In Memory of Milton Columbus Kearns.

Milton Columbus Kearns, Jr., son of M. Columbus and Sallie B. Kearns was born July 2nd, 1902, and departed this life Feb. 23, 1914, aged 11 years, 7 months and 21 days; and is survived by his parents, one sister and three brothers. He was a bright boy in school and always a social genial companion. He was a favorite among the young people and was well liked and respected by the older ones. He was obedient and submissive to his father and mother who deeply feel their loss. It was hard and sad to give him up but God saw fit to take him away. May God bless the bereaved family.

As we gather around the fireside With merry laugh and jest, How we wish the absent dear one Was here with all the rest. Still we join in all the frolics, But we wish the day was done, For we're thinking, thinking, thinking, Of the loved—the absent one.
—A Cousin.

PRACTICAL TALKS BY GOVERNMENT FARM EXPERTS

No. IV. — Co-operation and Tips to Fruit Growers. Producing More Eggs.

(Official News Summary of Up to Date Matters Compiled by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

CO-OPERATION among fruit growers in the disposing of their products has been carried on with a relatively high degree of success for a considerable length of time in some of the important fruit districts of the country. According to the department of agriculture, co-operative methods in selling fruit are gradually being extended. Many fruit growers who are able to so manage their orchards as to produce large crops of excellent fruit at a minimum cost fail to make their business profitable, or as profitable as the possibilities admit, through failure to properly dispose of it. It is difficult in large numbers of cases for a fruit grower whose time and energies are taken up with the details of producing his crop to so keep informed with regard to market conditions and marketing methods as to enable him to dispose of his crop to the best advantage. It is as important to meet the market conditions fully and successfully as it is to produce a good crop of fruit to sell.

A relatively small number of commercial fruit growers are able to sell their crops directly to the retailer. Where this method of disposing of the crop has been carried on in a business-like manner it usually proves successful. To meet the requirements, however, it is necessary for fruit growers to place with the retailer nothing but first class material, and it is quite important that he should be able to furnish a continuous supply in order that the demands of the retailer's customers may be met without interruption. Large quantities of fruit are disposed of through commission merchants. This method does not always prove satisfactory for reasons which are variously attributed to the system itself, to the middleman, sometimes to the purchaser of the fruit, and in some instances the quality of the product furnished the commission man enters into the consideration.

Fruit growers are better organized, and a larger proportion of them are members of some co-operative association in the western fruit districts than in other portions of the United States. Where a co-operative association is well managed and the members are loyal it has proved, as a rule, a satisfactory means of placing fruit on the market. Gradually the economic importance of careful picking and honest grading and packing fruit products is being appreciated, and the effort of fruit so graded and packed upon the consumer in his increased demands for fruit in large quantities at reasonable prices is being realized. Co-operation further enables growers who produce fruit in relatively small quantities to receive the advantage of shipments made in large quantities.

Some co-operative associations handle a full line of fruit growers' supplies, which are furnished to the members at a minimum cost, and through various activities, such as the operation of fruit evaporators, fruit canneries, etc., the business organization of the association is kept constantly employed. This makes it possible to bring to bear upon the activities of the association the continuous services of highly trained men.

Getting More Eggs.
According to statistics of the United States department of agriculture, the products of the American hen aggregate a total value of over $900,000,000 annually. Poultry and eggs are produced in all sections of the country, but it is a noticeable fact that the bulk of these important products is produced by the farmers of the Mississippi valley. In this section there are practically no large poultry farms such as are commonly found in the eastern states and on the Pacific coast. Poultry keeping, therefore, is usually incidental, the hens being considered and treated generally as agents for converting material which would otherwise go to waste into a salable product. Consequently the poultry and eggs produced constitute merely a by-product of the general farm.

The department of agriculture has placed the annual loss due to improper handling of eggs at $45,000,000, and it has been stated that in Kansas alone the value of the egg product would be increased $1,000,000 annually if proper care were taken of the product by the farmer and merchant.

On many farms throughout the country the money derived from the sale of poultry and eggs buys groceries and clothing for the entire family, and the money from this source could be substantially increased by establishing a private trade with hotels and restaurants.

In order that the farmer may sell more eggs, better eggs and obtain a better price for them the department has issued the following suggestions: Improve your poultry stock. Keep one of the general purpose breeds, such as the Plymouth Rock, Wyandotte, Orpington or Rhode Island Red.

Provide one clean, dry, terrina free nest for every four or five hens. Conclude all hatching by May 15 and sell or confine male birds during the remainder of the summer. Gather the eggs once daily during ordinary times and twice daily during hot or rainy weather.

