He Couldn't Ohlige Her. An American actor, who is old enough not to consider himself a matinee idol by any means, was somewhat pleased in a western hotel when a pret-ty girl stopped him in the corridor and presented him with a rose without saying a word. He received a note the following day reminding him of the incl-dent and asking him to send the giver of the flower two seats at the theater of the flower two seats at the theater in which he was playing "as a memento of the occasion."

The father looked at his daughter for a moment or two in silence and then said:

"My child, you are but a stranger here; heaven is your home."

One of Whittier's Admirers.

An admirer of Whittier's works was granted an interview and talked in-cessantly for over an hour. In speak-ing of the patiently endured infliction to a friend the poet paused for a mo-ment and then added, with the sug-gestion of a smile, "And all the time he called me 'Whitaker.'"
