POULTRY'S VALUE IS EMPHASIZED BY LOCAL FARM AGENT

Management plays a large part in raising any kind of poultry. The house should be cleaned daily and the old litter disposed of far enough from the house that any disease will not be tracked back to the house. Some form of cheap litter should be used. Wheat and oat straw has been used satisfactorily and shavings, pine straw, peanut hulls, and crushed corn cobs make a good matter.

In view of the need for more eggs, it is up to every person who buys baby chicks to do their very best in raising their chicks and pullets this spring and summer, the county agent concluded.
