SEVERE PUNISHMENT

Of Mrs. Chappell, of Five Years' Standing, Relieved by Cardui.

Mt. Airy, N. C.—Mrs. Sarah M. Chappell of this town, says: "I suffered for five years with womanly troubles, also stomach troubles, and my punishment was more than any one could tell."

I tried most every kind of medicine, but none did me any good.

I read one day about Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I decided to try it. I had not taken but about six bottles until I was almost cured. It did me more good than all the other medicines I had tried, put together.

My friends began asking me why I looked so well, and I told them about Cardui. Several are now taking it."

Do you, lady reader, suffer from any of the ailments due to womanly trouble, such as headache, backache, sideache, sleeplessness, and that everlasting tired feeling?

If so, let us urge you to give Cardui a trial. We feel confident it will help you, just as it has a million other women in the past half century.

Begin taking Cardui to-day. You won't regret it. All druggists.

WAR AND WORDS

Things we Are Learning From The Great European Conflict.

From the St. Louis Republic.

World war has proved to be an enricher of vocabularies. Terms, like "mobilization" and "moratorium" have become a part of everyday speech since the days of last July and August. The American public, long unfamiliar with such matters, can now distinguish with tolerable accuracy between a cuirassier and a Cosack; the uhlán and the dragoon; a submersible and a submarine. Along with a better and a far more intimate knowledge of European geography has come a habit of making finer distinctions between technical terms. It is curious to note old words like dart, mortar and pilot taking on new meanings.

Primitive man fought with darts. They disappeared from what we were pleased to term modern warfare and they have returned as missiles designed to be dropped from aircraft. Some of the early types of artillery were mortars, but the Germans have given the word a new meaning by their modification of this gun and by putting it to new uses. We have always thought of the pilot as having to do with naval affairs, but the air pilot is one of the biggest factors in the present struggle.

There are certain words, too, coming out of the struggle. Air base is one of these, conguilin is another and trinitrotoluene is, perhaps, the newest. Air base explains itself, while conguilin is a preparation which will instantly stop the flow of blood from a wound. Trinitrotoluene is a fulminate recently perfected. Taube, the descriptive name given the German maniplane, has come to us out of the war along with "territorial" an English term for forces raised for home defense. We are gradually becoming familiar with the fact that when the war cables talk of petrol supplies this refers to plain old gasoline. We are mastering, too, the difference between a pacifist and a pic-a-pou, a Highlander and a huzzar.

Neutrality, too is an old word that has taken on some strange, new and somewhat twisted meanings since the ukians galloped across the East Belgian frontier a few short months ago.

USE OF COVER CROPS TO CHECK EROSION

Where Gutters Have Carried Away Soil and Subsoil to a Depth of Fifteen Feet in Mississippi.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The period of gestation for sows is approximately 112 days or eight days less than four months from the date of breeding. It may vary from this a few days one way or the other. This date should be known to avoid mistakes that may result in the loss of pigs.

As the time for farrowing approaches the sow should be watched carefully, in order that assistance may be given if necessary. The feed at this time should be sloppy and limited in amount. Nothing but lukewarm water should be given the sow during 24 hours previous to farrowing. If she has already farrowed a litter and has been properly fed and cared for during pregnancy, little difficulty may be expected. With young sows, particularly those bred at an immature age, there is considerable risk at this time, not only to the pigs but to the sow herself.

There is a difference of opinion as to the amount of bedding which should be given to the sow at this time. An active sow in comparatively light condition can be trusted with a liberal amount of bedding, but sows which are in high condition or which are at all clumsy, had better be given only a moderate amount of straw.

The farrowing pen should be dry and well ventilated, but free from drafts. Provide the pen with a guard rail made of two by eight planks with their edges against the sides of the pen about ten inches above the bed. These prevent the sow from lying against the partition, and lessen the danger of injury to the pigs. The little fellows will soon learn to creep under the guard rail when the sow lies down.

The management of the sow during farrowing depends largely on the animal and on the weather conditions. Assistance should be at hand if needed but the sow need not be helped if she is getting along nicely. When farrowing occurs during warm weather the pigs are less likely to become chilled and will generally find their way to the teats unaided. During extremely cold weather the pigs will be in danger of being chilled unless the house is heated. To avoid this place a few heated bricks in the bottom of a basket or small box, covering them with chaff or straw, and put a cloth over the top to keep in the heat; unless the sow objects too seriously the pigs may be rubbed dry with a soft cloth and placed in the receptacle as fast as they arrive. They will not suffer if they do not suck for a few minutes after farrowing. After farrowing is over the pigs should be placed with the sow, care being taken that each one gets to a teat. When the afterbirth is passed it should be removed from the pen at once and buried or burned. There is good reason to believe that eating of the afterbirth is often the beginning of the habit of eating the pigs.

