THE FEAR CLUB

The Cape Fear Home Demonstration Club met with Mrs. John Thompson on Wednesday. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Thompson, who is the present standing and will continue to be so through the coming year. The club is composed of women from the Cape Fear region and is devoted to the promotion of home demonstration work.

Elizabeth Norfleet, the president of the club, gave a report of the club's activities during the past year. She mentioned the many successful home demonstrations held in the district and the help given to the war effort. The club is planning to hold its next meeting on July 12th at the home of Mrs. Thompson.

At the meeting, Mrs. Thompson presented a very timely demonstration of several types of jam and preserves which were shown to the club members. The jam was made from local fruit and was very delicious. The club members were very interested in the demonstration and will be sure to try the jam at home.

The club members also gave a very interesting and timely demonstration of several types of jam and preserves which were shown to the club members. Double-Duty Outfit Is Chic for Farm and Saves War Bond Dollars

Achieving top quality in home canned products is an art requiring as much skill as any of the household arts. The following suggestions will help the homemaker reach top quality in her canned products.

1. Select fruits and vegetables in their best eating stage and grade them carefully for soundness, size and color.
2. Wash all products thoroughly, lifting them from the water instead of pouring off the water.
3. Have the canning room or kitchen spotlessly clean and in order before the food is brought from the garden.
4. Have all canning equipment checked, washed thoroughly, rinsed, and arranged in order of its use.
5. Make syrups before fruits are prepared for the jar.
6. Have plenty of hot water ready for use in filling jars as needed.
7. Follow manufacturer's directions carefully for various types of closures.

These seven points of organization and selection will help make it possible to reach the goal of "two hours from the garden to the jar," which means not only better quality, but more food value per jar. A particular warning is given against oven canning, described as "dangerous in more ways than one."

Wrap a small square of clean cheesecloth around the times of a fork and tie securely. Keep the fork in boiling water and use it to clean tops of jars just before putting on the lid. Only pure salt should be used in canning. Shaker salt or salt prepared for table use is apt to make the liquid look cloudy and milky.

Fall Garden For Winter Foods

A good way to grow the vegetables below, especially those that are hard to get up or those that winter cold kills, is to grow them inside a frame. This frame consists of boards, slabs, or logs bordering the sides with a covering of sacks, cloth, or similar material. This covering is used to shade the soil, thereby making it easier to get the seed up and it is also used to protect the vegetables from cold and from sudden thawing. The frame may be any size or shape, such as a tobacco bed, but to be most convenient, it should be approximately six feet wide. This makes it possible to reach the center without having to step into the frame. The sides are usually 12 to 18 inches high. It is necessary to cover the bed unless the temperature drops to around 25 degrees or below. After a hard freeze, never remove the cover on until the weather moderates and the ground has thawed. When the weather becomes extremely cold, collards and cabbage that are growing in the regular garden may be pulled up and transplanted to the frame. If necessary, a heavier covering such as straw or leaves, or some kind of support, may be substituted for the sack or cloth covering. For further reference, refer to Bulletin No. 30, "Small Fruits For Home Use."

These vegetables may also be grown in the regular garden, and to help in getting plants up in dry, hot weather, place straw, leaves, or even lay a board over the soil where the seed have been planted. As the seed come up, this covering should be rearranged along both sides of the plants to help conserve moisture, but at the same time allowing sunlight to reach the plants.

More and more women and girls will help on the home front this summer by joining the c-o-p corps. The problem of practical clothing for farm work is solved by these overalls of sturdy denim. They are smoothly cut, and can be worn either with or without a shirt. Do your share for victory by making them yourself and buying more War Bonds with your money saved. A suitable pattern may be obtained at your local store. U. S. Treasury Department approximately two weeks. For Mountain area, advance planting dates approximately two weeks.

ELECTRIFICATION
The Rural Electrification Administration has made a loan allotment of $50,000 to the Woodstock Electric Membership Corporation of Beaufort County for 33½ miles of line to serve 262 members.

IRISH POTATOES
The War Food Administration is using surplus Irish potatoes to help relieve the shortage of livestock feed in Eastern Carolina, say reports.

SMALL GRAINS
R. N. Crawford, of Morven, likes small grains for grazing and feeding because they save labor, time and hay, and take the place of corn, reports Negro County Agent William Cooper of Anson County.

CHINCH BUGS
The dinitro dust barrier is used for killing chinch bugs as they go from grain fields to corn fields. Once in the corn fields, they can be killed with a nicotine spray, but this requires constant spraying for about 10 days, or as long as the migration is on.

BOLL WEEVIL
Farmers can rely on spot dusting with calcium arsenate around woods and hedges for boll weevil control until counts show 10 per cent or more infestation for the entire field.

CANNING CHICKEN
Home demonstration specialists at State College suggest the canning of chicken this summer during the period when the farmer is culling his flock. Chicken may be scarce later in the year.

CORNFLAKES
Breweries in Panama are said to be improving cornflakes from the United States as a substitute for rice in brewing beer. The supply of rice, a chief item in the diet of workers, is reported short.

There Must be No Shortage of Telephone Equipment on War Fronts

Tons on tons of telephone cables, wire, switchboards, telephone instruments and hundreds of other types of telephone equipment have been shipped to England for use by our armies in their advances through Europe. More shiploads are following to meet the growing demands of the war fronts, not only in Europe but the Pacific, as well. All out production of telephone equipment for our armed forces takes virtually all available manufacturing facilities and manpower, and reserve supplies are about exhausted. The shortage of supplies for home use has made it impossible for us to keep up with civilian orders for service. That is why we, over here, must continue to do the best we can with the limited amount of equipment we have on hand. We keenly regret that more and more people are having to wait for telephone service, due to the increasing war demands. But there must be no waiting for the men who fight our battles. Your continued patience and cooperation in these difficult times is greatly appreciated.

RE: COAL

It is extremely important to you to store your coal this summer. The government is warning of possible coal shortage. Further, by reason of our limited delivery equipment we will be unable to serve communities as far away as Southport when the cool weather starts.

We will be glad to have your order now for delivery as soon as we can reach your order, which may be several weeks.

By reason of truck equipment we are forced to accept orders only in lots of 2 tons or multiples, thereof, that is, 4, 6, 8, etc.

Because of the uncertainty of just what day delivery of an order can be made, we must ask the customer to pay cash with order or prior to delivery (except customers who have an established charge account.)

Please place your order as soon as possible by mail or by telephone, Wilmington—5261.
