some question about the acceptance of his resignation.

From Villa's headquarters at Jaurez it was announced that General Villareal had been made Provisional President; but this announcement acceptated to be faise, or at least too early. Our government would now welcome the retirement of Caranza, who is said at Washington to have become "impossible." The whole Mexican situation remains a muddle.

sees million bales produced in the South this year, ten millions would now be going abroad but for the war. At the rate the foreign nations are taking Southern cotton, the total expose of the present crop will not equal one-half million bales. It is clearly apparent to any sensible person that the retention in this country of ten million bales of cotton, which ordinarily would have gone abroad has practically destroyed the local market for the remaining five million bales. The surplus of any product fixes the price of the whole. If there is a surplus of cotton, that is more cotton preduced than the trade will take at a reasonable price, the surplus must first be disposed of before normal conditions can be restored. The size of the present crop is not responsible for the existing conditions of the South. If the world's condition was normal the price of cotton would be normal. On acount of this war the largest consumers of raw cotton have practically ceased to buy."
