Woman's Club
 Robinson, Jr., associate editor of Time Magazine, was the guest speaker at the meeting held in the school auditorium on Wednesday afternoon. Choosing "On the Edge" as his subject, Robinson made a strong case for keeping abreast of the news by reading any of the good newspapers and one of the weekly news magazines. He pointed out the danger of depending too much on the viewing of any one paper or any one news magazine. Robinson's talk was presided over by Mrs. W. G. Butler, chairman of the International Relations Department of the Woman's Club. In charge of the program was Mrs. J. M. Harper, Jr., president of the club. Reports from the committees were heard. Leggett was elected membership, and several resolutions were voted on at the business meeting.

Hints On Flower Gardening

BY MRS. J. K. POWELL
 For years neighbors have been ridiculed for talking over the fence. Pictures have been painted of women in hair curlers gossiping over the garden fence for hours, but can you imagine a more lovely spot for the friendly, morning visit, than mid-way a lily path? It is just such a place that Mary and I meet often for the exchange of ideas and happenings of the day. This path is bordered with the Crinum often called Milk and Wine lily. The stems which sometime bear 8 to ten flowers are often nearly as tall as we; and the leaf if leaf it is, will often measure for more than a yard.

Quite often I am practically buried in the soil with Trixie, my blond cocker, close on my heels when I hear Mary's gentle voice, asking me to meet her in this path, where we will start on a garden expedition. Sometime it is to her border where she is perplexed over the action of a particular plant, often it is to see the litter of Blackie's or Tabble's newest babies. As a rule either of these will have kittens of the knee lap and newly-born sizes all at one time; each of them finding care and love at my good neighbor's hands.

After we have visited the newest of these babies we go into the Rose Garden. We call this Charles' Rose Garden for he is the person who has to be consulted when the name of a rose is in question (the above named Charles is the person who assists me in wedding the hoe.) It is he who made the bed about a month before any of the plants were set out; digging and spading deeply, applying fertilizer, mulch and drainage before placing the Roses. He then watered the newly set roots well to firm the earth. He watches closely for insects, spraying often for the different kinds. When these plants were placed, he made a chart, with names of each, in a note book. If we are uncertain as to what a plant is, he refers to this chart. It is here that he inserts the special characteristics of the plants that we wish to give extra care. Quite often it is Mary has discovered black spots on a leaf or maybe the long green worm that is working his way in to a choice pink bud on the oocohet.

We wonder then to a planting of Azalea to find that the buds are swelling and know that in a few weeks there will be an abundance of gorgeous pink or red blossoms in this border or that. During this expedition we decide that tomorrow we must make a visit to McQueen's because it is surely time that the pansies and English Daisies were in the ground.

Next week I shall plant these above mentioned plants and with them will be the pretty little blue grape hyacinths and yellow primulas or cow slips. Against a black ground of Cameclias and Azaleas will be stately Hyacinths and daffodils. In the midst of this planting is a bird bath and under it a mass of Virginia Blue in the garden. They come in several heights.

Flowers are not the only joy of my garden, birds all a colorful note. Often I am entranced by the solo of a bird, that reminds me of the ever lovely old song, "Listen to the Mocking Bird." Early the Red, Red Robin will go bob, bob, along; then Woody pecker is a constant visitor with his wood pecking song. I am cheered by the brilliant plumage, sweet music and the helpfulness of these friends who assist in the riddance of many of the garden pests. There is a very lovely cardinal family that lives in my garden and nothing gives me the thrill of seeing each year new crop of baby birds being taught to fly and feed themselves.

I'm afraid that the lure of nature is too strong for me and that too frequently the other side of my four walls has to suffer the consequences.

My advice to gardeners is—Work, dig, fertilize, mulch, and sit back and enjoy the fruits of your efforts.

Mountain sheep are cud-chewers and have four-chambered stomachs. Known as the hunter's "most coveted prize", it is considered immoral to shoot one for any reason than to get a fine head.

Hallsboro Class To Give Program

HALLSBORO, Nov. 8—The Senior Class of Hallsboro High School will sponsor a "Saddle Haulers' Day" on Friday evening of this week at 7:30 o'clock in the school auditorium.

Various entertainment features are planned, among which is the selection of "L'H Abner and Daisy Mae."

The public is invited to attend.

The peccary is a distant cousin of the domestic pig and the European wild boar, but seldom takes on fat. He is native to the American southwest and very difficult for hunters to stalk.

The average adult opossum weighs nine pounds and is about the size of a house cat.

Daily weather reports are issued by 390 U. S. Weather Bureau stations.

MY APPRECIATION

For the vote, which made me the highest county candidate of either party in the election of Tuesday, November 2, I wish to express my deepest appreciation to the men and women voters of Brunswick county who supported me.

And for all who did not support me I realize that you were within your rights. I may not have been your candidate but I want you and all to feel that I was elected to serve the people of Brunswick county and not just my friends. I shall try and give service to all and I shall appreciate all opportunities to help you.

Gratefully yours,
Amos J. Walton
