FARMER NOTES

Janie, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leander Elliott, died at her home near Farmer on September 11, after an illness of several months. Although she was only thirteen years old, she was a faithful little church member, and was always anxious to do just the right thing. She finished the work of the seventh grade last year. She did her school work well, often when it could be plainly seen that she was physically unable to do so. It is very hard for us to understand why one with such bright prospects should be taken away, but we know that God does all things well, and we are willing to leave the results with him. The funeral which was held at Concord church, and conducted by Rev. J. B. Trogdon, assisted by Rev. C. E. Steadman and Rev. J. W. Hulm, was largely attended and was very impressive. The boys in her class of Farmer high school were the pall bearers, and the girls of the class followed the casket carrying many beautiful flowers. The family and friends had the sympathy of the entire community in their sorrow. We trust that all of us will be drawn nearer to God by having known the pure life of this little girl.
Little Mac, the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Kearns, has been very ill for the past two weeks, but is improving now.
Miss Linnie Dorsett has gone to Denton where she will teach in the Denton State High School this winter.

WHEN THE PRINT GROWS DIM

When "they don't print things the way they used to do,"
When it's hard to tell the letter "n" from "u,"
Oh, be glad that some optician Wins a permanent position
Just a grinding glasses fit for you;
For the optulent optician has his kiddies and his wife,
And it's good of you to help them to the luxuries of life.
When "they never used to smear the types this way,"
When it's hard to tell the lower "e" from "a,"
Let your eyes be glad and twinkle
That they miss full many a wrinkle
And your temples do not look so very gray;
For if your vision were as keen as once it was, you'd haste
To buy that hair restorer which would be a wicked waste.
When "they certainly have lost the printer's art,"
When you cannot tell a "6" and "5" apart,
Oh, be grateful that your vision Has so lost its proud precision
That you cannot see a wrinkle on a heart.
You may watch your head grown bare from a half moon to a whole,
As long as there's no barrenness increasing on your soul.
—Edmund Vance Cooke, in Judge.

AN UNSUAL CHARACTER

Mr. George McKinzie of Edinboro, Scotland, will be in this city in the course of the next few days. While there are numerous Scotchmen in this section of the country, many a day's travel would be required to find one like Mr. McKinzie.
Although born in Scotland, Mr. McKinzie spent his boyhood days in India and Egypt where his father served for twenty years as Pipe-Major in the British Army.
The gift of coaxing sprightly Scottish melodies from the bag-pipes he inherits from his father and it is said by those who know, that Mr. McKinzie is unexcelled by none.
Mr. McKinzie's peculiarity in dress is unique, as he still clings to his Scottish highland garment which is really a regimental uniform and his jaunty military carriage readily recalls dim memories of Stevenson's "Alan A. Breck," "David Balfour" and "Treasure Island."
At the present time Mr. McKinzie is combining business with pleasure, having recently associated himself with the well known firm of McCormick & Company of Baltimore, and is now touring America in their behalf. We are glad to welcome him to our city.

GETTING READY FOR WINTER

Are you getting ready for winter? You no doubt will be laying in your usual supply of coal and wood. You have not been negligent in storing the pantry with provisions and good things to eat. You have looked well after the winter's comforts but what about your health?
Are you fortifying your body against winter's contagious diseases? Are you storing up resisting power to colds, pneumonia and tuberculosis? You are not if with the first breath of autumn you close up your house and pull down your bedroom windows. You begin at once to weaken your constitution, to vitiate your blood, and become an easy prey to disease germs. Keep fresh air day and night. A closed house day and night is an open door all winter to disease.
You lose instead of gain when you leave off on chilly mornings the cold water bath or any substitute for it. The body quickly sponged with a coarse cloth is a splendid substitute for a plunge in the bath tub. It takes a little nerve, to be sure, not to omit the cold water application before dressing, but when you have once formed the habit and known its tonic effects you will not forego it. Don't make a shut-in of yourself this winter. Take daily exercise in the open air. Don't over clothe at the slightest chill. Dress comfortably, but depend on exercise to warm you up. Don't look with dread to the coming of winter. If you would live as nature intended you should live—out in the open breathing its bracing air, sleep with windows open and go properly clothed—it will have no terrors and few diseases for you. And because you have always shut yourself in and

THE EUROPEAN WAR

FIERCE FIGHTING GOING ON BETWEEN GERMANS AND ALLIES—BOTH SIDES ARE SUFFERING HEAVY LOSSES.

MONDAY

Fierce fighting between the Allies and the German army is reported from the front, but neither side seems to have won in a decisive manner. The French claim progress, the Germans are satisfied, while the British are silent.
Germany seems to have entered on a bomb throwing expedition and in addition to frightening the people, has wrought some havoc by bombs dropped from air craft.
Reports from Paris say that the Germans are continuing their night and day assaults on the columns of the allies, the attacks being of unprecedented violence but have so far been unsuccessful.
From London comes the same report that the Germans have been driven back with heavy losses.
Petrograd reports that the Russians have shelled the heights along Przemyel and that the Germans are retreating in confusion.
An official list given out from Berlin shows the dead, wounded and missing from the German army is 104,589.
It is officially announced that the Japanese have defeated the Germans in a four-hour battle on the outskirts of Tsing-Tau.
A German aviator flew over Paris Sunday dropping four bombs. One man was killed and a girl injured, and a number of houses damaged. It is thought that the bombs were intended for the wireless station on the Eiffel tower and the army stores in buildings nearby.

