HELIOTROPE FOR INDOOR CULTIVATION. Although the heliotrope is a tender plant, extremely sensitive to cold, it is one of the best plants for cultivation indoors. It seems to have few diseases, and is usually free from insect enemies, while with abundant water and sunshine and sufficient artificial heat it will bloom all winter long year after year, and is so tenacious of life that when cut down to a mere stick it quickly shoots forth luxuriant new wood. In addition to all this, the more the plant is pruned the more luxuriantly it blossoms. The blassoms should be cut with a considerable length of the new wood upon which they grow, and if at once fully immersed in water and then placed in a deep, well-filled vase they remain fresh and odorous for many days. The plant is a little difficult for amateurs to propagate from cuttings, though with plenty of water and sun and some bottom heat the young cuttings quickly root and prosper .-Chicago Herald.

HOW TO OIL A FLOOR.

Get boiled linseed oil (raw oil will do but not so well), writes H. Horner. Stir into it enough vellow ochre to make it the consistency of cream. Add half a pint oi Japan dryer; stir all well together and apply with a medium-sized paint brush. Begin at the washboard and work your way towards the center of room, leaving a way to work out toward the door. Keep off the floor for a day or two. No doubt some places in the floor will be much worn. These spots might have a thin coat put on a few days before the entire floor is painted and oiled, and as they will be rough the mixture will be absorbed so rapidly that little or no care need be taken to keep off this first coat. If it is simply desired to oil the floor omit the yellow ochre. If you want a dirty brown color to hide stains use twothirds or three-fourths ochre and onefourth burnt amber. Either of these colors in a dry powder will do, but it is better to buy them ground in oil. Be sure to mix well before using, and stir with a stick now and then while applying. The ochre alone will give nearly the color of new pine boards. It fills the rough places in floor much better than oil only. The floor will wear longer, be smoother and wipe up and kept so. They are more cleanly, Removes the cause by purifying and enrich- are more easily cared for, are healthier

BIRDS THAT LIKE TO DANCE

FROLICSOME LITTLE SONGSTERS AND THEIR QUEER ANTICS.

The Gaudy "Cock-of-the-Rock" Performs a Stately Minuet-Dancing Rails and Marching Lapwings. N reading books of natural history we meet with numerous instances of birds assembling at the same spot to indulge in antics and dancing performances, with or withont the accompaniment of music, vocal or instrumental; as for instance, drumming, tapping and smiting of wings, whip-cracking, fan-shutting, grinding, scraping and horn-blowing sounds, produced, as a rule, by the quills.

A striking example of the solitary dance is the Rupicola, or "Cock-ofthe-Rock," of tropical South America. A level and mossy spot of earth, surrounded by bushes, which make it secluded, is selected, and this must also be clear of sticks and stones. The birds all assemble around this area, when a "Cock-of-the-Rock," dressed in his vivid and scarlet plumage, with a flaming crest, steps into the center, and, with spreading wings and tail, begins a series of movements as if dancing a minuet; finally, carried away by excitement, he leaps and gyrates in a most astonishing manner, until, becoming exhausted, he retires, and another bird takes his place. The rails, a species of bird common to Europe and North America, are great performers. First, one gives three powerful cries, one immediately after another, and to this invitation the others reply by note. In a few moments all the bidden guests arrive in the open space and the performance is begun instantly. It is nothing short of a tremendous screaming concert. One long, piercing shriek is succeeded by a lower note from another bird, and this is repeated several times and followed by calls resembling half-smothered cries of pain and moans of anguish. While screaming they rush madly about with outstretched wings that beat the air violently, and with their long beaks open wide. This exhibition last three or four minutes, after which the assembly breaks up peacefully.

The display of lapwings, called by the natives of La Plata, its "Square," or "Serious Dance," requires three performers. The birds indulge in it cleaner. All our floors are painted all the year round, and at frequent intervals during the day, and also on moonlight nights. One bird leaves ing the blood, giving to it just those qualities and look so much better. We have his mate and approaches two others, who welcome him with notes and signs

The Power Inside a Piano.

The general notion of what happens in the interior of the piano when the finger presses a key may be conveyed in the simplest terms. Would you believe that the power developed when the strings of your piano are tuned to the proper pitch equals energy sufficient to raise twelve tons one foot from the ground? If it has ever been your misfortune to be present when the string frame of a piano was fractured, the above statement will require no confirmation. A thunderbolt scarcely makes a greater uproar, an earthquake causes little more destruction. The writer happened to be playing on one occasion, with what, in his conceit, he imagined to be great effect. He felt he was being admired by the men and worshiped by the women, when, as he brought his fingers down for a magnificent finale, he instantly found himself upon the floor with the piano stool on his stomach, while the piano itself presented a wreck of keys, lids, mechanism, and serpent-like wires. Struggling to his feet, dazed, his stuttering questions as to what in the name of all the gods and demons had happened, were answered by a finger pointing to the ruins of what had ont a been a very fine parlor-square. -Detwrest's Magazine.

of pleasure. Advancing to the visitor, they place themselves behind him, and all three, keeping step, begin a rapid march, uttering resonant drumming notes in time with their movements; the notes of the pair behind being emitted in a stream like a drum roll, while the leader utters loud single notes at regular intervals. The march ceases, the leader elevates his wings and stands erect and motionless, still uttering loud notes, while the other two with puffed out plumage and standing exactly abreast, stoop forward and downward until the tips of their beaks touch the earth, and sinking their voices to a murmur, remain for some time in this posture. The performance is then over, and the visitor returns to his own ground and mate, to receive a visitor himself there later on during the dance.

The chief amusements of magpies and jackdaws are their thieving habits and love of mischievous tricks; but their cousin, the jay, is the most persistent practical joker in the feathered world. He loves to hide in a clump of bushes near a spot where many birds are enjoying themselves with a concert or dance, and to frighten them almost to death by screaming like a hawk. Of course they scatter in all directions, and the little wretch who has caused the disturbance sits still and cackles to himself with apparent delight.

Give every man a chance, and if he loses give him another chance.

"I am 48 years old and have always lived in New Portland. I enlisted in the army in 1862 as a private in Company A, 28th Me. Volunteers. My army experience injured my health to some extent, although I worked at blacksmithing some part of the time, when suddenly, several years ago, I was prostrated with what able physicians pronounced Locomotor Ataxia. At first I could get around somewhat, yet the disease progressed quite rapidly until I had hardly any feeling in my legs and feet, they felt like sticks of wood and I grew so much worse that I could not move for three years without help, as my neighbors and friends could testify. I employed several physicians in my vicinity, and elsewhere, and they all told me that medieines would not help me, that they could do nothing to effect a cure, and that in time I should become entirely helpless. I became discouraged. I was a great care to my wife and friends. Shortly after I met an old army comrade, Mr. All. Parlin, a resident of Mad-
