughter who have spent quite a while here on their palatial yacht, have returned home.

Mr. and Mrs. Haywood Goley from Durham have moved here.
Their parents, Mr. and Mrs.
Oscar Goley, spent the week-end with them.

Buyers Pay More For Good Cotton

Long Staple Cotton Brings Premium Prices In "Standardized" Communities,
Reports Show

Premium prices are paid in communities where growers "standardize" a good variety of medium to long staple cotton.
Last year, farmers in 781 "one-variety" communities over the cotton belt produced 1,500,000 bales of high grade lint ranging from an inch to 1 1/16 inch in staple length.

Their extra premiums amounted to $8,500,000, said J. C. Ferguson, cotton gin specialist with the State College extension service.

When all growers in a community "standardize" their crop by planting the same variety, they reduce the possibility of having their seed crossed with some inferior strain of cotton.
And the growers can thus offer buyers fairly large quantities of cotton of uniform grade and staple length. A buyer who can get a considerable quantity of good cotton in one place will usually bid more than if he has to pick up a bale or two here and there.

Where cotton is bought in "hog-round" lots, the average quality and staple of all cotton sold determines the price paid for the individual bale.
It is especially important that farmers whose cotton is sold in this way get together and select a good variety for all to grow.
This will raise the average quality and staple length.
"If you can't buy enough good cottonseed meal
Good Stock Feed

This Inexpensive Stock Food Is Rich In Proteins, Nitrogen, Phosphoric Acid And Rotash

Manure produced by livestock has a definite cash value to the farmer who spreads it on his fields.

Earl H. Hostetler, head of animal husbandry research at State College, said that in terms of the fertilizing elements the annual manure production of various animals may be valued as follows:

Horses, six tons worth $15.36; dairy cows, nine tons worth $18-99; fattening steers, 7.8 tons worth $20.59; sheep, .8 of a ton worth $3.66; and hogs, 1.7 tons worth $2.21.

Well balanced rations not only increase efficiency in livestock feeding, they also increase the value of manure obtained from livestock.

Cottonseed meal, abundant and comparatively inexpensive in the South, is rich in proteins and other elements that make it a good stock feed when properly balanced with other rations.

It is also rich in nitrogen, phosphoric acid, and potash for fertilizing purposes.

When cottonseed meal is placed directly in the soil as a fertilizer, farmers miss the opportunity to utilize its feed value.
This is an economic waste.

But when the meal is fed, three-fourths of the fertilizer value of the meal can be returned to the soil in the manure, if the manure is properly handled.

Livestock men restore to the soil 96 pounds of nitrogen, 27 1/2 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 27 pounds of potash from each ton of cottonseed meal they feed, Hostetler says.

Applying Spray to Peaches; Getting Rid Of Mites In Chicken House; Best
Spacing For Tobacco
Plants

QUESTION: When should the spray be applied to control cir-culio on peaches?
ANSWER: Applications should be made when three-fourths of the petals (pink parts of flower) have fallen. If blossom blight, due to brown rot, has been severe, an extra application of dry lime sulphur-lime or self-boiled limesulphur should be applied just as blossom buds show color. The regular formula of one pound of arsenate of lead, three pounds of stone lime or five pounds of hydrated lime, with 50 gallons of water should be used for the first application.
