Mr. Sheffield was at one time one of the leading farmers of his section but for the last few years has depended mostly on renting out his lands. He was never married and has lived by himself for many years and prepared his own meals and seemed to enjoy himself not caring for any of the luxuries of the day. He always enjoyed having his friends call on him and showed to them his hospitality in this simple way of life and while he was considered rather close in dealings, yet any one calling on him while in need was never sent away wanting.

Mr. Foust, our county farm demonstrator, was exhibiting Monday a bunch of soja beans grown by Mr. John Reightsell on his farm near Rameur. The plants, which were of the Mammoth late variety, were more than three feet in length and were at about the proper stage of maturity to be cut for hay. Mr. Foust had a bunch of the early Hollybrook variety which had matured. For early sowing with peas or to make forage for hogs this early variety is the best since it produces more beans and less hay. The late variety is best adapted for hay. This variety of soja beans may be sown in rows, cut later with a reaper for hay and another fall crop such as clover or oats be sown after the cutting. Wherever in the county these beans have been sown they have given satisfaction. Mr. Foust is optimistic over the outlook for future sowings.

The school house, which also serves as the meeting house for church services, is under its care; clean-up day for the community was instituted by its members, and in addition to this outside work a regular program is followed at each meeting. IN MEMORIAM

Martha Carolina Jones Curtis was born Jan. 13th, 1882, departed this life Sept. 23rd, 1915. J. W. Curtis and Martha C. Curtis were united in marriage May 15th, 1903.

There were born unto them five children, four of whom still survive. On Jan. 25th, 1905, the angel messenger came and carried little Edith away and Feb. 18th, he came and took Aunt Lou Curtis, again he came, on Sept. 23rd, and carried away the mother and wife. The messenger has come into this home three times in one year. This is unusual.

Sister Curtis became a Christian very early in life, and joined the church at Gray's Chapel, later moved her membership to Liberty where she continued to live a consistent Christian life. When a girl she was an active Christian worker. She was a devoted wife and mother. Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Madison Jones, of Gray's Chapel, husband and children, and many friends and relatives are sadly bereaved, but they can look through the shadows, and see the light of a blessed immortality, and expect to meet her in the mansions above. Liberty church has lost one of its best members, the community one of its best women. The funeral service was held on Sept. 24, 1915, in Liberty M. P. church, conducted by her pastor, and assisted by Revs. W. C. Kennett, Sprull, Willis, (last two Baptist) and Rev. J. A. Ledbetter assisted in the singing. There was, perhaps, the largest gathering ever seen in Liberty on a funeral occasion. Many and beautiful were the floral designs. The beautiful and impressive service of the Eastern Star was performed at the grave. Bro. Curtis and his four little children have the sympathy of their many friends and relatives.

THE DEMOCRATIC BRAND

The Federal Reserve Banking Act is the mudail of the present prosperity in the South. The good price of cotton is founded on it as on a rock. It was knowledge of the facilities of such a banking system that placed the farmers in a more advantageous position than they have held since the Civil War. It made them independent of the market, or it might be said that it made the market dependent on them. Cotton authorities and newspapers that are engaged in efforts to explain just why the cotton market is in such a healthy shape at this time must have found the explanation first of all on the Democratic banking and currency law. All these years past the Republican party had it in its power to give the country this same condition of prosperity, but stubbornly refused to change the banking and currency laws so as to conform to the changed conditions of the country. The prosperity now prevailing is of the Democratic brand, and there is no getting around that fact.—Charlotte Observer.

WHAT KANSAS WOMEN DO

Kansas is the women's free State. When women find their status in other States is confining their inalienable rights, let them try the Sunflower State: Here are some of the things women can do legally in Kansas:

Can take back her maiden name after her husband dies, without legal process or legislative act.

Can keep her own name when she is married.

Can persuade her husband to take her name and give up his family name, if she does not like it.

Can keep her maiden name, and her husband can keep his name.

Can retain her maiden name for business transactions and use her husband's name for social affairs.

If wife does not like either her name or her husband's, they can take a name that suits them better.

A woman can wear men's clothing without restriction, except that she must not pose as a man.

She can vote at every election.

She can hold any office in the State and run for Congress.

In other words, a woman in Kansas can do anything, almost, a man can do, and some things he can't.

IN 1916.

Any way they may figure it, the prospects remain distinctly of a discouraging nature for Republican hopes in 1916. The National Republican party is surrounded by innumerable troubles, chief of which is the absolute lack of a leader. They have cast about in vain for a man who would stand the last chance against Wilson. The next acute trouble is the lack of an issue. The Democrats can well afford to stand pat on their tariff, currency and trust bills and even on the President's Mexican policy, and it is going to be safe on National defense. The World's Work for October gives an impartial review of the issues for the next campaign and it makes out a promising case for the Democrats. The only possibility is that the Democratic party may have National defense as an issue for the Republicans—and that alone. The full dinner pail is out of date. The Republicans cannot use Colonel Bryan in any way as an asset, and "anything that might have been made out of the Mexican situation has lost its importance in the shadows of our dealings with Germany." Moreover, as The World's Work sees it, "Republican personalities have suffered from the lack of the dignity and power of office. There are no inspiring figures of men or prime leadership. In a year many things may happen but at present there seems to be no figure on the horizon that in any way bulks with the personality now in the White House." The beauty in this situation is that it is so hopeless true the Republicans are robbed of even the small pleasure of giving denial to it.—Charlotte Observer.
