HELPLESS AS BABY

Down in Mind Unable to Work, and What Helped Her.

Summit Point, W. Va.—Mrs. Anna Belle Emey, of this place, says: "I suffered for 15 years with an awful pain in my right side, caused from womanly trouble, and I suffered so very much, that I became down in mind, and as helpless as a baby. I was in the worst kind of shape. Was unable to do any work."

I began taking Cardui, the woman's tonic, and got relief from the very first dose. By the time I had taken 12 bottles, my health was completely restored. I am now 48 years old, but feel as good as I did when only 16.

Cardui certainly saved me from losing my mind, and I feel it my duty to speak in its favor. I wish I had some power over poor, suffering women, and could make them know the good it would do them."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, it will certainly be worth your while to give Cardui a trial. It has been helping weak women for more than 50 years, and will help you, too.

Try Cardui. Your druggist sells it.

ROAD WORK SUGGESTIONS

The United States Department of Agriculture, thru its bulletins on various phases of road-building, problems and in other ways, is aiding materially in the campaign for improved highways that is being waged thruout the country.

In these bulletins valuable information is given on road-building that is of service not only to those interested in the subject in an official way but to individual citizens who desire the best possible roads at the least cost consistent with efficiency. In one of these recent publications some helpful suggestions as to earth roads and split log drags were given. In view of the growing interest in the matter the following extracts from a recent news letter of the department may not be out of place here.

A suitable drag can be made from a log 7 or 8 inches in diameter and from 6 to 8 feet long. It should be carefully split and the halves, with the flat sides vertical and facing to the front connected by stakes. The halves, tho of the same length, are joined so that one end of the rear half is from 16 to 20 inches nearer the center of the road than the corresponding end of the front half. An ordinary trace chain and a set of double trees are then attached in such manner that when the horses move forward the drag will be pulled along the road at an angle of about 45 degrees, with the forward end nearest the ditch in order to move the earth toward the road center.

The drag should be light enough to be lifted by one man. The best material is dry cedar, tho, red elm and walnut are excellent, while box elder, soft maple, elm or willow are superior to oak, hickory, or ash. A platform is usually placed on the cross stakes to strengthen the drag and furnish a place for the driver to stand. After a little practice a man can learn how best to shift his weight so as to make the drag cut, spread, and pack the earth properly.

Filling the ruts by dragging up one side of the road and down the other is all that should be undertaken the first time, but this should be repeated after each heavy rain. As a mile of road can be dragged in a few hours this method of maintenance is simple and inexpensive. If the drag is used in conjunction with the road machine, fairly good earth roads can be built at a small expense. Dragging is done for 50 cents per mile in some parts of the country. At this rate a mile of earth road can be dragged once a month for $6 annually. Some remarkable results have been accomplished with the drag without the aid of the road machine.

CIGARETTE SMOKING

Editor Courier:— Our most intelligent and best read men agree that smoking the little cigarette is not only injurious to the health, but is costing millions and millions of dollars each year and not worth one cent to the smoker. Millions of people are employed where the little cigarettes are made and the tobacco prepared.

As I spent much of my time in Durham I have been informed about the smoking tobacco bags that are made there. The Golden Bell Cotton Mills run full time and their average capacity per day is 29,000 yards of sheeting. Every yard of this is cut up and made into smoking tobacco bags. The young men and little boys do not feel like they have on full uniform when they start to church unless they have a box of cigarettes or a bag of Duke's Mixture and a box of matches.

We do think a crowd of men and boys standing around a church door among ladies and children, puffing smoke from affected lungs is very unbecoming and not to be practiced. A short time ago I was at the home of one of my daughters in Greensboro, and several young people came in for a short social visit. As the day was cold the windows were closed. Some one among the crowd, without asking permission, lit a cigar and began smoking. Soon the room became full of smoke and I got restless. He says, "Mr. Shanks, does the smoke bother you?" I replied that it did very much. He says, "Well, then, you can go out doors until I get through smoking."

