FRIDAY, MARCH 26, 1915

Judge Forsythe announces that just as soon as he can get a certified copy of the non-shipment law that went into effect March 8th, he is going to have an old-time revival in the recorder's court, that there will be a big lot of mourners, and that they will all see the light before the session closes. In this work of suppressing the liquor traffic by the stopping of the shipments through the express and freight offices the recorder should have the united support of the best element of the county. The new law has been declared constitutional by a number of eminent lawyers in various parts of the state, and it is believed by many that at last the good people of the county have a law that will be upheld by the Supreme court.

If the present course of the Jackson County Journal is pursued much further there is grave danger that its veracity may be questioned. Last week it contained a well written letter from a man who admitted to being one hundred years old and that he took a five-mile walk every morning (presumably before breakfast) and also the casual statement that the editor and a friend had strolled from Sylva to Andrews, a distance of sixty miles, in the space of a day. We'll have to be shown.

While some of our citizens are not altogether pleased with the recorder's court, it is a significant fact that a large section of Jackson county wants to join Transylvania because they are impressed with the good work of this court, and this is given as the principle reason for their wanting to be transferred.

And now some wag will doubtless say that the interior of the court room was re-decorated in honor of the large number of defendants who are expected to come in and explain why they have to have the juice that cheers.

Bringing American soldiers as prisoners of war to an American port is enough to make the proud eagle bird, this nation's public emblem, goon behind the washboard and scratch for worms.

Despite the fact that there is not a more penurious man in the world than Secretary Bryan, several children in Washington presented him with a petition for peace two and one-half miles long.

Count von Bernstorff "believes" Berlin will pay for the sinking of the William P. Frye. The count might have made it even stronger than that.

Strange as it may seem, newspaper pictures of noted women who have been saddened by war always present them smiling.

ROUND TOP SCHOOL

Round Top school will close on Saturday, April 3rd. On Friday afternoon, April 2nd, the pupils of the school will have their closing exercises, and on Saturday night there will be educational addresses that promise to be of interest. Mr. J. L. Osteen, the teacher, expects to secure the services of Mr. F. K. Poole of the Fruitland faculty for one of these addresses and of Mr. A. E. Mitchell of Penrose High school for another. A "tie party" and refreshments will follow the speeches, and the money derived from these sides will be used for needed school purposes. An invitation is given the public to attend these exercises.

LISTEN, MR. SPENDTHRIFT

You have been told how to start saving with us when the time comes. Anything you do not understand fully will be explained by us. Just pay your dues regularly each week and everything will work automatically. A very important thing you want to impress on yourself is to keep your dues paid promptly. Let this go over for a few times, get behind and interest begins to lag. The farther behind you get the harder it is to catch up. For your own good, regularity and promptness are two essentials you must cultivate and practice.

Remember we started Saturday, March 29th, and that you can get as many shares as you can conveniently carry. Next time we will give a purpose for saving.

MRS. STONEWALL JACKSON DEAD

Mrs. T. J. Jackson, widow of the great Confederate leader, Stonewall Jackson, died at her home in Charlotte on March 24th. Funeral services were arranged to take place at the First Presbyterian church on Thursday, after which the body will be taken to Lexington, Va., accompanied by a military escort, and laid to rest beside her husband and daughter.

SHUFORD BARNETT

Mr. S. L. Barnett and Miss Maude Shuford were married last Wednesday morning at the bride's home near Penrose. Rev. C. M. Carpenter officiating. The wedding was attended by only a few guests. The bridal tour will be taken in an automobile to Spartanburg. Both bride and groom are well and favorably known in their own and this community.

THE MARCH SKYLAND

The Skyland Magazine, although its editorial office has been removed to a considerable distance from the land of the sky, still retains the atmosphere and color of the mountains in much of its work and is still ornamented as to its cover page with the picture of the mountain herds. The March issue has a number of interesting articles and stories.

