CUTTING DOWN EXPENSES.

"The Billion-Dollar Congress" went into history "unwept unhonored and unsung," and largely because of its wanton extravagance and waste of the people's money. It only spent a billion dollars, but it made contracts from which there is no escape which prevent radical reductions for years to come. It was, therefore, nearer a two billion than a billiondollar Congress. It spent a billion dollars itself and compelled succeeding Congresses to spend another

The Republicans 1 ad two objects

1. To buy the voters by giving hem big pensions, large bounties. and in other ways where appropriations do good.

2. To make the expenditures so great that a high tariff would be ecessity in the future. They boased that no future President should lemand tariff reduction as a means of getting rid of the "surp us," but eft a hole in the ground where that surplus had been,

The Democrats have no been nig-(ardly. They have been compelle! carry out the partly completed contract of the Republican adminisration. But in spite of the difficul ies the first session of the Fiftyhird Congress has effected a saving of thirty million dollars in its budge of public expenditures. This is no mean saving in one session. It was rats addressed themselves was the not secured without effort and devotion to the interests of the taxpayars Inis is but an earnest of the stead reductions the Democrats will mak when the incubus of Reed's contrac. is removed. The De nocrats have at the first session of congress, substituted a sound, conservative and id not prevent the Democrats going provident appropriation act for the arward slowly and surely in the fuls thoroughly unsatisfactory and extravagant system of the Harrison rule Does not this entitle them to the hanks, confidence and continued support of the people? It would take too much space to enter into the details of the saving effected. There is nardly a bureau where economy and business meth ods have not taken the place of ex travagance and waste. And the Democrats have only made a begin ra of economy and justice, free from ning. The next Congress will show still greater reductions in the appro-

In the matter of pensions alone the reduction has exceeded twenty-five million dollars. When Raum went out of office as Commissioner of Pen sions he stated in his official report that it would require fifteen million dollars more than had been appropri-

These facts show that the maximum of the number of pensioners on he rol's at any one time and the amount of money expended for pensions during any one year has finally been reached. Moreover, there willie a steady decrease both as to th number upon the rolls and money expended from now on, In other words the pension business is near ion, or an average of 286,806 per ear, the number filed during this dministration has been but 74,714. r an average of less than 50,000 per ear.
