THE LAMB OF GOD If ye call on the Father, who without respect of person judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear; forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot.—I Peter i, 17-19.

Traveling Man's Experience. "In the summer of 1888 I had a very severe attack of cholera morbus. Two physicians worked over me from four a.m. to 6 p. m. without giving me any relief and then told me they did not expect me to live; that I had best telegraph for my family. Instead of doing so, I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and take no substitute. I took a double dose according to the directions and went to sleep after the second dose. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my stopping point, a well man but feeling rather shaky from the severity of the attack," writes H. W. Ireland, Louisville, Ky. Obtainable everywhere.

HIGH POINT ASKS FOR ROAD TO ARCHDALE Through the board of directors of the Manufacturers' Club the county commissioners of Guilford have been notified that the business men of High Point want the two miles of road promised High Point to be constructed from that city to Archdale. Some time ago the commissioners promised High Point at least two miles of road to cost $10,000 per mile, located wherever the people wanted it.

WISHED SHE COULD DIE And Be Free From Her Troubles, but Finds Better Way.

Columbia, Tenn.—"Many a time," says Mrs. Jessie Sharp, of this place, "I wished I would die and be relieved of my suffering, from womanly troubles. I could not get up, without pulling at something to help me, and stayed in bed most of the time. I could not do my housework.

The least amount of work tired me out. My head would swim, and I would tremble for an hour or more. Finally, I took Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I am not bothered with pains any more, and I don't have to go to bed. In fact, I am sound and well of all my troubles."

Cardui goes to all the weak spots and helps to make them strong. It acts with nature—not against her. It is for the tired, nervous, irritable women, who feel as if everything were wrong, and need something to quiet their nerves and strengthen the worn-out system.

If you are a woman, suffering from any of the numerous symptoms of womanly trouble, take Cardui. It will help you. At all drug stores.

CARE IN HATCHING EGGS ESSENTIAL

Artificial Brooding of Chicks, Showing Arrangement of Outdoor Brooders.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When it is noted that a hen sits on the nest for two or three nights in succession, she is ready to be transferred to a nest, which should be prepared for her beforehand. This nest should be in a box and composed of straw, hay, or chaff for nesting material. Dust the hen thoroughly with insect powder each week while setting. In applying the powder hold the hen by the feet, head down, working the powder well into the feathers, giving special attention to regions around the vent and under the wings. The powder should also be sprinkled in the nest. The nest should be in some quiet, out-of-the-way place on the farm, where the setting hen will not be disturbed. Move her from the regular laying nest at night. Put a china egg or two in the nest when she is set and place a board over the opening so that she cannot get off. Toward evening of the second day leave some feed and water and let the hen come off the nest when she is ready. Should she return to the nest after feeding, remove the china egg or eggs, and put under those that are to be incubated. In cool weather it is best to put not more than ten eggs under a hen, while later in the spring one can put twelve wise many hens remain on the nest and brood the chickens for at least twenty-four hours after the hatching is over. Chickens hatched during the winter should be brooded in a poultry house or shed, while the outside weather conditions are unfavorable; after the weather becomes settled, they should be reared in brood coops out of doors. Brood coops should be made so that they can be closed at night to keep out cats, rats, and other animals, and enough ventilation should be allowed so that the hen and chicks will have plenty of fresh air. Hens will successfully brood ten to fifteen chickens in the early breeding season, and eighteen to twenty-five in warm weather, depending upon the size of the hen.

The hen should be confined in the coop until the chicks are weaned, while the chickens are allowed free range after they are a few days old. When hens are allowed free range and have to forage for feed for themselves and chicks they often take them through wet grass, where the chicks may become chilled and die. Then, too, in most broods there are one or two chicks that are weaker than the others, and if the hen is allowed free range the weaker ones often get behind and out of hearing of the mother's cluck and call. In most cases this results in the loss and death of these chicks, due to becoming chilled. The loss in young chicks due to allowing the hen free range is undoubtedly large.