I went out and called my friend to come, but he would not come. And well enough he did not come for I fully intended to knock the smoke down his throat. Do not understand that I am condemning the smokers of cigarettes, but only how and where they smoke. No gentleman will get out his matches and tobacco and begin filling the home of anyone without asking the head of the house.

Taking the two bad habits, drinking whiskey and smoking cigarettes, we are satisfied cigarettes are killing more of our youths than drinking whiskey. LONG SHANKS.

Senator Simmons, who is a clever politician and sees good or bad signs afar off was bubbling over with enthusiasm here the other day. He was fresh from the people, and came to the President with a head full of encouraging information. He is very optimistic.

CALAMITY HOWL FINDS NO ECHO

Hard to Make an Issue Against President Wilson.

Mr. H. E. C. Bryant writes interestingly in a recent issue of the Charlotte Observer, on Wilson, and on the calamity howl which some folks are raising but which is finding no echo. He says:

President Wilson has confused the Republicans, and they know not which way to turn. Old time party leaders cannot take the measure of the President. They have no tape-line that will fit him. It is a small matter to compare Roosevelt or Taft to somebody else, but Wilson stands alone, unmeasurable by ordinary methods. He is as quick as Andrew Jackson, as firm as Grover Cleveland, as simple as Thomas Jefferson, and as courageous as Abraham Lincoln. That is a hard combination to beat. The people like a man of convictions, sense, democratic ways and pluck. Wilson has all of these things and more, too.

At first, his opponents tried to belittle him by calling him the "School Teacher President." That effort did not go very far. The President has made a place for the pedagogue in politics; he has convinced the world that a "teacher" can be a great statesman.

The Republicans did not get anywhere with their campaign against "The Teacher in the White House." The "teacher" has cut the dirt from under them by proving himself a teacher of mankind rather than of a school.

Next came the calamity howl, started by that fierce old howler, Uncle Joe Cannon, and taken up by Senator Penrose, both of whom are standpatters of the most pronounced type. At one time everybody thought the President was on the toboggan. His closest friends here feared it was all over. But recently as Senator Simmons has observed, the situation has improved. The calamity howl has reacted. Business is not as good as it would be under normal conditions, but these are not normal times. But the average man of common sense is not holding the President responsible for the effect of the blighting European war. He has come to realize that if he escapes that great conflict with his skin whole, no matter where a portion of his fortune goes, he will be doing very well.

The war of Nations is so far-reaching that sane people conversant with the fact are not kicking because of a few financial setbacks, or discomforts. The prayer now is that President Wilson sit steady in the boat, and keep the United States from the Maelstrom that is hurrying hundreds of thousands of men to death on the battlefield.

President Wilson is going to preserve the honor of the Nation first, and keep us out of war, next. He feels certain that both can be accomplished. He is as far from war as any man in America but he realizes that no man now living ever witnessed such a storm as is now raging over more than half the world.

Republicans of ability see that this country is destined to play quite a different part among Nations from what it has in the past. America is to be greater than ever or will degenerate into a province of some great Nation. Many men of all parties rejoice daily that such a strong man as Woodrow Wilson, with generations of intellectuality, sturdiness and character behind him, is in the White House at this time. They feel safer with him than they would with some trimming politician.

Just before Congress quit there were indications that the Republicans would try to make the attitude of the President toward the Mexican struggle an issue. That fell flat at the outset. Very few Americans are worrying about the citizens of the United States who are still in the country. If the President had his way he would re-establish constitutional Government in Mexico, and see that every man has protection for person and property. He has done the best he could under the circumstances.

The Republicans will have to find a better issue than they have trotted out yet before they can win in 1916. The President is stronger than any party. He is at least a neck ahead of his own organization. Were an election held today he would lead the ticket.

Senator Simmons, who is a clever politician and sees good or bad signs afar off was bubbling over with enthusiasm here the other day. He was fresh from the people, and came to the President with a head full of encouraging information. He is very optimistic.
