Fall Term Completed With Examinations Well Behind Local Students

Attendance Bad For The Last Few Days

Honor Roll Students Who Have Achieved Standards Of Excellency, 4th Month

The fall term of the Asheboro school is over with examinations safely behind and a good beginning on the spring term's work, according to Reginald Turner, superintendent of the school. Attendance has held up very well during the fall and winter months until this week when the attendance has been so impaired that it may react on the number of teachers assigned the local school for next fall...

The average result of examinations is fairly satisfactory as is the report from the standard test plan throughout the elementary school, revealing a general improvement over the tests of past years. The majority of the high school students passed also, with the usual number of failures due chiefly to lack of application...

The honor roll students for the fourth month, marking the completion of half the year's work, are listed herewith: First grade, No. 1: Mary Ella Hall, Mildred McPherson, Maxton Elliott, Ralph Jones, Wade Page, Marshall Russell, Melva Gray Burrow, Louise Johnson, Inez Lamb, Peggy Morgan, Hilda Mae Prevest, Mary Jane Ross, Sara Jean Schaeffer, Lovetta Jane Smith, Fred Smith, Betty Sue Miller, Beulah Mae Moore. Model Laundry Will Open In Asheboro On Monday, February 17

The Asheboro laundry, closed since June, 1933, when C. C. Harrelson stopped operation, has reopened. G. Robbins of Burlington, who has been in the laundry business for the past fifteen years, has taken over the local plant and plans to open on Monday. Operating the City Laundry in Burlington for many years, Mr. Robbins is thus qualified to operate a first class establishment in Asheboro. He is in town this week and is personally superintending the installation of the machinery, which is up-to-date in detail. Mr. Robbins plans to use all local help, he states. Monday, February 17, is set for the opening date of the laundry which will be called the Model Laundry. Mr. Robbins plans to operate a first class plant in Asheboro.

Lewis O. Sugg, One Of Three Remaining Veterans, Dies Mon.

Passes At Erect Home Where He Has Spent Most Of His Ninety Years Peacefully

Funeral Wed. P. M.

A Lieut. Colonel In Confederate Army. He Was Able To Re-count Interesting History

Lewis Osborne Sugg, one of Randolph county's three remaining Confederate veterans, died at his home at Erect Monday noon, after a lingering illness. Despite the fact that "Uncle Lewis" as he was generally known, was more than 90 years old, he was remarkably both in mind and body until the past six months. Since that time, he has been in very feeble health and his death was not unexpected. "Uncle Lewis" was born and bred in Randolph county, a son of the late M. A. and Tempa Spinks Sugg, of that community. With the exception of a period of approximately two years during which he was in the Confederate army, his entire life was spent at Erect.

At the age of 18, in 1863, Mr. Sugg enlisted in the Confederate army, becoming identified with the arsenal at Fayetteville. He was a member of Company E, Second North Carolina Battalion. He served successively at Fayetteville, Wilmington, in Virginia, and at Walden. When Fort Fisher was captured by the federal forces the young Confederate soldier was at Fort Caswell. He was in the Battle of Bentonville. Mr. Sugg had a very retentive memory and his reminiscences of those war days were quite interesting. He was a lieutenant colonel in the North Carolina division, United Confederate veterans. Surviving Mr. Sugg are: his wife, who was the former Miss Annie Tysor, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Tysor of Montgomery county; three daughters, Mrs. H. E. Teague, of Erect; Mrs. C. C. Horner, of Graham; and Miss Mary Sue Sugg, who is a student at Elon college; two sons, Clay and Wayne Sugg, of Erect, and five grandchildren. Mrs. Flora Brady of Greensboro, is a niece of Mrs. Sugg, and Ray Boyd of Greensboro, is a great-nephew. Funeral service was held Wednesday.

Randolph Doctors Are Dinner Guests Randolph Hospital

The medical society of Randolph county composed of the doctors of Asheboro and the county, were guests of the Randolph hospital at dinner Monday evening. The dinner was served in the hospital dining room, which was decorated especially attractively for the occasion. Prior to the meal, a brief business session was held and a few matters of interest to the doctors and to the hospital as well, were discussed. In the absence, due to illness, of Dr. C. S. Tate of Ramseur, president of the group, Dr. W. L. Lambert acted as chairman. Dr. Soady, regular secretary, had charge of the outside business matters of the organization.