Usually the first 24 hours after farrowing, the sow should have no food, but should be given a liberal drink of warm water. If, however, she shows signs of hunger a thin slop of bran and middlings may be given. The feeding for the first three or four days should be light and the time consumed in getting the sow on full feed should be from a week to ten days, depending on the size and thrift of the litter.

After the sow has farrowed it is best for her to be in the open air. Of course, if the pigs are farrowed during the winter months care will be needed, and it may be necessary to let the pigs reach the age of two weeks before turning them out. They can, however, get considerable exercise in the piggery or in the lot with the sow, and there is often a lot adjoining a barn that is sunny and sheltered from the cold winds where the sow and pigs may be turned for exercise. Do not allow the pigs to run out during a cold rain.

Production of Beef Cattle Profitable.

"Do you regard the production of beef cattle as profitable in your country?" This question was asked last year of each county reporter of the bureau of crop estimates of the United States department of agriculture. Answers were received from 1,474 counties. Of these 1,232, or 83.4 per cent, reported in the affirmative; this is, that the production of beef cattle is profitable. Moreover, these affirmative replies covered nearly every section of the United States. In some of the New England states, however, it was regarded as unprofitable, for in the six states from Maine to Connecticut, inclusive, only 45 per cent reported it profitable.

In the group New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, 62 per cent found it profitable. In the South Atlantic states, Delaware to Florida, the percentage is still higher, 84 per cent. In the North Central states east of the Mississippi river, Ohio to Wisconsin, the percentage is higher—89 per cent. The same percentage—89—is reported for the South Central states, Kentucky to Arkansas, being nearly the same in all the states. In the far western states, Montana to the coast, the opinion was nearly unanimous—91 per cent—that the production of beef is profitable.

It may be observed that going from east to west the percentage of those reporting that beef production is profitable increases. This is shown more readily by noting the percentages of a line of states from east to west, as follows: Massachusetts 0 (i. e., 0 reported unprofitable, none profitable), New York 52 per cent, Pennsylvania 74 per cent, Ohio 76 per cent, Illinois 73 per cent, Iowa 88 per cent, Nebraska 86 per cent, Colorado 100 per cent (23 counties all report production profitable), Utah 93 per cent, Nevada 100 per cent, California 77 per cent. It would therefore seem

BIBLES WANTED

"How's your Sunday school getting along?" an official at the State Sanatorium for the treatment of tuberculosis was asked a few days ago.

"Oh, fine," he replied. "We have more interest shown and a better attendance, according to our population, than you folks down at home." Continuing, he explained that every Sunday afternoon, after the rest period, the convalescing patients assemble in the main lobby of the Sanatorium where one of their number, usually a minister or former Sunday school worker, leads in the study of the lesson or in such other devotional exercises as may seem appropriate.

"How about your Sunday school equipment?" he was asked.

"Well, you see it really doesn't take very much," he replied. "A generous friend gave the institution an organ sometime ago. What we need most now is about 75 Bibles."

In this connection he stated that nearly all the patients read quite a bit, for inasmuch as the rest cure requires that they spend a great portion of their time in bed and sitting around, a great many improve their time by reading various books to the extent of about three hundred. The patients read these at the rate of fifty or more a week. Bibles, New Testaments, books, magazines, magazine subscriptions, song books and a subscription for seventy-five to one hundred Sunday school lesson leaflets or quarterlies would be of much value to the patients who are there waging the battle of life and death with the Grim White Plague. Such books or literature, if sent by parcel post to the State Sanatorium, at Sunnortium, N. C., will receive a hearty welcome by the patients.

WILSON AND LINCOLN

The Philadelphia Record makes the forceful reminder that when Abraham Lincoln was chosen President in 1860, at the outbreak of the Civil War, he was in a minority of nearly one million votes as compared with the total vote cast for Douglas, Breckinridge and Bell. He proved to be the man for the occasion. He left behind him when assassinated in 1865 an undivided country and a restored Union. Woodrow Wilson is also a minority President. The outbreak of the war in Europe and the concurrent revolution in nearby Mexico has served to put to an extreme test the competency of President Wilson to steer the Ship of State safely through troubled waters upon world-shaking exigent occasion. So far he has proved to be the right man in the right place. "If he can keep on as he has begun," says The Record, "he will take a place beside Lincoln in the reverent estimation of his countrymen. The fact of his minority vote in 1912 will be remembered, like Lincoln's in 1860, as a providential deliverance in a season of great National peril." This is an original view, and one in which the country will give a large decree of concurrence.—Charlotte Observer.

