The first county teachers' meeting for the term will be held in the graded school auditorium Saturday. Paul Jones, State lecturer for the Jr. O. U. A. M., will deliver an address on adult illiteracy and its elimination. It is of especial importance that every teacher in the county be present.

Plans are being perfected for the opening of moonlight schools in this county early in November. The first lesson to be used in teaching these schools will be published next week. Encouraging reports are coming in and the prospects for a large number of these schools are excellent.

Those who spent Sunday at A. C. Cox's were Mr. and Mrs. William Altenderfer, of Trenton, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Cox, of Lexington; Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Birkhead, of Asheboro; Misses Nova and Kate Styres, of Asheboro, and Messrs. Troy Lewallen and Wyatt Church, of High Point, and Mr. Wm. Cox.

Work will begin Monday on the erection of the new brick building for the Seagrove Hardware Company at Seagrove. A part of the material has already arrived and the excavations for the foundations are being made. In addition to the store building itself a large brick warehouse will be constructed. The building will be located on the lot between D. A. Cornelison's store and the Southern depot.

Quite a number of friends and relatives of Mrs. Jesse Hinshaw gathered at her home in North Asheboro Sunday to celebrate her 45th birthday. A long table was spread and all present enjoyed the occasion. Rev. Mr. Thompson was present and conducted the devotional exercises.

A handsome public drinking fountain, the gift to the town by Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Armfield, is being installed on Fayetteville Street near the Bank of Randolph. The town will furnish the water for the fountain which will supply both man and beast. The town has long needed a public drinking fountain and the generosity of Mr. and Mrs. Armfield is to be commended.

Mr. S. L. Mitchell, a civil engineer of Brooklyn, N. Y., has purchased a house and lot at the corner of Main and Academy streets from Mr. S. B. Stedman. Mrs. Mitchell and children will reside here this winter and the children will attend the graded school. Mr. Mitchell's purpose in locating his family here was that his children might take advantage of the good school. Mrs. Mitchell is a sister of Mrs. E. E. Clark.

The streets of the town are being greatly improved by the top surfacing of crushed rock which is being placed on the main streets. This crushed gravel is brought from the rock crusher east of town. The side ditches are being cleaned also. When all this work is completed the streets of the town will be in very good condition and there will be less of the mud which we have had in winters past.

Frank Rogers, the 17 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Rogers, of Randleman, was struck by the pilot of the engine while attempting to pass in front of Southern passenger train No. 38 in the North Danville, Va., yard Sunday and fatally injured. Quite a little excitement was created in town this afternoon about one o'clock when the roof of Mr. R. C. Johnson's residence in South Asheboro caught fire from the stove flue. The flames were extinguished quickly and only a few shingles on the roof were burned.

County Farm Demonstrator Foust reports that in the Ramseur section more than twice as much crimson clover has been sown this year than ever before. The clover is looking fine and the prospects are good for an excellent crop. Farmers all over the county are realizing the benefits of this great legume and those who have grown it heretofore are sowing more this fall and many of those who have never sown any before are putting a few acres in clover this year. Wherever it has been sown the results are so excellent that our farmers see it to their advantage to put as much land in clover as they can conveniently.

Mr. and Mrs. William Altenderfer, of Trenton, Mo., are visiting relatives in this county. They are expecting to be here quite a while and before their return will visit the old Cox homestead known as the Ascaith Cox place in the southeastern part of the county. Mrs. Altenderfer is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Michael Cox, who once lived in this county, but moved to Missouri in 1854, in the days when hundreds of people from the East journeyed to the newly opened lands of the west to make their fortunes. In those days the journey westward was made overland in wagons, and several families with what household articles, farming tools, and stock it was expedient to carry went together. Usually about three months time was required to make the journey. Mr. Cox lived in Missouri until his death in 1882, at the ripe age of 82 years. Mrs. Cox, who was a daughter of John Graves, who lived in the southwestern part of Randolph, died in 1889, being then 62 years of age.
