

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF FALLING OUT
OR DANDRUFF--25 CENT DANDERINE.

Ladies, Men, Here's the Best 25 Cents You Ever Spent -- Don't Wait--Apply a Little Tonight.

This, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff--that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die--then the hair falls out fast.

A little Danderine tonight--now--surely will surely save your hair. Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowledge's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair--new hair--growing all over the scalp.

Ho For North Carolina

It is the same story but with a variation, for North Carolina leads in so many things that there is no use doubling on our tracks when there is once again stated that North Carolina is at the head of the procession of States in some of the great products of the soil.

This time, and by the official figures, we are referring to the fact that the record of the crops of the past year for the State and the country shows that North Carolina stands first as to cotton, tobacco, peanuts and sweet potatoes. That is a fine thing to be able to chronicle, and the mere statement demonstrates the fact that this State offers unsurpassed opportunities in agriculture. It is a State in which there is the greatest chance for all who labor with intelligence and wit assiduity.

The figures which are given by the United States Department of Agriculture show that as to cotton North Carolina leads the whole country for the fourth consecutive year in the amount of cotton raised per acre, the average being 239 pounds. South Carolina is second with 234 pounds. The government report for the previous year shows that North Carolina raised 215 lbs. per acre.

That is for cotton, and there is a similar fine report as to tobacco. This report is that the tobacco crop in North Carolina is worth $30,988,000, exceeding Kentucky, which is second, by more than $2,000,000.00. The privity of North Carolina in these two crops give it a position which should appeal to every man who is seeking a home in a section where he can better his condition.

Now as to sweet potatoes. In the production of this crop North Carolina is first with 8,000,000 bushels to its credit on the official record. And then as to peanuts North Carolina stands first of all the States in the production of this crop.

The fertility of the soil of the State is being more and more recognized as the crops produced increase in size. Take the wheat, the oat and the corn crops to illustrate this. The figures show that in the past year the increase in the quantity of wheat grown in the State amounts to 1,750,000 bushels over the 1912 crop, in oats the increase was 7,000,000 bushels, and in corn 4,000,000 bushels, the increase in the corn crop in the past four years amounting to 21,000,000 bushels.

Our people have as their home a great State which can but grow greater. It is a State which has a welcome ready for all who come to take part in building it up. No State offers better opportunities. "Ho For North Carolina" should be the song of all who seek a home, where the opportunities are the greatest.--EX.

The stockholders of the Central Carolina Fair Association are planning improvements for the coming fair, October 19 to 24. The agricultural building is to be added to several new stables to be built--new fences to be put up, and city water to be put into the grounds. These improvements will cost $5,000.00.

HOME TOWN HELPS

MIGHT SERVE AS A MODEL

Beautiful Rural Home, Properly Laid Out and Kept Up, Nearly Approached the Ideal.

A short time ago the writer rode past a rural home that certainly should satisfy any earthly being for a place of residence.

A hundred feet highway frontage had been reserved in the middle of an orchard of 20 acres about square. The house stood about one hundred feet back, the whole plot was inclosed by a neat wire-mesh fence covered with roses and various climbers. A few clumps of shrubs were arranged just inside the gateway along front and side fence and about the foundations of the house. Very few trees were in the foreground and these few were kept out of the lawn center, but on either side of the house yet not close to the building were flanked quite a number, thinly planted in front but more thickly about rear of house so one could not look beyond a point opposite the rear corner of the house. In the front was a blue grass lawn, fairly well kept and occasionally mowed, though quite long at the time of observation. The lawn did not look as though it had been "barbered" for a month nor as though it proved a problem to keep it up except with great labor. Two or three vines lightly draped the house, a few flowers were to be seen in all parts and in some spots a bright mass spoke of flowering annuals or perennials. All was neat and clean yet did not look as though raked and swept every day or even every week. The whole place harmonized with the spirit of nature and rurality, where every prospect pleases and not even man is vile. The home and all surrounding looked so sufficient, so satisfying, so rural, without a suggestion of the artificiality found in cities or suburban districts, that it called vividly to mind the happy pastoral scenes of old suggested by Goldsmith's couplet:

"A time there was, ere England's griefs began,
When every rood of ground maintained its man."

It costs but little to so arrange the home grounds, its upkeep calls for but little of time or money, yet such homes are the country's strongest asset, speaking volumes for the prosperity and happiness of the rural residents.

INFLUENCE OF HOUSE PLANTS

Their Positive Value Extends Not Only to Those in the Home, But to the Passerby.

The cultivation of house plants has a refining and quieting influence on families where they are grown; they adorn the house as nothing else can, and give to the cheapest furniture an air of elegance which no other ornament can impart. And the influence of flowers is not confined to the house or household where they are cultivated; they are a most graceful form of charity to the poor passerby who has no means of gratifying his taste for the beautiful. To him, blooming flowers, surrounded by their leaves of different shapes and shades, even when only seen at a distance, through a window, give a positive pleasure which those more accustomed to such gratifications can scarcely appreciate. It is impossible to overestimate the effect of youthful association and daily companionship with such exquisite shape and coloring, which foster in the minds of children a taste for simple and natural forms of amusement and recreation.

Growing Trees From Top Down.

A foreign railway company has solved the plan of getting good shade trees in a short time, though they may be small. These trees are so arranged that after two years' time they will give as much shade as trees in the ordinary way of setting out would give that are fifteen or twenty years old. The company gets a small elm tree, preferably digging this, roots and all, from the ground. The tree then is set, the top part being set into the ground and the roots are left in the air. The tree then grows, forms roots on which originally was the top of the tree, and the original roots that now take the place of the branches begin to leaf out and form a complete foliage very quickly. Beautiful specimens of such inverted trees are to be seen by the fountains in Kensington gardens, London.

