Upon the affidavits filed by the defendants in this case the court finds that the summons when issued and served was returnable on the first Monday after the first Monday in March, 1915, and as made out was filed in the Clerk's office; that subsequently thereto said summons was taken out of the Clerk's office by Mr. Reiding, one of the counsel for plaintiff, and that when it was filed there after that it had been changed to from the first Monday after the first Monday in March to the second Monday after the first Monday in March, and upon these findings and of facts the court orders that summons be changed so as to read, the first Monday after the first Monday in March, 1915, as it was when originally issued, filed and served. The defendant moves that the action be dismissed for the reason that the summons was returnable on the first Monday after the first Monday in March, at a time when there was no court in and for Randolph county. The motion of the defendant is denied and the defendant accepts. The plaintiff moves to amend said summons so as to make it returnable on the second Monday after the first Monday in March, 1915. Motion is allowed and the defendant accepts.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT GIVES BEST METHODS OF FIRING BOILERS.

Washington, March 21—The Federal Government, in its attempts to be useful to the people has reached out in a new direction, in that it has just issued valuable information to the thousands of stationary firemen throughout the country, telling them the best methods of firing boilers in order to have the least smoke and to get the most heat from their plants. The report, which has just been made public by the United States Bureau of Mines, seeks to meet the needs of the men, many without a technical education, who are employed in small plants of 1,000 to 2,000 horsepower capacity, where the firing is done by hand. The Bureau tells the firemen that the best results are obtained if the fires are kept level and from four to ten inches thick according to the character of the soft coal used and the strength of the draft. The coal should be fired in small quantities and at short intervals. Leveling the burning fuel should be avoided as it means more work for the fireman and also causes clinkers to form. Further, the Bureau claims that while the fireman is leveling the fire, a large excess of air enters the furnace and lowers the efficiency. The Bureau's experts say that the ash-pit door should be kept open and that all regulation of the draft should be made with the damper and not with the ash-pit doors. Ashes should not be allowed to accumulate as they interfere with the distribution of air under the grate. Whenever a coal shows a tendency to clinker, water should be kept in the ash-pit. If the firings are too far apart, say the experts, the coal burns out entirely in spots, allowing a large excess of air to enter the furnace. This prevents the proper mixing of the air and gases and the result is that the gases escape without burning, depriving the boiler of much heat. Jas. T.