Chickens frequently have to be caught and put into their coops during sudden storms, as they are apt to huddle in some hole or corner where they get chilled or drowned. They must be kept growing constantly if the best results are to be obtained, as they never entirely recover from checks in their growth even for a short period. Hens should be left with the chicks as long as they will brood them.

Dusting Hen With Insect Powder Before Setting, to Kill Vermin.

To fifteen, according to the size of the hen. If eggs become broken while the hen is setting, replace the nest with new, clean material and wash the eggs in lukewarm water so as to remove all broken egg material from them.

Many eggs that are laid are infertile. For this reason it is advisable to set several hens at the same time. After the eggs have been under the hen for seven days they should be tested as to whether they are fertile or infertile. Infertile eggs should be removed and used at home in cooking or for omelets, and the fertile eggs should be put back under the hen. In this way it is often possible to put all the eggs that three hens originally started to sit on under two hens and reset the other hen again. A good homemade egg tester or candler can be made from a large shoe box or any box that is large enough to go over a lamp by removing an end and cutting a hole a little larger than the size of a quarter in the bottom of the box so that when it is set over a common kerosene lamp the hole in the bottom will be opposite the blaze. A hole the size of a silver dollar should be cut in the top of the box to allow the heat to escape. An infertile egg, when held before the small hole with a lamp lighted inside the box, will look perfectly clear, the same as a fresh one, while the fertile egg will show a small dark spot, known as the embryo, with a mass of little blood veins extending in all directions if the embryo is living. The testing should be done in a dark room.

If the eggs hatch unevenly, those which are slow in hatching may be placed under other hens, as hens often get restless after a part of the chickens are set, allowing the remaining eggs to become cooled at the very time when steady heating is necessary. Hens should be fed as soon as possible after the eggs are hatched as feeding tends to keep them quiet; otherwise many hens remain on the nest and brood the chickens for at least twenty-four hours after the hatching is over. Chickens hatched during the winter should be brooded in a poultry house or shed, while the outside weather conditions are unfavorable; after the weather becomes settled, they should be reared in brood coops out of doors. Brood coops should be made so that they can be closed at night to keep out cats, rats, and other animals, and enough ventilation should be allowed so that the hen and chicks will have plenty of fresh air. Hens will successfully brood ten to fifteen chickens in the early breeding season, and eighteen to twenty-five in warm weather, depending upon the size of the hen.

The man who has feed, but who hesitates to invest in cattle or sheep, either because of the high initial cost or the uncertain prospects at selling time, may occur the idea of feeding young horses or mules. The war is having fully as great an influence on the horse and mule business as on the market for meat animals. Seemingly, therefore, the present time is most propitious for buying young mules. They may be bought $25 to $35 lower than usual, and when they are three or four years old there is every reason to believe they can be sold for $25 to $50 a head more than in an ordinary year heretofore. Growing mules will have a greater value than usual during the next two or three years, in case owners want to borrow money on them.

In buying mule colts, it is advisable to buy females. The cotton trade pays $15 to $25 a head more for mare mules than for males, because they are better shaped and look more trim. Mare mule colts will cost $5 or $10 a head more than males. Railroad contractors and mine workers prefer male mules because they can stand more work, but the cotton trade preference for females overbalances this demand to the extent indicated. Kansas and Missouri are the greatest surplus mule states. At the present time it is possible to buy any reasonable number of weaning mule colts within a radius of 100 miles, or less, of Kansas City, in a comparatively short time. Missouri possesses about 250,000 mules, Kansas something less than 300,000. Each of the cotton growing states has between 200,000 and 300,000 mules, Texas more than 500,000, but they raise comparatively few mules.

Raise All Your Feed. While it may be better to use some mill feeds during the winter, profitable dairying can be carried on with farm raised feeds alone. The man who has plenty of alfalfa hay and good corn need not worry about not having the elements of a balanced ration. If in addition he has silage, he can afford to forget about the mills and their products.

