CATHOLIC INFORMATION

Did you ever see a nun canoeing?

its authority comes from God—that makes them strive for honesty, morality, decency, because these too come down from Him who is their Author.
 Did you ever see a nun canoeing? You never did. You never will. For the nun was chosen for higher things by Him who said: "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not. For of such is the kingdom of God."
 Catholics, like everyone else, pay their full share of taxes for public school education. Besides this, they contribute freely every month in order to erect and maintain their parochial schools and high schools and to educate nearly two and a half million Catholic children, thereby saving the taxpayers of the country $250,000,000 on school taxes. This double educational burden, unjust as it certainly is, is tangible proof that the Catholic will sacrifice anything rather than risk the spiritual and moral welfare of his children.
 If it's anything Catholic, ask a Catholic!
