We have all experienced that certain little fellows certain men, if you please, have a way of getting into a situation that is full of tediousness and drudgery. You try to keep your mind on your work and find yourself thinking of other things, perhaps of the weather or of the coming winter. You try to keep your thoughts on the job in hand, but they wander. In fact, you are half-way out the door before you know it. This is a common occurrence, even among the most experienced workers.

As you walk along the street, you may notice that the leaves are turning red and brown. This is a sign that winter is approaching. The trees are shedding their leaves, and the ground is becoming bare. This is a natural process that occurs every year, as nature prepares for the colder months.

In the days of the early settlers, the autumn months were a time of great activity. The harvest season was a time when the farmers would prepare the land for the winter months. They would plow the fields, plant the crops, and bring in the harvest. This was a time of plenty, as the farmers would have enough food to last them through the winter months.

The present-day Autumn is an attractive season, but it is also a time of change. The leaves are turning colors, and the air is becoming cooler. The days are growing shorter, and the nights are becoming longer. This is a time of transition, as nature prepares for the winter months.

As you walk along the street, you may notice the leaves falling from the trees. This is a sign that winter is approaching. The trees are shedding their leaves, and the ground is becoming bare. This is a natural process that occurs every year, as nature prepares for the colder months.