Mysterious Death Of 5 Hound Dogs During This Week

Causing a considerable stir in West Asheboro this week was the finding of five dead hound dogs. The odd part of the incident was that the dog's heads were apparently chewed off, as were several feet and legs of the animals, to say nothing of a hip for good measure. There are several theories concerning the mysterious death of these animals. Some claiming that there were distinct tracks in the snow of some large animal that either hopped or walked on two feet, while other have circulated a report that a panther or lion or bear is at large. Some claim that it is a case of "dog eat dog"—but the strange case is yet unsolved while the dogs lie dead to speak for themselves.

Virgie Saunders, 14, Dies Unexpectedly Ramseur Saturday

School Again Closes For The Week Because Of Bad Weather And Impassable Roads

Personal Happenings

Dr. C. S. Tate And Thomas E. West Show Improvement After Prolonged Illness

Ramseur, Feb. 12.—Miss Virgie Alleta Saunders, 14, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Saunders, died at the home of her parents Saturday afternoon after an illness of two weeks of pneumonia. She appeared to be improving, but suddenly grew worse and passed away in a short while. Surviving, in addition to the parents are two brothers, Clifford and Ervin Saunders of Ramseur. The funeral service was held Monday afternoon at Pleasant Hill church, Rev. John Kidd conducting the service was assisted by Rev. J. W. Williams of Ramseur. Many beautiful flowers were borne by the schoolmates and little friends of the deceased. The school is closed for the week, pursuant to the order of the county superintendent, T. F. Bulla. It is hoped that the severe winter will be broken by that time so that school work may progress successfully the remainder of the term. Dr. C. S. Tate and Thos. E. West show some improvement in their extended illnesses. Both these good men hold a very warm place in the hearts of Ramseur people, and their many friends are keenly interested in their recovery. Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Brower of Asheboro were visitors at Ramseur Monday. Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Trogdon of Greensboro spent Friday night with relatives in Ramseur. Mr. and Mrs. Tatum spent the week-end with relatives at Greensboro. J. W. Williams, Jr., of Brevard college faculty spent some time here this week with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Williams. Miss Margaret Williams of Elon high school faculty also spent the week with them. Mr. and Mrs. John M. Foust of Mt. Vernon Springs spent some time here this week at the bedside of her father, Dr. C. S. Tate. Joe Harris Marley is returning from Randolph county hospital this week, following an operation and treatment there. Julian Brady went to Charleston, S. C. Saturday, returning Sunday.

Mrs. Alexander At Home

Mrs. Kemp Alexander, who has been a patient at the Randolph hospital since an automobile accident ten days ago, has been removed to her home on Sunset avenue where she is recovering satisfactorily.

ASHEBORO HAS THREE HONOR STUDENTS U. N. C.

Citizens of Asheboro may well be proud of three honor students at the University of North Carolina, according to reports of the fall quarter from that institution. Miss Eleanor Anne Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hammond; W. A. Bunch, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bunch; and Frank Burkhead, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Burkhead, are honor students from Asheboro.

Green Gables Burns Early Sunday Morn With Enormous Loss

A fire early Sunday morning destroying Green Gables, a filling station and lunch room north of Asheboro, was a surprise to the people of Asheboro. Since there was no city hydrant near enough to merit the presence of the fire truck, there was no alarm given. The property, valued at $3,000, was owned by Mr. and Mrs. P. V. Freeman. The equipment was estimated at around $800 with a total insurance coverage of $1200. Teague and Lawing were operating the place at the time of the fire. The origin of the fire is unknown. It started, however, upstairs. There are two theories advanced as to the origin, neither of which can be substantiated. The possibility of a careless cigarette is one idea and defective wiring is the other.

