

Summers and Gunter Lost Some Big 'Uns

K. Gunter and F. P. Summers, two Charlotte sportsmen who have contributed much to the development of the gulf stream fishing at Southport, went out Saturday and brought in about the poorest catch that has as yet been accredited to them. One barracuda and three dolphin were the sum total of the returns.

However, they had a mighty good alibi. It was directly after the hurricane passed up the coast. The ocean was still torn up around Frying Pan and the fish had not recovered from the shock of the storm enough to bite good. Even so, they hooked and lost five huge barracuda that broke away. One of these was actually brought alongside the boat and given the gaff. When it felt the iron it went wild and busted both gaff and the line. It is not usual for Doc and Mr. Gunter to lose fish.

INFECTED HAND
W. F. Brooks, of the fisheries camp, was admitted Monday as a patient at the Brunswick County Hospital with an infected hand.

FOR TREATMENT
Mrs. H. T. Varnam, of Supply, was admitted to the Brunswick County Hospital Monday for treatment.

PATIENT

Brockport, N. Y.—Idaho, shaggy-haired pup once accused of drowning a fourteen-year-old boy, was legally free today, but his owner refused to release him.

Accused of dragging Maxwell Breeze under water and causing him to drown on July 4, 1936, the dog was tried before Justice Homer Benedict as a "vicious animal." Idaho was sentenced to two years confinement and since then has been kept tied to a stake in the yard of his owner, Victor Fortune.

Lots of radio fans write to radio stars for pictures, but few of them marry the girl. Yet that's exactly what Sidney Fisher of Louisville, Kentucky, is going to do. He fell in love with the lovely soprano voice of Vicki Chase, featured soloist on "Vocal Varieties" over NBC, and wrote to her for her picture. She sent it. When he saw it, he finally made a trip to Cincinnati to see the broadcast and meet her. They decided it was love, so the date is set for sometime in September.

Mary Eastman

The third annual series of the sparkling musical variety program, "Saturday Night Serenade—Your Pet Program," again featuring Mary Eastman, petite lyric soprano; Bill Perry, tenor; Gu taylor Haenschel's orchestra and a choir of mixed voices, begins over a nation-wide CBS network on Saturday, October 1 (8:30 p. m. EST). Miss Eastman, who has recently completed a successful summer concert series, is a native of Kansas City who studied in Chicago and New York, primarily for a career as a pianist before she was discovered as a singing find.

If you had a chance to meet Fibber McGee, what question would you ask him? Just in order to find out what readers would like to know about stars, LISTEN TO THIS will award $5 for the best question submitted and $1 for the five next best on: "What I would ask Fibber McGee if I met him." Send your questions to Tom Fizdale, Listen To This, 360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago, together with the name of your newspaper. Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, September 15. The winning question and Fibber's own answer will be printed in this column two weeks later.

Horace Heidt, leader of the Brigadiers heard via NBC, has the only band in the country organized on the lines of a regular business organization. His big personnel, which includes more than thirty people, comprises a complete stage show with dancers and specialty numbers in addition to the band members. With Heidt as director, the organization is set-up in the same manner as a business organization with ten main departments.

Betty Winkler, who has been heard this summer opposite motion picture star Henry Hunter in the "Attorney at Law" series, will be back on the air as the star of her own show, "Girl Alone," come the last week in September. The pretty leading lady, who has proven her versatility as a top-flight actress, will resume the role of the newspaper girl over the NBC-Red network, Monday through Friday, starting Sept. 26, for a new sponsor.

"Those Happy Gilmans" are another addition to the better daily dramatic serials on NBC. After making a decided hit in recorded presentation, this story of a normal, happy American family was given a network spot. Bill Bouchey, Edith Adams, John Hench, Cornelius Peeples and Joan Key are the featured players of the show heard Monday through Friday.

With Bob Hope, stage and screen comedian, rounding up talent for his new variety show, which takes the air via NBC-Red, September 27, it looks as though radio fans are going to have another big night to look forward to on Tuesdays. Skinny Ennis, former Hal Kemp handsman, now a maestro in his own right, is being mentioned as vocalist and music director.
