Fire Facts

$1.50

The Jap attack on Pearl Harbor was a military disaster for this country. And yet losses in material were confined to a few hundred planes and comparatively few ships. If Pearl Harbor was a disaster, no words could possibly describe an enemy blitz that destroyed 27,618 medium tanks, 207,142 seventy-five mm. guns, 98 heavy cruisers and 6,183 heavy bombers. But in the years between 1918 and 1939 property to the tune of $8,285,000,000 was destroyed in the United States by fire. These billions would have been sufficient to building the above fighting force.

This country has been prodigally careless with fire. Too few people realize that fires can start without the application of flame. Spontaneous ignition is a phenomenon that occurs in oily cloths, mops or waste and paintstained rags or clothing. Chemical reaction causes the material to heat up until actual fire bursts forth. Common household dusts, both from waste material and food, may explode with terrific force. When either flour or dust from vacuum cleaners is thrown loosely into an incinerator or furnace, so that a cloud forms, a violent explosion may take place as soon as the dust reaches fire.

Another prime cause of fire is the ordinary match. Smokers strike 6,000 matches every second. Too many toss them away carelessly, not realizing that fire kills more persons in the United States each year than our country lost "killed in action" during the first year of the war. The annual death toll from fire approximates 10,000 lives annually.

These are a few of the facts about fire that everyone should know.

The New American Navy

Opportunity and responsibility, but no cause for complacency, may be read between the lines of the address James V. Forrestal, Undersecretary of the Navy; delivered to the Bond Club in New York Monday. Mr. Forrestal said the United States will possess at the end of this year a naval air and sea armada equal to the naval strength of the rest of the world.

Mr. Forrestal wisely refuses to regard this Navy as a reason for American aloofness from the rest of the world, however. He seems to regard it as a possible support for a world association of nations. That is realistic. Not even the Navy which Americans have now built up might do more than postpone another war a few years unless the United States took part in organizing peace under law. The existence of this tremendous naval power should help Americans to rid themselves of fear that they will be in some way deprived of their proper influence by joining with other nations to maintain peace. The American factor is enormous in the eyes of other nations. It is usually the American himself who underrates the ability of his nation to hold its own in world councils. The war potential is the peace potential. If the new American Navy convinces the average American of his nation's ability to make the most of the opportunities and responsibilities which await it in the post-war world, that Navy's power and usefulness will exceed any measurements which can be stated in tonnages of ships or number of planes .-- Christian Science Monitor.)

An Impressive Experience

Those who ventured out in the quiet of the dawn on Easter to attend the sunrise service at the Section Base at Caswell had an experience which will remain in their memory for a long time.

They will long think of the impressiveness and solemnity of the occasion when they paused in the midst of a war-conscious existence to worship with the officers and men and to remember with them the Risen Christ.

They will remember also the kindness of Commander Campbell, who sent buses over to Southport to enable them to attend the services. They will remember, too, the fellowship of the breakfast hour when they were guests of the base. This made Easter happier for many of them.

Pulpwood Bag Saves Starving Troops

Every now and then there comes out of the combat zones a story of pulpwood's role in the war that means more to most of us than a carload of statistics on the uses of pulpwood for military purposes.

Such a story was buried in a recent dispatch on the heroic stand of a small band of Allied troops on Hangman's Hill, just above embattled Cassino.

For nine days and nights this brave band, separated from the main Allied force, fought off Nazis while their comrades tried vainly to supply them with food, water, and supplies. But strong winds blew supply parachutes into enemy territory.

The valiant soldiers were near starvation when one day a plane dropped two paper-mache gasoline tanks loaded with rations directly on their camp. Inside were enough K-ration units to give two to every three men. As a result the men survived and a few days later were evacuated.

Not only were the gasoline tanks
