shop. We went around again this last Saturday. All doors were locked. We finally found Mr. Reynolds on the street and asked him the cause of the locked doors. "Oh," he said, somebody or other must have gotten mad and complained to the O. P. A. in Raleigh. They ordered the shop locked up for 30 days until they could get around to make an investigation."

Mr. Reynolds did not know who had complained. Or what it was all about. He stated that the O.

P. A. ceiling price on his work we can say that with the work was $3.00 per hour. That he has been doing he has per- charged $1.60 per hour and that sonally done more than his bit towards winning the war.

Whose BREAD WE EAT

For many years we have been telling the world what a fine place the South is; of its great natural resources and its favorable factors for economic growth. It is in truth a goodly land.

But of all the assets possessed by this favored region, the most valuable are its people. Representative of the best that is America, the people of the South by their self-reliance, energy and intelligence have demonstrated their capacity for economic progress and civic betterment. This is particularly reflected in the extra-ordinary developments of recent years.

A land of abundant natural wealth, possessed by a people of vision and integrity, the South gives promise of even greater things for the future. To assist our friends and neighbors in the building of a better community will continue to be one of Seaboard's principal objectives in the future.
