The Charlotte News of Sept. 7, contains the following piece of news about one of Brevard's boys: "Mr. Clyde A. Duckworth, a member of the firm of C. H. Robinson & Co., has been admitted to the bar as a young attorney. Mr. Duckworth is at present manager of the retail book store of the above firm and will not give any of his time to the practice of law at present but later will be associated with his father who has been practicing for over 20 years."

Salmon in the Hudson. That salmon were plentiful in the Hudson 200 years ago is attested by an entry in the log book of Juet, the mate of Hudson in the Half Moon, which sailed up the North river on Sept. 15, 1609. The record says: "The morning was misty until the sun arose; then it cleared. So we weighed anchor with the wind at south and ran up the river twenty leagues, passing by high mountains. We had a very good depth, as six, seven, twelve and thirteen fathoms and great store of salmon in the river."

RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

Last Saturday night J. M. Kilpatrick met with an accident that came near terminating fatally. In company with his wife and one of his daughters he was driving from home toward Main street when his horse suddenly took fright, got beyond control and dashed up North Caldwell street. At the same time Mrs. W. H. Allison and her son Haskell were driving down Caldwell street, returning home from town. Mrs. Allison heard the approaching vehicle and drew to one side as far as possible to let it pass. Mr. Kilpatrick's buggy dashed into Mrs. Allison's, throwing that lady out, was itself turned bottom upward and dragged some distance up the road. Mrs. Kilpatrick was thrown out, but Mr. Kilpatrick was imprisoned under the upturned buggy and dragged with it. When the buggy was righted by the unevenness of the ground, Mr. Kilpatrick was found in a badly injured condition. He was taken home and very soon several physicians were on the spot.

Mr. Kilpatrick's wounds were very serious, and at first appeared almost fatal. Nearly all the injury was suffered by his face. The nose was crushed, the cheek bones broken, and nearly all the upper teeth knocked out. Breathing was rendered very difficult on account of the copious flow of blood in the nostrils. The skillful work of the physicians, however, together with Mr. Kilpatrick's indomitable pluck, pulled him through the first dangerous effects of the shock and laceration of his face, and by the next afternoon he was resting comparatively easily. It is now hoped that he is on the road to sure recovery, though the marks of the terrible accident can never be wholly obliterated.

Neither Mrs. Kilpatrick nor Mrs. Allison was seriously hurt by the collision. Mr. Kilpatrick's daughter jumped from the rear of their buggy before the two crashed together. Haskell Allison also made a fortunate jump and so escaped injury. Both the buggies were pretty badly smashed in places.

PAYNE-MULL.

Sunday the 13th at high noon, at the bride's home in the presence of a large crowd, was witnessed a very beautiful wedding. The happy parties were Miss Rachael Mull and Mr. William H. Payne, Rev. J. F. Starnes officiating. Miss Mull is the daughter of Mrs. Sarah Mull and the late J. C. Mull, of Darns Rock township. Mr. Payne lives in Piedmont, S. C., where he and Mrs. Payne will make their home.

UNCLE ZEKE'S NEWSPAPER.

We are pleased to receive this week the first copy of The Herald, a newspaper published at Forest City, N. C., and edited by C. V. Fowles and G. L. Hiott. Mr. Fowles is well known to the readers of this paper, and is warmly remembered in this office, where he spent many an hour and did many a lick of work. He was "Uncle Zeke" here, and we see that he is "Uncle Zeke" there, and that Uncle Zekeism crops out with undiminished flavor.

The Herald is well gotten up, has an opening editorial full of common sense, newsy local paragraphs, and a corner of "Uncle Zeke's" own, which is redolent of his peculiar and original thought substance. We shall welcome The Herald as a regular visitor to our table, and wish for it a successful career.

An Admission.

Waters had just come in from his club. He appeared to be in the best of humor, and his wife soon found out why.

"You've heard me speak of Sellers, haven't you?" he asked.

"That man that knows such an awful lot about the tariff?" ventured Mrs. Waters.

"The man who talks so much about it," corrected Waters. "Well, we had a long argument about it this evening, and I came out away ahead."

"You did?" exclaimed Mrs. Waters, surprised.

"Yes; I got him to admit that he knows no more about it than I do."—Exchange.

Not Good at Riddles.

A lawyer was questioning a new client, a widow, the other day, about her history. "My history," she replied, "is simplicity itself. My first was the happiness of my life, my second was goodness itself, my third"— "Excuse me, madam," interrupted the attorney, "but really we aren't here to guess charades."

Sagacity Recognized.

"Our forefathers who framed the constitution were men of mighty intelligence." "Yes," answered Senator Sorghum. "I am sometimes tempted to believe that they knew as much about the constitution as some of the lawyers who have since interpreted it."—Washington Star.
