THE TWO-PARTY LINE

(By Edna Collamore.)
I cannot call the butcher—
Mrs. Adams has the line;
She is telling Mrs. Tucker
That her marmalade was fine.
Bids her hold the wire a moment
While she looks for pen and paper,
Then repeats the rule quite slowly
So that no word may escape her.

I cannot call the grocer—
Mrs. Adams has the wire;
She is asking Mrs. Leonard
How much silk she would require
For a bodice and a girldie
And a tunic minaret.
Here I pause to write a letter,
I return—she's talking yet!

I cannot call the fisherman—
Mrs. Adams has the phone;
Just to chat with Mrs. Spencer
Hearing she was all alone.
Asks if she would bid two royals
On five ranged from Jack to deuce;
But I don't my hat for market;
I surrender—what's the use?

WEEKLY WEATHER FORECAST

Issued by the United States Weather Bureau, Washington, D. C., for the week beginning Wednesday, August 11, 1915:

SPECIAL NOTICE—There is a tropical disturbance over the southern Windward Island section and weather for the territory east of the Mississippi River is largely dependent upon the movement of this disturbance. At present indications are as follows:
For South Atlantic and East Gulf States: Thunder showers for several days, followed by fair weather the remainder of the week; reasonable temperatures.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

Deputy Sheriff C. H. Lucas, of Union township, was in town Monday bringing with him Jimmie Overton and Carl Luther, two boarders for the jailor. Overton and Luther were arraigned before Squire Cox, at Pisgah, Monday morning, for making themselves too free with Jim Hill's rail fence Saturday night having torn down one hundred and forty-four panels and in the meantime using rocks as means of defense with the accuracy of a machine gun against Mr. Hill and the members of his family who attempted to repel the invaders. They were bound over to court and failing to give bond were sent to jail.

THE STATE PRESS

News and Observer.

We do not believe that in the many years in which we have had knowledge of newspapers in North Carolina that we have ever seen the papers of the State conducted in a more able and progressive manner than is now the case. This is a condition which applies both to the weekly, the semi-weekly, and the daily papers of the State.

We talk of the progress being made in North Carolina, and there may well be cited as one evidence of this the papers of the State. They have a healthy look, and as a rule, they go at things with a vim, and the exception is getting to be a poorly printed paper. In this, as well as in the general make-up of the papers there has been a marked advance.

In a marked degree the editorial columns are being handled with a spirit which shows that the men in charge are in love with their work, a thing which is making itself felt in their utterance. In the weeklies we find there are in number of cases definite plans for advancing the interest of their counties being followed, and that editors are speaking out fearlessly for the promotion of progressive measures.

The press of a State is a good index of the people of a State, and judged by this the people of North Carolina are making a steady and substantial advance. There come into the office of the News and Observer every week almost every paper published in the State, and it is a source of gratification to say that in our opinion, as a class, they measure up with the best in America.
