A Discouraged Litigant.
During Cleveland's first term an important federal officeholder in Mississippi died, and there was a prolonged controversy over the succession. Each of the senators from that state had a favorite, while "Private" John Allen, who was then in courses coloud that who was then in congress, claimed that the appointment belonged to his dis-trict. After months of delay, Allen went to the White House one day to urge anew the claims of his candidate. The president looked bored when Al-len announced his mission. "I'd a good deal rather that work! len announced his mission. "I'd a good deal rather that you'd tell me a story, John," he said. "I'll tell you a story, Mr. President," said Allen. "and one that fits this case. I had a client once who was left out of his father's will the company. client once who was left out of his fa-ther's will, the father having left a con-siderable fortune. My client engaged me to contest the will. The other side, being in possession, adopted the policy of delay, and so the case was a long time in coming to trial, and when it was finally tried the jury disagreed. After another long delay there was an-other trial, and my client won a sort of half victory, and the other side took an appeal. Then I tried to make a ser-tlement; in fact, I considered the case tlement; in fact, I considered the case as good as settled and told my eitent the good news, and he and I were duly and properly elated over the situation. But it turned out that a remote heir, with a small interest under the will, refused to settle, and we faced further and apparently almost endless litiga-tion. Then my ellent sort of lost his nerve. 'John,' he said to me, 'there has been so much delay and trouble about this case, so much to bother me and so much uncertainty, that I some times chosel wish that the old man

Waiting For Advice.

We wrote to a subscriber who is five years in arrears that if he would send us a dollar we would square the ac-count and begin anew. He answered: count and begin anew. He answered: "I send you $1 to pay my subscription, and you may stop my paper. I don't like your politics." We have wired Eheldon, and as soon as we learn what Jesus would say to a fellow of that kind we will answer his letter—Galena (Kan.) Republican.

Bir-Will you in the future give my son easier some to do at nites? This is what he's brought hoam two or three nites back: If fore gallons of bere will lifthry-to pint bottles, how many pints and half bottles will nine gallons of bore lil? Wel, we tried and could make nothing of it at all, and my boy cried and laughed and sed he didn't dare to go back in the mornin without doin it. So I had to go an buy a nine gallon key of bere, which I could lil afford to do, and then we went and borrowed a lot of wine and brandy bottles. We filled them, and my boy put down the number for an answer. I don't know whether it is right or not, as we spilt some while doin it.

P. S.-Please let the some be in water, as I am not able to buy more bere.

"We can do nothing," said William Durling, the light keeper. "Ab, yes, we must go to the rescue," exclaimed his daughter, pleading tearfully with both father and mother until the former replied. "Very well, Grace. I will let you persuade me, though it is against my better judgment." Like a feather in a whirlwind the little boat was tossed on the tumultuous sen, and it seemed to Grace that she could feel her brain reel amid the maddening swirl. But, borne on the blast that swept the cruel surge, the shrieks of those shipwrecked sail-ors seemed to change her weak sinews. Into cords of steel. Strength hitherto unsuspected came from somewhere, and the heroic girl pulled one oar in sven time with her father. At length the nine were safely on board. The Indithe battles in Mississippi. anians, unable to withstand such odds, were compelled to fall back a short distance, losing their flag, which remained in the hands of the epemy. Suddenly a tall Irishman, a private in the color company, rushed from the ranks across the vacant ground, attacked the squad of the enemy who had possession of the con-quered flag, with his musket felled sev-eral to the ground, snatched the flag from them and returned safely back to his regiment. The bold fellow was im-mediately surrounded by his jubilant comrades and praised for his gallantry. His captain appointed him to a ser-geancy on the spot, but the hero cut everything short by the reply: "Oh, never mind, captain! Say no more about it. I dropped my whisky flask among the rebels and fetched that back, and I thought I might just as well bring the fing along.

ROOSEVELT FAVORS RAIL-

Officials Sanction Plan to Take Rail-road Legislative Power From States.

The revolutionary program of President Roosevelt in his Indianap-olis speech that under the Constions speech that under the Consti-tutional power granted to establish post-roads Congress can regulate commerce and common carriers within a state, is creating great discussion. Nearly every constitu-tional lawyer who has studied the question declares that the states would thus be stripped of authority over the railroads within the state and also over their own roads, their own streets and cars. This Presiown streets and cars. This Presidential program suits the railroads, for all the two-cent passenger rate laws and other state legislation for the control of the common carriers within the state would be unconstitutional and congressional legisla-tion would be the only means of re-gulating the railroads. If this in-terpretation of the Constitution be correct, there would be but little left for the state government to do that could have fit the people. If a Republican Congress in obedience to t'resident Roosevelt attempts this revolutionary beginning, so may be buoged with hope that the Supreme Court will declare the register of the states my regtachte.
