Superintendent's Conference At Mars Hill Attended By J. T. Denning Of Brunswick County

Approximately 190 public school superintendents and other educational leaders of North Carolina convened at Mars Hill College August 17 for the annual three-day superintendents' conference. J. T. Denning, superintendent of schools for Brunswick county, and his family attended this session.

Including families of delegates, 350 persons registered Wednesday afternoon, according to Miss Frances Shelton in charge of local arrangements. The first general meeting of the conference was held Wednesday evening in the college auditorium, with Clyde A. Erwin, superintendent of public instruction for North Carolina, presiding, at which time Hoyt Blackwell, president of the college, spoke briefly. Following the meeting Wednesday evening the delegates were given an informal reception in the parlors of Huffman Dormitory, with Dr. and Mrs. Erwin and Dr. and Mrs. Blackwell receiving.

The general theme of the conference was "Improving the Quality of Educational Leadership." At the general session Thursday morning the group heard addresses on insurance and handling school funds, and on the school program, followed by panel discussions on channeling funds planning the surveys, and planning the buildings.

On Thursday afternoon the following group discussions were held: "The Superintendent's Role in Developing In-Service Education," J. Henry Highsmith, consultant; "The Superintendent's Role in Coordinating Community and Lay Leadership for a Better Community School," Charles W. Phillips, consultant; "The Superintendent's Role in Evaluating and Surveying His Adminis-

Johnson of Winnabow working with his son, Russell Johnson, has a very thriving farm and dairy herd just east of Winnabow. Their herd is a regular producer of milk that is whole-saled at a good price. Most of the feed comes from excellent pastures and with the existing soils and climate, good pastures are one thing that every farmer in Brunswick county can have.

James Bellamy of Shallotte was also among the Brunswick farmers at the Raleigh meeting. Since his discharge from the Navy at the end of the war Mr. Bellamy has been doing some really progressive farming. He is

Brunswick Folks Think Of Future

Interest In Better Balanced Farm Program Points To Greater Development Of Cattle And Dairy Industry

According to the folks who were there, the Brunswick county representatives at the North Carolina Farmers Convention in Raleigh last week got some stimulating angles on balancing farming.

As suiting this area it was decided that dairy and beef cattle is the answer to the need. One of the reports showed the White Ice Cream Company of Wilmington as bringing in three thousand gallons of milk from a distance of more than a hundred miles.

With permanent pastures and natural grazing conditions practical of almost year-round use, that milk that is brought in from such a long distance could be produced more cheaply here and sold by the farmers at the same or a better price owing to the fact that the company would be saved the long and costly hauls. J. H. Tinga, veterans teacher at the Bolivia school, stated to a newsman this week that he regards the possibility as being very good for many Brunswick farmers adding a weekly check to their farm earnings. A quick pocketbook snatch netted two colored men $143 here Thursday and will net them a term on the roads if police can catch and convict the pair. The victim was an Acme Negro Aaron Brown, who had just sold a lot of tobacco.

Brown was met in front of a bank, after he had cashed his check, by the two men who asked if he knew where they could buy a good clean pickup. He couldn't answer but they followed him to a local warehouse. There they inquired about change for a large bill and when Brown pulled out his pocketbook, one of them made the snatch.
