Cerro Gordo Man's Home Is Robbed

During the late hours of Sunday evening or early morning today robbers entered the bedroom of Carl Osbourne at Cerro Gordo and removed his purse containing between four and five hundred dollars and various valuable papers.

The burglars gained entrance by entering a window in the living room, thence to the Osbourne bedroom where he and Mrs. Osbourne were asleep.

A bus driver passing through the town shortly before midnight reported having seen three people on the streets loitering around not far from the Osbourne home. Other than this there is no clue that may prove helpful in apprehending the burglars.

Many reports such as reprinted herein has come to our attention during the last several weeks.

Losses of this kind can be avoided by using the facilities of the banking services offered for the conduct of your business. Not only does a bank account offer safety from burglars, or misplacement, but provides a valid receipt for all bills paid or purchases made, and an accurate record of your financial transactions.
