

Plenty Of Luck With Red Drum

Fishing on the beach at Bald Head Island Sunday night, Captain and Mrs. Bill Stryon ran into two kinds of luck—they caught some nice fish then lost all of their tackle.

Almost as soon as they could get lines out they caught three red drum that ran 32-pounds, 34-pounds and 35-pounds and five ounces.

Then they ran into really big fellows and in no time at all they lost every line they had. With one of those lines that was broken and carried away, Captain Stryon fought a 122-pound tarpon to a standstill and capture just a month ago.

CAPTURE THREE

Varnum, all young white men of Lockwoods Folly township. They were captured at a still in the Stanbury section. The outfit was of 100-gallon capacity and in addition to mash the officers got two gallons of finished whiskey.

Two other raids were made the same day, according to Deputy Granger. One of these in another section of Lockwoods Folly yielded a still, but no operator. The third raid was on a still in Shallotte township, near Calabash. At this place the operator also escaped.

POULTRY SHOW AND

From the above it appears that only one girl got in the first honor class and none in the second. The boys of the county appear to be outshining the girls at the art of raising chickens.

After being judged and prizes awarded the 144 pullets were put up at auction. County Tax Collector Edward Redwine, officiating as auctioneer, did a splendid job at this. The average price paid was $2.10 per bird and this, with prize money, made an average of almost $3.00 going to the club members for each pullet they raised and sold.

Fred Lesh of Bolivia bought four pens of the birds, paying $3.05 for each bird in one pen. The club members will use the money obtained from the sale for financing a similar project next spring.
