Have you bought your Chautauqua ticket yet?

Remember after Monday afternoon no season tickets will be sold.

Don't forget the children when you buy Chautauqua tickets.

Tell your friends that Mr. Bryan's coming is a certainty.

CRIMSON CLOVER

The crimson clover crop in this county this year was immense. Randolph has caught the spirit of progress, and realizes that more grass and more cattle is the best thing for our farmers.

"Asking the question whether the Democrats can carry New York this fall, the New York World goes into the situation and concludes that they cannot unless through some improbable contingencies. One of the broader reasons given is that for 20 years New York has swung heavily against the party in power in every off-year election. We hope, nevertheless, that it will introduce an exception to the rule."—Charlotte Observer.

OPEN YOUR HOMES TO CHAUTAUQUA VISITORS.

Every home that can accommodate a visitor should be thrown open next week to those who desire to attend the Chautauqua. If you can take care of a part of the immense crowd that will be here for the week, notify some member of the Chautauqua Association at once. If you have friends that are expecting to visit you this summer invite them next week and assist in bringing to Asheboro the largest crowd ever gathered in the town.

CLEAN UP FOR CHAUTAUQUA WEEK.

The city fathers are to be commended for the excellent work being done in cleaning off the sidewalks and side ditches on South Fayetteville street. It is their purpose to carry the work on until the principal streets of the town are cleaned of all rubbish, grass and weeds. Visitors to Asheboro next week will find the town neat and clean. See that all rubbish is removed from around your premises and help to make Asheboro the cleanest town in North Carolina. Visitors from far and near will be here the Fourth and Asheboro must give the best reception possible.

CONGRATULATIONS, BROTHER CROWSON

The Courier extends congratulations to Editor O. F. Crowson, of the Burlington News, who was recently appointed postmaster at Burlington by Major Chas. Stedman. The appointment of Mr. Crowson comes as the result of the resignation of Mr. Finley Williamson who was first appointed. Mr. Williamson and Mr. Crowson were both candidates for the appointment when Mr. Williamson received the nomination. No man deserved this honor more, as the result of party service, than Mr. Crowson. Mr. J. C. Freeman was a candidate with Mr. Crowson in the last contest and at no time was there any bitterness or malice shown. Both men went into the fight friends and came out friends.

THE CHAUTAUQUA TAKES THE PLACE OF THE OLD TIME CAMPMEETING.

The day of the old fashioned campmeeting are about gone and Chautauqua week has come to take their place. Many can remember hearing their parents, grandparents, and great grandparents tell of the days spent at some favorite camping ground, and of the spiritual feast received during the stay there. Hundreds of people date their start in a life of service for the Master at some service under the old arbor, at some favorite campground. That was before the day when churches were dotted over this country so thick, and the campmeeting was a necessity then. The holding of revivals in the many churches of this country has practically done away with the campmeeting. Still there is need of an annual gathering to which people can come for a week's recreation and spiritual and mental feasting. The Chautauqua has superseded the campmeeting and is an institution which will find a permanent place in the history of our great country. The Chautauqua is new to the people of Randolph county but all who will take advantage of the opportunities offered next week to hear some of the world's greatest men will be forever in favor of the Chautauqua. Come to Asheboro in your covered wagons prepared to stay the entire week. You can purchase a tent for a nominal sum and erect it near the Chautauqua tent and spend the week this way. You will never regret taking a week to attend this great religious and educational gathering.

HEARD ON THE STREETS

WHAT OUR TOWN CORRESPONDENT HEARS AND THINKS—MATTERS OF PUBLIC INTEREST DISCUSSED.

Randolph county is going right ahead building good roads and within another year or so we will have a system of as good gravel roads as is to be found anywhere in the State.

Educational work in Randolph county has been active and there seems to be no good reason why we should not have a good County Commencement next year. We ought to have a good commencement. We have the children and the teachers to have one, and there is no estimating the good that would result from such an occasion once a year.

Mr. M. J. Lowdermilk of Cedar Falls, who has been a regular subscriber to The Courier for 20 years, has renewed her subscription to January, 1916.

We believe that a man should love his home better than any one else's home; his own community better than any other community; his own county better than any other county; his own State better than any other State; and with this you have a patriot who loves his country, and who will give his life freely for that country if required.

Plans are now being perfected by Mr. O. R. Fox to begin the construction of a new brick store at an early date on the lot where his present store now stands. Watch Asheboro grow.

The farmers in Randolph will find three up-to-date roller mills in Asheboro and they can obtain the highest prices for their grain. Competition is a good thing, and with three roller mills in Asheboro there is no reason why any of our farmers should give this town the "go-by" when it comes to marketing their grain.

Our merchants and business men should clean up their premises and keep them clean. Clean up and keep clean is a slogan of the day, and contains sound advice. The accumulation of trash and waste greatly increases the danger of fire and disease and if persisted in will force the insurance companies to increase their rates. "Clean up and keep clean" has its direct financial profit as well as advantage of immunity from disease besides improving appearances.

In a great measure the commercial standing of a town is reckoned according to the number and value of its business enterprises. Its moral standing, according to the number and power of its institutions exerting a good influence as opposed to those exerting a bad. These things being true, it should be the intent of the citizens of a place to encourage such new enterprises as tend in any way to make the place better, for a town is great by what its citizens make it, nothing more and nothing less.

Every public man, however great, is obliged occasionally to admit a distinction between what he believes ought to be done and what he finds himself able to accomplish.

Boys with hats on the back of their heads and long hair hanging down over their foreheads and cigarettes and very smutty stories in their foul mouths are cheaper than old, worn-out horses. Nobody wants them at any price. Men won't employ them and sensible girls won't marry them.

The remark is often made by visitors to our town that it is a prosperous town. Traveling men, especially, speak of the amount of business done here. The reasons for these remarks are, that the grain and produce buyers pay the highest prices that the market affords. To the merchants also is due a share of the credit. They carry large and well selected stocks, bought in large quantities, at close figures, and give their customers the advantage of the cut.

Good journalism has long been one of the best means of educating the English and American peoples. The rise of great newspapers is one of the most striking educational phenomena of the present age. Probably the press has had more to do than any other agency in shaping public opinion and in developing the domestic spirit in politics and culture. Newspapers accomplish for adults what the public schools do for the young—they liberate and inform the mind. They inspire the will and train the human spirit for useful action. In one sense the public prints are the school books of the nation, educating citizens and voter to a knowledge of their duty. A newspaper must stand for something. If it stands for business alone, the world will know it; if it stands for character and principle for purity in public and private life for honesty and fairness in our relations with our fellow-men, the newspaper is an educating power for good in all that makes men and women better. If the newspaper stands for nothing but success, gained at whatever cost, its influence as an educator will be a cipher. If an editor is indifferent as to whether the world grows better, his newspaper must reflect that spirit. If he has faith in humanity, in the power of human love to make this life look bright and cheerful, unconsciously he will mold his editorial words to deepen and broaden that faith. It is the desire of The Courier to embody the ideal of a county newspaper and thereby promote every good cause, especially the cause of education. Those who read cannot do without it.