In summer place eggs as soon as gathered in a cool, dry room. Use all small or dirty eggs at home. Market frequently—twice a week, if possible—during the summer. In packing eggs to market protect them from the sun's rays. The department has also issued the following suggestions to the country merchant and cash buyer: Candle all eggs and buy on the loss of basis. Allow the farmer to see you candle the eggs occasionally and return those rejected if he wishes them. Pack carefully in strong, clean cases or fillers. Do not keep in a musty, cellar or near oil barrels or other odoriferous merchandise. Ship daily during warm weather. To the railroad officials the department makes the following suggestion: Provide a covered portion on station platform where cases of eggs can be stacked and see that the agent stacks them there. Provide refrigeration for the eggs on local freights. Where refrigeration cars are used on local freights see that the doors are kept closed when not loading. If refrigeration cannot be supplied, provide stock cars rather than box cars for this purpose during the summer. When box cars are used for eggs do not allow freight which may hurt their quality, such as oil barrels, to be loaded in the same car.

BEST TABLE EGGS.

Cutting the Locust Tree.
The department of agriculture advises that the cutting of the locust tree for all purposes, including firewood, operation and for private commercial use, should be done between the first of October and the last of March. To destroy the locust borer before they enter the wood the removal of the bark from all desirable portions of the trunks of the trees felled is important and necessary. The injury to the trees caused by the borers consists of wounds in the bark and sapwood, which, if sufficiently severe and repeated year after year, results in a worthless growth or the death of the timber affected. The commercial value of the wood is considerably lessened by the worm holes.

The presence of the insects in injurious numbers is indicated in the fall of the year by the frequency of the adults on the goldenrod flowers and on the trees. So extensive has the damage of this pest been in some sections of the eastern states and the middle west that it is now considered unprofitable to grow the tree for either shade or timber. One important reason for holding this borer in check is to prevent its extension into the far west and other sections which are at present free from it. Experiments have demonstrated that the grubs may be killed by spraying the trees and branches with a strong solution of kerosene emulsion. This should be done not earlier than November and not later than March.

The Corn Rootworm.
Bulletin No. 8 of the department of agriculture states that one of the most destructive pests known to the western cornfield is the corn rootworm. It is about the size of the striped cucumber beetle, has a yellowish green color and black eyes. It is stated that the insect is easy to control under crop rotation methods.

IF PAST FIFTY USE "CASCARETS"

What glasses are to weak eyes, Cascarets are to weak bowels—Keep Liver and Bowels Active.

Get a 10-cent box now. Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles. So all old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.

Germany Finds That Growing Potatoes Improves Soil Productivity.
American potato growers will be interested in the fact that German farmers have found that many indirect benefits from potato culture through modern methods of crop rotation, green manuring and fertilizing. In a recently issued bulletin, entitled "Lessons from American Potato Growers from German Experiments," the department's specialist describes, among other things, how Eastern Germany benefits from the cultivation of the potato.

The potato has played the greatest role in the agricultural development of light and fertile soils of this region, as the sugar beet has done in heavier soils. According to German specialists, these hood root crops are beneficial to any soil through the deep and thorough culture that is given them, with its resultant improvement in the physical condition and aeration.

The profits from the crop justify the liberal use of commercial fertilizers, from which there are important residual effects on other crops in the rotation. The clean culture practiced also brings all weeds into thorough subjection. The yields per acre of all farm crops have been greatly increased since the extension of potato growing.

The tops are now dried and used for stock food on many estates. The by-product, mash, resulting from the distillation of potatoes into alcohol, is also an important economical factor. While we have, in fact, better soils than Europe in almost unlimited area adapted for potatoes, our hot summers injure the potato plant, where they aid in the development of our great grain crop, corn. In the corn belt there can never be profit in growing potatoes in excess of those needed locally for table use. Corn can be produced more economically in other sections for stock feeding, and is a cheaper source of starch and alcohol. Farther north, however, and in the elevated western districts where corn can not be raised, potato growing has a greater future.

However, vast deposits of petroleum will also offer competition indirectly to the potato, as at present there is not the need in this country that there is in Germany for potato alcohol. Nevertheless, we are using up our great petroleum resources, and the time may not be far distant when the distilling of alcohol from potatoes may become an important industry.

QUICK AND SURE STOMACH DOCTOR

"Pape's Diapiesin" ends indigestion, gas, sourness and stomach misery in five minutes. Time it! Pape's Diapiesin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes. If your meals don't fit comfortably, or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapiesin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors. Pape's Diapiesin is a certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store. These large fifty-cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapiesin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

Girl's Heroic Deed.
The bravery and presence of mind of Miss Annie Newton, 15 year old daughter of W. F. Newton, foreman of the Evening Dispatch, of Wilmington, saved the family horse, along with the cow and wagon, in fire which destroyed the Newton barn some miles from the city. The building was wrapped in flames when the girl ran into the stall and blindfolded the horse with her sweater and led him through the smoke to the open.