Congressman Lambeth Of North Carolina Defends Late Walter Hines Page

Defends Ambassador

Replies To Charges Made Last Week By Congressman Tinkham Of Massachusetts

"Traiterous" Conduct Was Tinkham Charge

Mr. Lambeth's Reply Is Lengthy And Eloquent In Defense Of Fellow Tar Heel

Some days past, Representative Tinkham, of Massachusetts, arose on the halls of congress and declared that the late Walter Hines Page, ambassador to Great Britain under the Wilson administration, conducted himself "traiterously." Congressman Tinkham referred to conduct of the Ambassador while acting as America's emissary. At the time, Congressman J. Walter Lambeth of Thomasville, representative from the eighth district, but formerly appointed from the old seventh, to fill the unexpired term of the late Congressman Wm. C. Hammer, of Asheboro, arose and defended his dead fellow Tar Heel, saying he would say more later. On Monday, therefore, Mr. Lambeth came to the session of congress ready to defend the name of Mr. Page. Referring to Congressman Tinkham's remarks concerning the pre-war days when Page in London was in the minds of many associated with the Col. House, Secretary Lansing and the Morgan interests in efforts to bring this country into the war on the side of the allies, at the time that Secretary Bryan, Claude Kitchin, house leader in those days, and the late Representative Robert N. Page, were as ceaselessly striving for peace. But Mr. Lambeth, after a study of the war-time history, acquits Mr. Page, the then ambassador, of a British bias, which, critics have said, made it impossible for him to be neutral during the critical period when he was presumably pursuing that kind of policy. Mr. Lambeth said, in part: "In the generation just preceding mine, a family by the name of Page contributed five brothers, all of them distinguished for public service. No man in North Carolina would dare rise in any public forum or write upon paper which might meet the eyes of the public any intimation or insinuation or innuendo attaching upon the character and honor of those five brothers. Four of them now sleep in the church yard of Old Bethesda, near Aberdeen, N. C. One of them represented for 16 years in this body the district which I now have the honor of serving. Some of the older members will recall the quality and teammanship of Robert Newton Page. "Mr. Speaker, I would that I had time this morning to pay tribute to the life and character and public service of Robert Page, but time will not permit. On some other occasion I hope to have the opportunity to pay fitting tribute to him. "Another brother who distinguished himself for public service was Frank Page, for years chairman of the state highway commission for North Carolina. Under his chairmanship more than $100,000,000 was spent for construction of a system of modern highways throughout the state. Mr. Lambeth then eulogized the other brothers, all dead save one, J. R. Page of Aberdeen, and concluded his lengthy discourse with: "Mr. Speaker, having stated the philosophy of the gentleman from Massachusetts and his mongrel allies who would have this country become a second rate world power and not..." Randolph Library Opens Formally On Monday Eve., Feb. 10

A large crowd of interested visitors were present for the opening of the Randolph public library on Monday evening. Things were ready for the opening, even to the newly installed telephone for the convenience of patrons desiring information. A varied and interesting collection of books makes the library a popular place for booklovers, young as the venture is. Many donations have already been made by the public and will yet be projected by those in charge of the project. The most recent donors include: Woman's Club, $10; Eastern Star, $5; Fox Laundry, cleaning covers for furniture; Herbert W. Jackson, of Richmond, (son of the late Mrs. Elvira Jackson-Moffitt of Randolph county); $25; Russell Parks, paint for book shelves; G. R. Kennedy, service on telephone; John Frece, plastering; L. F. Ross, table; Grady Garner, signs; books by Mr. and Mrs. John K. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Smith, H. P. Corwith, Eldon Garner, Frank Harper, Dorothy Burroughs, Iola Lowdermilk, Mrs. Tom Lassiter, Mr. and Mrs. Laurin Cranford, Mrs. Maud Allred, Bob and Billy Allred.

MR. AND MRS. INGOLD WILL CELEBRATE 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Ingold of Asheboro will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary Tuesday, February 18, 1936. This golden wedding celebration will be in the form of an informal at home between the hours of 3 p. m. and 9 p. m. at the home of their daughter, Mrs. H. B. Cousins and Mr. Cousins at 315 North Fayetteville street. Friends are invited to call during these hours. A. H. Kearns III A. H. Kearns of Mechanic has been confined to his home for the past two weeks on account of illness. Mr. Kearns is 92 years old but remarkably active for one of his age. He is the father of Mrs. J. Watt Burkhead and Lee M. Kearns of Asheboro. The last report regarding Mr. Kearns' condition was much improved.

Home From Florida

W. C. Hammond has returned from a month's stay in Florida. Mr. Hammond made the trip by motor, visiting several points of interest in the State.

National Boy Scout Week Is Observed By Asheboro's Troops In Fitting Way

This week is national Boy Scout week and the two troops of Asheboro are paying special attention to the work and program laid out by the national leaders. Randolph county is in the Uwharrie district council with Bunn Hackney of High Point, scout executive. A rural scouting committee was named by the district officers, composed of three members: Cleveland Thayer, Dr. Cothran G. Smith and T. Fletcher Bulla. Troop organization committee members are L. H. Pierce, chairman, and Lester Monroe, both of whom are scout masters for Asheboro troops. There is a colored scout troop in Asheboro.

Franklinville and Central Falls each have a troop. The two Asheboro troops are number 24 and number 25, registered in the Uwharrie council and participate in the jamboree as well as the summer camp. During the past year, group good turns include the collection of clothing for needy families; directing visitors during the state fox hunter's meeting in Asheboro, and helping to collect and distribute toys to needy children during Christmas. Troop number 24, is led by L. H. Pierce and meets each Friday evening at the Baptist church. The troop (Please turn to page 3)