Save the Best Heifers. Good cows are scarce. Save the best heifers and grow them into big, useful cows.

QUEER QUIRKS OF NEWS

Lents, Ore.—Mrs. E. E. Hatter, of this place, is a grandmother at 33 years. She is the mother of Mrs. Sture Johnson, to whom a son was born recently.

London, Eng.—The story is going around that a certain "Sister Susie," knitting socks for soldiers, placed a note in the toe of one of them. Her brother is said to have received the note and sock at the front.

Homer, Mich.—Jacob L. Lyon, 85, claims to be the oldest active blacksmith in the United States. He is as active as his assistant who is 40 years his junior.

Rome, Ga.—After waiting 41 years for the return of her husband, Mrs. Georgia Trumbull, of Ringgold, has asked for a divorce. She says she started to apply for a divorce in 1900, but as she had sworn to "stick to" her husband, decided to wait a little longer.

Boston, Mass.—George M. Bridges in an accident had 14 severe fractures, multiple internal injuries, a displacement of the collar bone and a displacement of the heart which is now lodged in the center of his chest. Owing to the man's remarkable vitality, physicians say he will recover.

Washington, D. C.—Uncle Sam has ordered express companies in "dry" territory to transport alcoholic beverages for the animals and troops of the government despite the State law, whenever such beverages are labeled "Government property." The decision was made in an Arizona case, which State is one of the "dryest."

Longview, Miss.—Mary McCain, 13, evangelist, claims to have died, gone to heaven and returned to life, and her parents bear her out. They say she had no pulse, heart had stopped beating and her body was cold and rigid. Mary claims that, in heaven, God held one hand over her head and bade her preach; that she saw angels with arms and wings outspread and that God led her back to earth. Pastors in Louisiana and Mississippi are begging the child to conduct revivals in their churches.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This is a remedy that every family should be provided with, and especially during the summer months. Think of the pain and suffering that must be endured when medicine must be sent for or before relief can be obtained. This remedy is thoroughly reliable. Ask any one who has used it. Obtainable everywhere.

OUR STATE HISTORY

Some Test Questions Showing How Familiar It Is to All North Carolinians.

- To the Editor: Your recent editorial quoting a New York paper as saying that all North Carolinians were familiar with their history, serves at least to bring to mind how little we know about it. The following test questions are taken from grammar and high school examinations in this State and can easily be answered by anyone who is familiar with the history of the State. How many can score a grade of 100 on it? 1.—Name the Governor of North Carolina who was kidnapped? 2.—Name the Governor who was hung? 3.—Give particulars of the incident wherein a Governor was escorted to the southern boundary line by his constituents and ordered to never return? 4.—Name the Chief Justice of the State who resigned and went home and accepted an appointment as justice of the peace? 5.—Tell about the woman who was thrice married, once to a Governor of Virginia and twice to Governors of North Carolina? 6.—Tell why the boundary line between North and South Carolina runs due north and south for several miles at one point? 7.—Give the particulars of the time when all the members of the Supreme Court, the Governor and one Senator were all from the same county? 8.—Give the particulars of the time when both Senators, the Governor and one Justice were from the same county? 9.—Name 10 great North Carolinians who died before 1900? 10.—Give the main facts about the insurrectionary State that was organized within the borders of North Carolina? —BRUCE CRAVEN, in Charlotte Observer.

A WORD FOR MOTHERS

It is a grave mistake for mothers to neglect their aches and pains and suffer in silence—this only leads to chronic sickness and often shorter life. If your work is tiring; if your nerves are excitable; if you feel languid, weary or oppressed, you should know that Scott's Emulsion overcomes just such conditions. It possesses in concentrated form the very elements to invigorate the blood, strengthen the tissues, nourish the nerves and build strength. Scott's is strengthening thousands of mothers—and will help you. No alcohol. Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.
