

Pork And Beans Still Rate Tops In Human Diets

Doctor Disagrees With Chemist On Possibilities Of Future; Ersatz Foods Disappointing

The New York Times recently printed a report on the findings of a distinguished chemist to the effect that the world can support a population of 15,000,000,000 of us make the most of our chemical knowledge. He further predicted that meat and eggs will disappear from the diet, because of beef steer converts only about 12 per cent of its food into meat. Chemistry, he went on, will enable us to convert wood into sugar for human consumption.

Shortly afterwards, The Times published a letter from a doctor emphatically disagreeing with this theory. His purpose, he wrote, was to point to the pitfall in taking knowledge obtained in the field of chemistry and applying it to human nutrition without considering facts obtained in clinical medicine. Then he said: "Research in human nutrition during recent years definitely indicates the superiority of animal protein foods, such as meat and eggs, over all other foods. Further, there is strong evidence indicating that sugars are not only inferior foods but may also be harmful to the human organism."

"The researcher in chemistry knows little or nothing of clinical medicine. It is not expected that he should. Clinical researchers are not expected to be chemists. Specialization is a necessity. However, the stores of knowledge gained from highly specialized fields of research must be applied with the wisdom that comes with broad knowledge and understanding."

For many years, optimistic accounts of the possibilities of ersatz foods made from wood and other materials have appeared at intervals. None of these products have come anywhere near expectations. The animal protein foods occupy a dominant place in the American diet, and nothing has appeared to dislodge them.

HERE FIDO!

On one occasion the minister delivered a sermon of but ten minutes duration—a most unusual thing for him.

Upon conclusion of his remarks he added: "I regret to inform you brethren, that my dog, who appears to be particularly fond of paper, this morning ate that portion of my sermon that I have not delivered. Let us pray."

After the service the clergyman was met at the door by a man who as a rule, attended divine service in another church. Shaking the good man by the hand, he said:

Member of Congregation Reverend, I should like to know whether that dog of yours has any pups. If so I want to get one to give to my minister.

Watson And Associates

In closing out his operations in Fair Bluff, Watson expressed regret that circumstances made it necessary for him to dispose of the Fair Bluff business.

"I feel, however, that I will be able to render a better service at my new and larger warehouse," Watson continued. "I want to invite my customers of the past two years in the Fair Bluff section to come to see me and look over our facilities at the Planters. The record of the market and the spacious warehouse are our guarantees that the growers will not be disappointed."

Many New Homes Show

Over on the Emerson road, paved during the past year, are the new school building, the new telephone exchange office and the homes of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Floyd and Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Pinner.

Dr. R. M. Williamson is now constructing one of the new porcelain-type prefabricated homes just across Pridden Street from the residence of Mayor Ay Williams. The residence is going up adjacent to the old Pridden house.

Coach Sil Caruso will soon be occupying a new garage apartment near the home of F. G. Kelly.

Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Cox have remodeled the two-story home formerly occupied by J. L. Baxter and it has been rented to Mr. and Mrs. A. A. White.

Mrs. Cox is developing a beautiful garden in the rear yard of the Cox residence.

No attempt has been made to cover the entire field. It is entirely possible that there are several other new residences which should have been mentioned but this is sufficient to indicate the fine progress which Tabor City has been made toward relieving the housing shortage.

"Town With City Future"

Lee Floyd, formerly of Chadbourn, recently joined the Jennings Strickland Store and Meat Market staff as meat cutter. His family will join him here at the opening of school this fall.

Jimmy Moore took over the management of the Jones Five and Ten Store. He was married to Miss Sellastine Hughes shortly before taking over the work here. Mrs. Moore is a successful teacher and will be a member of the local school faculty this year. They are living at the Hickman Apartments, formerly occupied by Albert Schildt.