TUESDAY

The official press bureau issued a descriptive account of the operation in France of the British forces and the French armies in immediate touch with it, communicated by an eye witness present at the headquarters of Field Marshal Sir John French. This account, which supplements that issued September 24, from general headquarters follows:
"September 24, 1914. For four days there has been a comparative lull all along our front.
"Advantage has been taken of the arrival of reinforcements to relieve, by fresh troops, the men who have been on the firing line for some time.
"Since the last letter left general headquarters, evidence has been received which points to the fact that during counter attacks on the night of Sunday, the 20th, the German infantry fired into each other as the dangerous expedition of a covering advance in the dark.
"This narrative begins with September 21st and covers only two days. Reconnoitering parties sent out during the night of 21-22 discovered some deserted trenches and in them, or near them in the woods, more than one hundred dead and wounded were picked up. Rifles, ammunition, and equipment also were found. There were other signs that portions of the enemy's force had withdrawn for some distance.

WEDNESDAY

Fighting of the past few days which took the form of heavy offensive operations, has not changed to any marked extent the positions of the opposing armies in Northern France. Hard blows have been struck by each side, but the armies remain virtually where they were when the Germans stopped their retirement and entrenched themselves.
The official communication issued today by the French general staff makes this plain. The lines of the allies are roughly sketched on the statement, and it is gathered that the French right rests still on Pont-A-Mousson and from there turns southward to cross the Meuse near Saint Mihiel, where the Germans have pushed a contingent forward.
Thence the front proceeds northward to encircle Verdun, from which fortress it strikes directly westward to Rheims and thence northward across the river Aisne at Berry-Aubert. It follows the Aisne to Soissons and runs from there northwestward, crossing the river Oise at Ribecourt, Roye, Albert and Combes. The two latter places are north of the Somme.
In the west, the wings are in close touch, the Germans holding Lassigny, which lies between Ribecourt and Roye, which are in possession of the French and also Chaulnes, which is in an almost direct line between Roye and Albert.
It is here that the allies have been attempting a wide turning movement, to prevent which the Germans have apparently sent out strong opposing forces. The French announcement says the Germans have continued their day and night attacks, only to be repulsed, but it is evident they are showing plenty of fight and are making a supreme effort to prevent the allies from working around their right.
North of the Aisne, two well-entrenched armies still face each other, neither making much headway, while in the center, the artillery duel continues in the district between the Argonne and the Meuse.
The French claim slight progress—an indication that they are making heavy attacks to compel the Germans to withdraw from St. Mihiel where they might bend, if they do not break the French front.

If we would weave character, we must first separate our ideals from our habits, unless our habits are ideals.—Judge.
coddled yourself until you have become as sensitive as the thermometer to cold is no reason you should do the same this winter. If you can't break away from your old custom you may expect to nurse colds till spring. Don't complain if you have pneumonia or if some member of your family has it. You didn't get ready for winter right.

PRESIDENT'S EFFORTS TO STOP WORLD WAR.

The World Receives With Approval His Action in Issuing a Proclamation Setting Aside Sunday, October Fourth, to be Observed Throughout the United States.—Action Without Precedent.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 1.—The action of the President in issuing a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to pray for peace in Europe, and setting aside Sunday, October 4, as a day of prayer, was received with approval by Christian people all over the world, as well as in our own country. Some of the editorial expressions from leading papers are given herewith:

A NATION ON ITS KNEES

By his proclamation, naming Sunday, October 4, as the day of general supplication, the President, in his own words, has recognized the "special wish and longing of the people of the United States in prayer and counsel and all friendliness to serve the cause of peace."
The purport of the appointment of the day of prayer is felicitously stated by the President "to take action which shall prove conducive to that concord among men and nations without which there can be neither happiness nor true friendship nor any wholesome fruit of toil or thought in the world."

His effort for the world's peace was shown in his attitude in the patient vigil he kept in every exasperating circumstance to maintain a benevolent aloofness toward the combatants in Mexico. Some of those, who, at the time, wanted belligerent action have come to a different way of thinking, as they have read the tale told in Europe from one hideous day to another. It must stir even the consciences of the war-makers and the fire-bringers to know that thousands of miles away a nation is on its knees in prayer that the peace of God which passeth understanding may once more prevail.—Philadelphia Public Ledger (Rep.).

THE DAY OF PRAYER

President Wilson's proclamation calling for a national day of prayer on October 4 for the cessation of war in Europe probably is without precedent in this or any other country. But, if so, it is not the most beautiful precedent that has ever been set in any nation. There are prayers for peace in our prayerbooks, and days of prayer for the speedy termination of wars have been often fixed by official proclamation in countries engaged in them; but for a neutral nation of more than 90,000,000 of people to get on its knees and pray for peace in other countries will be one of the most impressive, as well as one of the most unusual, spectacles ever presented on earth. We believe everybody in the United States will offer up a prayer on that day in the earnest spirit of altruism, which President's message suggests. And if anything can make a path for peace "where men can see none," we believe unselfish supplication from the heart of a great country can open the door of divine compassion.—The Baltimore Sun.

GOOD SENSE

The sentiments expressed in Mr. Wilson's letter to Mr. Doremus will meet with universal approval. The good sense and patriotism of his decision are apparent.—New York Sun (Ind.).

GOD-FEARING AMERICANS

By proclamation, President Wilson names October 4 as a day on which God-fearing Americans are to pray for the restoration of peace in Europe. That his appeal will have a general and fervent response is not to be doubted. That this is to be taken as the beginning of an effort at meditation is reported in Washington, but it is the kind of effort which can hardly obtain diplomatic recognition. Nevertheless the many millions of church people in the United States can offer up their prayers for peace in all sincerity. Peace is earnestly desired by the whole nation.—New York Times (Ind.).

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional treatment, and that is, a remedial. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
