Either the Caucasian or the progressive Farmer one, bears a resemblance every week. The Caucasian says in bold type that it has a larger circulation than any two weeklies published in the State, and the progressive Farmer says on its right hand corner it has the largest circulation of any paper in the South Atlantic States. Which one now must be the water? Confess your sins and ask for pardon or ye shall surely be damned.

 The Atlantic Coast line have an "ad" in this issue. The rates to the Exposition are exceedingly cheap. First class accommodations is given. Board and room can be secured in Atlanta at moderate price. The Alhambra House which is located on Peach Tree street, said to be one of the prettiest streets in the world, offers splendid accommodation cheap. Let all who can get ready and go.
 The following delegates and visitors attended the Cape Fear Conference of the Free Will church, which convened with Johnston Union in Johnston county last week: Messrs. W. P. Collier, J. K. Norris, W. A. Colville, R. M. Parker, Daniel Faircloth, Erasmus Lee, W. M. Pope, I. W. Taylor, G. W. Wade, Rev. A. L. Lee and R. C. Jackson, Wm. Byrd, H. W. Jernigan and some whose names we failed to get.
 We are informed on good authority that Creed Smith a colored farmer just over the Sampson line has made and housed this year 4-500 pound bales of cotton 150 bushels of potatoes, 35 barrels of corn, 30 bushels of peas, 6 stacks of fodder and will fatten 15 or 16 hundred pounds of meat, and did not use a dust of guano. All this was made on a one horse farm. Who will say there is no money in farming!
 We often wonder why it is that people will subscribe for a Georgia or a Northern paper and send the money in advance and will hardly pay their home sheet at the end of the year. No man in a town or county but what gets some benefit directly or indirectly from his local paper yet if the smallest thing don't suit and the editor is not with them on every point, they both get severe criticism or accusing. The county will never make the advancement and strides forward till our people learn to work together, patronize each other, trust and confidence home enterprises instead of foreign, then success will begin to dawn in our land.

The Association.

We went to the Little River Association last week—Prof. Clifford and ye Editor. We cannot say that we created any great sensation on our journey except that which should be credited to the steed which we drove, whose long strides and camel-like swing more closely resembled the movements of one on roller skates than anything else we can think of just now; nor can we claim to have made any sensation after we reached our destination unless it was made by the relish with which we destroyed a considerable portion of the sumptuous feast with which the good ladies literally covered the ground shortly after our arrival.
The Association was well attended, the speeches were in the main, of a high order, and while very few of the recognized leaders of the denomination were present, the members of the Association showed that they were well able to take care of their own business, and in an admirable manner, to push forward the great work committed to their trust. No feature of the session was more noticeable than the excellent singing conducted by Prof. Rogers. The choir showed thorough training and did much to render true Prof. Campbell's words; "This has been the best session of the Little River Association."
But to two aspiring bachelors like the Professor and myself, the most striking feature was the lovely young ladies present. It occurred to us, that one might close his eyes and choose from these and not be cheated in the least. But alas! We didn't have the privilege of a choice even without eyes wide open as they were looking for such an opportunity.

An Interesting Debate.

On Friday night Nov. 1st, the Literary Society of Benson Academy gave a public debate. It was largely attended, and was pronounced, by all who heard it, a success. The programme stood as follows:
Reciter, Miss Etta Johnson.
Declarers, H. E. Boykin and W. F. Grimes.
Query for discussion: "Should those who can't read and write be allowed to vote?"
Aff. { Ernest Wood.
 { J. L. Woodall.
Neg. { Walter Massengill.
 { R. H. Barbour.

The reciter came forward and acquitted herself with perfect ease. The declaiming was especially fine.
The debate was very instructive and showed a deep study on the part of the young men. The affirmative won the question.
After the debate the audience was entertained by an address from Prof. H. L. Godwin of Lucknow Institute. His subject was, "Opportunities of the Academic Student." For one-half an hour he held the attention of the audience in breathless silence. His grace, ease and smooth voice accompanied by eloquence, richness of thought and fine language won the applause of all.
The school is doing fine work and the prospects for a greater patronage are brightening.
"VISITOR."

Oyster Supper.

The ladies of the Methodist church of this place will have an oyster supper on Friday night Nov. 15th, at Hotel Divine for the benefit of the church at this place. All are invited to join them and give them a liberal patronage.

Lucknow Institute.

The Principal of this school informs us that the first quarter of the present session closed this week with an enrollment of 102 pupils. It is very gratifying to us, that an enterprise of such vital importance to our town should, two months from its inception exhibit such visible signs of life and give such encouraging promise of permanent success.
We could but anticipate this success however, when the Trustees entrusted the management of the Institute to Prof. J. C. Clifford who came to us so highly recommended as a first-class teacher. To us, the Principal seems to have made no effort towards stirring up a great boom in behalf of his school, but judging from the steady increase in its patronage, each day seems to add to its popularity, and it is by degrees extending its influence to the surrounding counties and drawing from them some excellent students.
It would be hard however for any principal to fail while he has the assistants which Prof. Clifford has. Prof. H. L. Godwin, who spent last year in Trinity College, has charge of the primary department and is succeeding finely in teaching the young idea how to pull the trigger; while Miss Fannie Cox is maintaining a high standard in the music department.
The Literary Society for the young men—to which the boys have had the goodness to admit us—is an excellent feature of the school. Few estimate the value of a good literary society in the cultivation of correct expression, and habits of sound reasoning.
Our town is to be congratulated on the possession of such a school. The new building is the most elegant public building in our town, the instruction is thorough, the charges are moderate and we bespeak for it the continued support of our citizens.