Mr. Hilliard Booth takes up the subject of conservation in the form of a story entitled "Four Men and a Nymph in Pisgah Forest." A series of spirited dialogues takes place between the nymph, Conservation and the lumberman who would despoil her, the mountaineer who only remembers that her resources were once his, the tax collector who thinks she is defrauding him, and the public-spirited citizen who has caught something of the vision that inspires her.

A poem by Mrs. Anna Colebrook draws its inspiration evidently from local surroundings. It is called "The Song of the Hills," and the author has caught the music of the waters in her verse. The third song of the hills is heard in the last stanza:

"Bound by the law of created things
 On this hill of dirt,
 It falls as it runs;
 But the higher law that the stream obeys
 Is the need to praise
 Father and when it darts out of wings—
 And the soul of the river soars and sings."

DEATH OF MRS. W. D. JACKSON

Mrs. W. D. Jackson died on March 18 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cobe, at Rosman. She was the wife of Rev. W. D. Jackson, an aged and retired Baptist minister. The old couple came to Rosman a few years ago and made their home with Mrs. Cobe.

Mrs. Jackson was seventy-six years of age. She had been a sufferer for some time. She was a member of the Baptist church at Rosman and was a woman of lovely Christian character. Two surviving daughters, besides Mrs. Cobe of Rosman, and one son reside in Buncombe county.

The aged minister and wife so recently separated, had lived together for forty-eight years since their marriage.

The funeral took place on Saturday, March 20, at Carr's Hill church, and the services were conducted by Mrs. Jackson's pastor, Rev. J. N. Lee, of Rosman.

Mrs. Rebecca Jackson, wife of Rev. W. D. Jackson of Rosman, N. C., was born February 21st, 1839, and died March 18th, 1915. She was married the 21st of February, 1857, to Rev. W. D. Jackson, and to this union five children were born, four living and one dead.

She professed saving faith in Christ when she was only ten years old and joined the Missionary Baptist church, of which she remained a faithful member to the day of her death. To know her was to love her, for she always met her friends with a cheerful spirit and talked of the things of God. She believed in the religion of our fathers and often shouted the praises of God.

Her death was a triumph, a victory, such as can only be achieved by the servant of God. "Well done." A Funeral.

INSTITUTE NOTES

The second program of the Sidney Lauer society was given at the institute Auditorium Saturday night. It was an excellent program, exceptionally well rendered. The opening chorus by six girls and six boys entitled, "It's a long way to graduation," set to the air of "Tipperary," was sung with much spirit and was very amusing. The other numbers of the program were well received, but the feature of the evening was the "Pink Rose Drill," by eight young ladies. There are drills and drills, but this is as pretty a one as is often seen, and it was gracefully and accurately performed.

Miss Lura Beard, who was taken to Asheville last week to undergo an operation for appendicitis passed through the ordeal safely and is doing nicely.

The Adoption society will give its second program Saturday night the 27th, at the Institute Auditorium. There will be an admission charge, except to regular patrons of the school and old members of either society.

The Shakespearean play, "As You Like It," will be given on Monday night, April 5th, at the Brevard Amusement Co's. Auditorium. In spite of unprecedented hindrance, owing to frequent changing of cast, on account of illness and other causes, it is believed the presentation of the play will be fully up to the standard already established by the students.

The usual circulars, giving the synopsis of the play, etc., will soon be issued.

Mrs. Julia Frowbridge, who has been ill with the grip, is convalescing rapidly.

CHURCH GROUPING

Rev. R. P. Smith of Asheville preached last Sunday morning at the Presbyterian church. Although the weather was unfavorable quite a number from this place and the Davidson River community attended the services. Mr. Smith preached a strong sermon from the text, "What think ye of Christ?"

As secretary of the home missions committee of Asheville Presbytery, Mr. Smith met with the officers of Brevard and Davidson River churches after the morning service to discuss plans for the possible uniting of the two churches in a group to be served by the same pastor. All the officers present were in favor of such a union, and a report of the conditions will be brought before the spring meeting of Presbytery, which will probably make an official grouping of the churches.
