

Dusting Peanuts Is Profitable

Dusting Proves Profitable To Farmers in Controlling Leafspot Disease And Increases Yield

Dusting of peanuts to control the leafspot disease should begin at once, says Howard R. Garriss, Extension plant pathologist. This practice has netted growers as much as $15.30 per acre in experimental demonstrations, he said.

Garriss reported that early applications, made at two-week intervals, have proven the most profitable. In previous years growers have applied the first of three treatments on or about July 25. "However, this year, we are recommending four treatments, the first to be made as early in July as possible," he stated.

Last year tests of the four-applications-per-season method resulted in yields of 509 pounds more nuts per acre than yields from untreated plots, and increases from the three-applications-per-season demonstrations were 459 pounds more nuts per acre.

"Control of peanut leafspot by sulphur dusting also substantially increases the yield and quality of peanut hay," Garriss declared. "The material used for sulphur dusting of peanuts is a specially prepared 'dusting sulphur' which is conditioned for sticking to the plant. Any good grade of sulphur dust is satisfactory if the particles will pass through a 325 mesh.

"The rate of application should be from 16 to 30 pounds of sulphur per acre, the exact amount depending upon the size of the plants. The treatment should be made either in the early morning, when it is calm and there is some dew on the plants, or in the late afternoon after a rain. It is necessary to avoid winds during the operation. However, if rain occurs within 24 hours after the dust is applied, the applications must be repeated."

To Extend Relief Where Need Most

It Is Provided That It Must Have The Freedom Of Action And Safeguards For Carrying Out The Distribution Of Supplies

WASHINGTON, D. C. July 15.—Chairman Norman H. Davis, in answer to various inquiries as to the present policy and activities of the American Red Cross in respect to European war relief, today issued the following statement:

"It is the policy of the American Red Cross to extend relief where it is most urgently needed providing it has the necessary freedom of action and safeguards for carrying out the distribution of its supplies to the actual victims, whether refugees or war-wounded soldiers.

"At present there are three distinct areas where such need exists and where assistance has been requested: First, Great Britain, second, the unoccupied portion of France, and third, those territories under German occupation.

"With regard to the first we have set up an American Red Cross Committee in England and are sending medical, hospital equipment, clothing and other supplies, including food, as rapidly as tonnage is available.

"With regard to the unoccupied portion of France the SS McKeesport, loaded with all sorts of supplies and enjoying safe conduct from the British blockade authorities, is now headed for Marseilles where its cargo will be distributed to the millions of refugees and war-wounded in Southern France under the direction of American Red Cross representatives. In addition, a trainload of children's food is now en route to the same region from Geneva.

"With regard to the third area, namely occupied territory, we have been extending aid in Poland with funds contributed for that specific purpose. This program is under American Red Cross supervision, thus safeguarding control over the ultimate destination of supplies. As for other occupied territories, aid to the sick and wounded and to refugees, particularly children, is being extended only in Paris and vicinity under the direction of Wayne Chaffield-Taylor, American Red Cross Delegate, working in cooperation with the American Hospital and the French Red Cross.

"Beyond this limited activity the American Red Cross is not extending any relief in the occupied portions of France. There are certain questions of policy and inherent difficulties, such as blockade, transportation, delivery and control of distribution which, at the present time, are most difficult of solution. The needs for relief which are daily increasing in the areas where we are now operating and in which we may operate in the future will require continuing large outlays.

"In this connection I want to point out that none of the supplies of the Red Cross have been interfered with by any Government or diverted from the needy for whom the supplies were intended, and the American people can rest assured that we do not intend to engage in any operations not adequately safeguarded and which do not give consideration to the wishes of those who have so generously contributed to the work."

Refugee Fund Nearing Goal

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The American Red Cross War Relief Drive for a minimum fund of $20,000,000 appeared likely to go over the top within the next few days as chapters throughout the country reported contributions totalling nearly $19,000,000.

The Red Cross Campaign started May 10, following the invasion of the Low Countries and France. Originally, the goal was set at $10,000,000, but increased responsibilities prompted Chairman Norman H. Davis to double the quota.

Since the program was authorized in December, 1939, the Surplus Marketing Administration has bought for domestic relief distribution 241,000,000 pounds of lard and pork products.

A total of 24,595,000 acres in the United States was planted to cotton and in cultivation at the end of June, according to a late report on the size of this year's crop.

Old Hens Need Moist Mash Daily

Do you want to know how to keep your old hens in egg production during the hot summer months?

Well, C. F. Parrish, Extension poultry specialist of N. C. State College, says the feeding of a moist mash at noon each day will help to increase summer egg production. He recommends that three pounds of dry mash be moistened with milk or water and fed to each 100 birds. "As soon as the birds finish, turn the mash troughs over so that flies will not congregate in the laying house," he says.

The poultry specialist also advises the supplying of 4 to 5 gallons of cool, fresh water each day for each 100 birds, and a sufficient number of fountains so that there will not be any crowding around the drinking fountains.

percent. Without any quotas, predictions of the price the 1940 crop would bring range from 5 to 10 cents per pound.

Floyd said that any person who will share in the proceeds of the 1940 crop of flue-cured tobacco is eligible to vote in the referendum Saturday. Community polling places will be set up, to be opened not later than 9 a. m. and to close not earlier than 5 p. m.

It will require a vote of two-thirds of those casting ballots to put three-year quotas in effect. If two-thirds or more of those voting do not favor three-year quotas, but the total of the three-year and one-year votes is two-thirds or more of the total vote cast, then one-year quotas will be in effect.

No Changes Will Be Made In Market Opening Dates In South Carolina Belt to the interest of the S. C. and Georgia growers generally since sometime will be required after the referendum vote for crop control to allow the government to properly establish their arrangement for buying large quantities in their proposed stabilization plan. It is felt that no S. C. farmer should suffer by reason of any damaged tobacco due to the difference between the agreed upon and your proposed opening date.

"The members of the sales committee have considered every phase of the question and have done their utmost to fix opening sale dates which would be most fair and equitable for the growers in all districts."

Previously, Congressman J. Bayard Clark, of this district, had lodged a strong protest in behalf of this section at the dates of the tobacco markets of this area.

The Whiteville Merchants Association and Board of Trade were among the first to protest against the lateness of the dates in opening the markets, acting through the Border Belt Association.

The Tobacco Association committee explained that a change in the opening dates for the South Carolina markets would provoke demands for corresponding date changes in other belts.

Chairman H. R. Pettus of the committee also said that earlier openings in Georgia and South Carolina "would prove detrimental to the interests of growers generally since some time will be required after the referendum vote for crop control to allow the government to properly establish its arrangements for buying large quantities in its proposed stabilization program."

Since designation of opening dates two weeks ago, many tobacco growers, warehouse officials and businessmen generally throughout this area have protested the lateness of the start, set for August 20. The market opened last year on August 3.

Some growers said that although it was felt the weed crop was late this season, a number

Reservoirs of CREDIT

BANKS are sometimes called reservoirs of credit. Just what does the expression mean? Consider our bank, for example. Scores upon scores of depositors bring their money to us for safekeeping. These amounts, sometimes small, sometimes large, are like the brooks, streams and rivers that help to fill a reservoir. Then borrowers come to the bank and obtain loans of these funds. Sometimes one loan requires the deposits of a hundred people. It can thus be easily seen how we serve as a reservoir of credit by gathering money and giving it effectiveness in the form of loans to worthy borrowers. The importance of this service is quickly apparent.