Garden Spirit.

"If you want to have beautiful roses in your garden, you must have beautiful roses in your hearts," concluded a speaker in some memorial remarks on the late Dean Hole, who has achieved an international reputation as a lover and promoter of roses. The remark touches on the true secret of success in gardens; there must be a very deep, real and penetrating affection for plants or the fullest success will not be obtained with them. And this affection must be clean and honest or the result will still fall short of full measure. The true garden spirit lies in the heart; and the inward beauty is nourished and enlarged by the nature beauty without.

Here's Quick Relief

A Simple Remedy to Correct Constipation Before It Becomes Chronic.

Very few people go through life without some time or other being troubled with constipation. Thousands injure themselves by the use of strong cathartics, salts, mineral waters, pills and similar things. They have temporary value in some cases, it is true, but the good effect is soon lost and the more one takes of them the less effective they become.

A physic or purgative is seldom necessary, and much better and more permanent results can be obtained by using a scientific remedy like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It does not hide behind a high sounding name, but is what it is represented to be, a mild laxative medicine. It is so mild that thousands of mothers give it to tiny infants, and yet it is so compounded and contains such definite ingredients that it will have equally good effect when used by a person suffering from the worst chronic constipation. In fact among the greatest endorsers of Syrup Pepsin are elderly people who have suffered for years and found nothing to benefit them until they took Syrup Pepsin.

It is a fact that millions of families have Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin constantly in the house, homes like those of Mr. H. W. Fenstermaker, Slegfried, Pa. He says he has had wonderful results from the use of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. In fact, he has never found a remedy so good, and he is glad to recommend it. The special value of this grand laxative tonic is that it is suited to the needs of every member of the family. It is pleasant-tasting, mild and non-gripping. Unlike harsh physics, it works gradually and in a very brief time the stomach and bowel muscles are trained to do their work naturally again, when all medicines can be dispensed with.

You can obtain a bottle at any drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is usually bought by families who already know its value. Results are always guaranteed or money will be refunded.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Ninth Grade Work.

Note--For a few weeks the ninth grade in the Asheboro graded school will do practice work in the various forms of prose writings in the English department, and the following is a sample of what has been handed in, in story form written by Miss Nancy White:

The Rescue and the Reward.
The little village of Prattsville, Arkansas, though small was the county seat of the county in which it was situated.

It had long since been in slumber land after a busy day as the moon and stars peeped over the mountains, and perfect stillness seemed to reign everywhere.

It was here that all county disputes were settled, and it being the county seat the jail was here.

Several months before, a poor fireman returning home late at night after the hard days labor, had seen his chance to take food from the rich man's kitchen to the hungry ones at home, and feeling his humble need, had yielded to the opportunity, and the rich man, learning of the thief, followed him up and the man was placed in jail. The jail was a most miserable place during the winter days, and each day the unfortunate man tried some new plan of escaping, and at last succeeded on this particular night.

Once outside of the jail he knew not where to go, but knew that the decision must be quick. So he started down the street to make his escape before dawn, it then being 2:00 a. m.

He had gone only a short distance, when he perceived a faint light far ahead, and thinking it just as easy to escape by this way, quickened his pace toward the light. As he came nearer, he was instantly surprised to see that it was the house from which he had taken the food, and that it was all ablaze with fire.

He saw no one, and this gave him reason to feel the responsibility of the lives within. He stared in silence, knowing not what to do, for if the alarm was given, he was sure to be caught, and if the alarm was not given he was sure that the lives within the building would be destroyed.

So without further hesitation his voice was raised in the alarm, Fire, Fire, Fire.

At the sound of the alarm the occupants and villagers were soon gathered outside, but too late to save the house, and as they all stood watching the fire creep to the last room, they were startled by the voice of the nurse, saying that the baby was still in the building.

The mother of the child pleaded for some one to save it, but all

Education in the South

It now turns out that illiteracy in Georgia has not been on the increase during the last five years in fifty-one counties in that State. Taking the States as a whole in the South and the educational progress is not in keeping with the rapid strides being made in industries and commerce of the State.

In North Carolina, however, the improvement in both schools and schools, houses, and the elevation of the standard of schools and teachers is remarkable. The efforts made in consolidation of schools is gratifying. The institutions supported by the State are doing a good work and the public schools throughout the State are being brought up to a higher standard of efficiency. The whole State is imbued with new life and new energy for educational developments.

stood still daring not to make the attempt, each fearing the loss of his own life by the undertaking.

When all hopes were gone from the mother, the man yet unnoticed by the crowd, thought of the little ones from whom he had been taken, and grabbing a ladder pushed forward, set beside the window, and was near the top before he was recognized by the crowd.

All stood breathless until he came from the room, and mounted the ladder with the child. Stuffed by the smoke he fell just after he had started down but was caught by the waiting hands below.

The policeman, hearing that the fireman had escaped, had followed him up to the fire, and came up ready to handcuff him and return him to the jail. But the rich man who had had him placed in jail for the stealing of the small amount of food, and whose child now had been saved by his hands, interceded for him, set him free by paying the requested sum, and feeling his indebtedness to him forever, asked his pardon and gave the fireman several hundred dollars for the great deed that all, even himself, had refused to do.
