THURSDAY MARCH 23, 1894.

Some of our exchanges says there are two things that a North Carolina legislature won't go against and that is the yaller dog and Joe Daniels.

The Progressive Farmer and Goldsboro Caucasian are forever giving Cleveland and the Democrats down the country. They both harp all the while about the promises the Democrats have made and failing to carry out, but never do you see a word against the Republicans and they have been running the affairs of the country for 30 years and never kept a promise yet, although the editors of these two papers have not found it out. They are too busy looking after the Democrats. They make wonderful charges about how the third party was counted out in Sampson and other sections of the State when they know they can't sustain it. But it is very natural when a man gets bob-tailed he thinks and wants everybody else the same way.

Sundays Chronicle, of the 12th, gives quite an interesting article on the adoption of a State motto by our legislature of 1893. Both houses passed the bill by a unanimous vote. The bill says the words 20th of May 1775 shall be placed in the upper part of the State Coat of Arms. This is a just recognition of the effort of our forefathers in their effort for the first declaration of American Independence. The act also provides that the Latin phrase "Esse Quam Videri" is adopted as the States motto, and shall be engraved on the Great Seal of the State and at the bottom of the Coat of Arms.

The meaning of these words are "to be rather than seem to be," this is quite a suitable and typical recognition of the honest and true character of our people.

"E Pluribus Unum," as every school boy knows, is our National motto, meaning "one among many." Every State has now we think adopted a motto, and almost every one is a Latin phrase, from the simple fact that Latin terms are shorter than English. Therefore most Literary Societies use Latin phrases for their mottoes, and the same thing is found on nearly all medals:

"Curiosity has been stimulated to learn the origin of the phrase. It is first found in Cicero in his essay on Friendship (ch. 26) though it is not there used in the sense now usually attached to it. He says, "Virtute enim ipsa non tam multi praediti esse quae videri volunt," "the truth is that virtue is a quality which not so many desire to possess; as to desire to seem to possess" or literally, "for indeed not so many wish to be endowed with virtue as wish to seem to be."

"The phrase, however, is a striking one and being caught up was adopted as a motto. In that best collection of mottoes extant, the coats of arms of the British peerage, no less than three noble houses have adopted it, to wit: The Earls of Winterton, Earl Brownlow and Lord Lurgan.

"It has been adopted by many associations, especially literary societies. In this State it is said to be the motto of one of the societies at Trinity College, and with modification by one of the societies of Wake Forest.

"The sentiment and the phrase are good enough. Let North Carolinians now make it as memorable and as distinguished as any that has ever decorated a royal banner or the shield of a courtly knight. Among our sister States it can proudly take its place between the Sic Semper Tyrannis of Virginia, and the Animus Opibusque Parati, of South Carolina."

The Progressive Farmer says some member of the lower house of the General Assembly found the State motto, "Esse Quam Videri" on a bottle in a drug store and it was adopted without any of them knowing what it was. Why don't the all Wise Editor of the Progressive Farmer tell us then?

Before D. E. Green, J. P.,
T. B. Crowder and N. M. Rand, trading as Crowder and Rand vs
J. S. Holt,

It appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that the defendant, J. S. Holt, is a non-resident of the State of North Carolina and he cannot after due diligence be found within the State—that he has property therein and it further appearing that plaintiffs have a cause of action against said defendant, it is therefore ordered that notice of this action be published once a week for six weeks in THE CENTRAL TIMES, a newspaper published in the town of Dunn, N. C., notifying the defendant J. S. Holt to appear before the undersigned on Saturday the 25th day of March, 1893, at 12 o'clock m. at his house in Hectors creek township to answer or demur to the complaint of Crowder & Rand for the non-payment of the sum of thirty-one dollars and thirty-two cents with interest due by note. And let the defendant take notice that if he fails to appear and answer or demur to said complaint the relief demanded therein will be granted. This 11th day of Feb. 1893.
