Glad to see Mr. B. R. Hood, out again. Mr. D. A. Coats, township constable, was summoned to arrest one colored girl about 15 years old for striking an old woman about 70. Coats spent Sunday in Johnston. Capt. Daniel Stewart of Stewarts Academy spent Sunday in this section. That beautiful and charming young lady, Miss Diley Bailey of the Stewarts Academy section spent part of last week in this community. We are under the impression the writer's time was pretty well taken up attending weddings, parties etc. Did you attend the party Saturday night? There was a party, but it happened to be parties who were disappointed. Come again boys. The school taught at this place by Mr. O. H. Biggs closed last Saturday with a large attendance and good exercises. Mr. McLean was expected to be present and deliver an address, but was engaged in legal business at the time. JOHNSTON COUNTY NOTES.

LEACHBURG, N. C., March 19-'95. Little fair weather and cool weather pines after so much rain. I failed to get up any notes last week. Glad to see that prince of good fellows, Mr. Joe Williams of Barclayville section in our midst Saturday. We understand that there lives a young man in the Poe's section that likes concentrated lye as a beverage. Misses Mollie and Jennie Bailey of the Stewarts Academy section spent Sunday in this section. Elder and Mrs. J. T. Coats spent Sunday in Johnston. Capt. Daniel Stewart of Stewarts Academy spent Sunday in this section. That beautiful and charming young lady, Miss Diley Bailey of the Stewarts Academy section spent part of last week in this community. FAIR VIEW INSTITUTE.

On Thursday night March 7th, '95, the writer together with many others had the pleasure of attending the concert at F. V. I., which was quite an enjoyable occasion to the attentive audience. The exercises opened with a piece of music, "The ages to come." That beautiful and highly accomplished lady, Miss V. I. Culbreth performing most gracefully on the organ, the pupils joined in singing and made some of the best music the writer ever heard. The house was full to its utmost capacity, and it the weather had been fair there would have been many more. The girls especially to be praised as a whole seem to rival each other in appearance, also the boys, did their part with honor to their beloved teacher and themselves. The teacher gave an opportunity to the patrons to speak a word, Mr. H. L. Ball rose and as usual, made a short, pointed and very appropriate speech, in which he expressed himself as highly pleased with the exercises, assuring the teacher of his faith in her as a trainer of the young and tender minds which has been instructed to her watch-care, which was the sentiment of each one's heart, also asking the pupils to keep their books before their minds. Then came the last and prizing song, which was very appropriate indeed, after singing it the teacher announced that the congregation be dismissed, after which we saw both pupil and patron rushing towards the teacher, with tears in their eyes offering her their hand, wishin' her well. I think that all this speaks to us who know both Miss Hall and her pupils that she has been kind and tender in her dealing with her pupils and has the good will and confidence of all. I now ask the pupils to take the advice Mr. Hall give them, and as you have parted again, going out to mingle with the pursuits of life, may the guardian angels of heaven lay a hand of protection on each one and may you all be spared to meet your kind teacher when she returns to "F. V. I." again. J. A. S. Falco, N. C.

Byrd spent several days in Fayetteville last week and returned Saturday. A number of the young people of this section attended the school close near Troyville Saturday. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather last Friday night the Academy at Buie's Creek was filled with eager spectators to hear the lecture by Dr. Chas. E. Taylor, president of Wake Forest College. His lecture was able, and instructive to all who heard it. His subject was "The make up of a man," and was well delivered. A number of recitations and declamation were delivered by the students. All who attended report a good lecture and good time. SNOOKS.

Benson Sparks.

The weather was so inclement none of the Benson people were able to attend the lecture at Buie's Creek Friday night. We were very glad to see Mr. J. M. Beatty of the Smithfield Herald in town Monday. Wonder how he got along walking to Dunn. I see our farmers have at last decided to use guano again this year from the quantity of it coming here. Several of our people expect to attend the unveiling of the Confederate Monument at Bennettsville. FETE.

When Mr. Butler began politics in Sampson county. He was so fine and honest that he advised his followers not to vote for a corporation or railroad lawyer. But as he branched out in the field and saw hopes of reaching the U. S. Senate by changing his opinion he worked and voted for Pritchard and all the republicans, that was on the Fusion ticket. Oh! its wonderful how a man can twist and squirm himself when he gets after an office. PETTINGILL & CO. Newspaper Advertising Agency, 22 School St. Mutual Rec. Bldg. Boston, Mass. N. Y. City
