Don't Complain

(John A. Sleicher in Leslie's.)
The world is fuil of complaints. Some complain of ill health, many of ill fortune and most of all ill inck.
A pound of pluck is worth a ton of luck. It is not a perfect world. Who is well every day throughout the year sithout an ache, a pain or a cough?
Who is perfect in physique, in temper, in deed and word and conscience?
What man or woman is without a weakness or reason at times for misgivings or cause at times for repentance?
It is a world of foibles, fads and fanatics. If we were all perfect, the preachers would be needless. Heaven would be on earth.
There is comfort in the thought that the striking differences we find among me and women make the world attractive. If all were alike, the montony would be unbearable.
Think of these things when you feel like repining over ill health, ill fortune, ill treatment, or ill luck.
Misery loves company and there are always "others."

The Journal of Commerce reports that interest is manifested in the New York flour trade in the report regarding the demonstration of "war bread" ing the demonstration of "war bread" suggested to conserve the food supply. This bread is made by a mixture of 15 per cent of cottonseed flour with wheat flour. By using this bread it is estimated that 115,000,000 bushels of wheat could be saved yearly, and the nutriment of bread doubled. While whole cottonseed flour bread is t strong there is no doubt that be made of a mixture of the by would survive the war and itself as a standard article this country.