PREVENT WASTE OF MANURE

Little Thought Necessary to Determine Value of Dairy Herd From Fertilizing Standpoint.

In experiments conducted at the Louisiana station to determine the amount of manure and urine produced by the dairy herd of 20 cows in one year, it was found to be 175 tons of manure and 79 tons of urine. The average amount of manure produced by one cow in a year was 17,500 pounds, a little less than nine tons, and the average amount of urine produced by one cow in a year was 6,955 pounds, or a little less than three and a half tons. It takes little thought to see the value of a cow from the fertilizing standpoint, or to see the profit in preventing unnecessary waste of manure.

Bees Travel Far.

Investigation proves that bees will go from two to seven miles in search of nectar, but not if there is plenty of honey-yielding plants closer home. Colonies should be scattered throughout the orchard at blooming time. One colony for each five acres is probably sufficient, and after blooming time they can be moved to a central location out of the way of passing teams and conveniently located for future manipulation.

TO PREVENT TUBERCULOSIS

Samuel Hopkins Adams in Ladies' Home Journal.

From health officials, from specialists, from anti-tuberculosis social workers, I have collected certain simple tenets which are herewith reduced to rules—ten golden rules for the avoidance of consumption, which are within reach of every one:

- (1) Ascertain and maintain your proper weight.
- (2) Eat plain, digestible food and plenty of it; a good digestion is the very basis of health.
- (3) Breathe deeply, through the nose, and give your lungs a chance by standing, walking and sitting erect. One hundred breaths daily in the open air to the full capacity of the lungs is an excellent safeguard against all lung trouble.
- (4) Sleep outdoors if possible; if not, at least in a room with open windows.
- (5) Learn to rest until you are rested. The woman who is always tired needs a doctor.
- (6) Shun alcohol and "patent medicines"; they trick the body but never aid it.
- (7) Avoid colds—that is, keep your arm's length from persons afflicted with colds. You catch cold not from drafts or air but from another person. Wear reasonable, porous clothing which lets the air in upon the body.
- (8) Exercise moderately and as much as possible in the open. Even damp and soggy outdoor air is better than dry, warm, closed-in air.
- (9) After any minor disease give yourself time to get thoroughly well. Tuberculosis lurks, like a shark, in the wake of the "little sicknesses."
- (10) Watch, but don't worry. Don't wait to be "down sick"; "That tired feeling" means something. Find out what it means in time.

Panaceas for tuberculosis, there is none. The Great White Plague will always claim its quota of victims so long as unsanitary tenements, airless, overcrowded workrooms, and driving labor that gives no respite to the worker are permitted to exist. But if the individual learns the simple lesson of health maintenance, even the worst conditions can be largely offset.

THE LAW ON FIRES

The State Forester has had distributed throughout the State large posters of forest fire warning, and the need of these posters has been sadly in evidence this spring. The season of fires in the woods is now passing and the damage already wrought is beyond repair, but a start may be made in prevention for next spring. The posters mentioned enumerate acts that are misdemeanors under the North Carolina law to be: Leaving any fire before it is extinguished; setting fire to grass land, brush land or wood land, except it be one's own property; setting fire to one's own woods without notifying adjoining owners; kindling a camp fire until a sufficient space has been cleared off around it; leaving a camp fire without fully extinguishing it, and accidentally or negligently starting a fire without extinguishing it. These are provisions of the law passed by the Legislature only two or three months ago and yet it looks as if the forest fires this spring have been more numerous and more destructive than usual. Certainly more dwellings and barns have been wiped out than in previous experiences.—Charlotte Observer.

PADEREWSKI MOURNS FOR POLAND

"The suffering in Poland is greater, very much greater both in extent and degree than is the case in Belgium," says Paderewski, the great Polish musician to newspaper representatives. Further, the distinguished Pole says his country has suffered seven invasions and the ravaged districts are ten times the size of Belgium.

Then, again, he says there are no neutral nations near the borders of Poland who are able and willing to come to the rescue, and that the Poles are a nation of peasants who have not the ready money to flee to a place of refuge, but must stay with their ruined homes and starve until another whirlwind of battle sweeps down upon them.

Continuing, the great pianist said: "I cannot play; I have no time to practice and no heart; I cannot write. I must give my all to save what is left, to save my people. If the people of America had known, I should have no more anxiety. But how can we best bring it home to them? Ten million people starving by minute."

TRINITY MAN ON MOTORCYCLE

Mr. W. F. Ellis, Jr., has an Indian motorcycle on which he frequently goes to his home in Trinity. Mr. Ellis has made the trip, eaten his dinner and returned to High Point in 45 minutes, a distance of five miles.—High Point Enterprise.
