The method is thus described This method consists essentially in first recording the date relating to each person by punching holes in the theets or strips of electrically non-conducting material (paper), and then countlog or tailing these data, either separately or in combination, by means of mechanical counters operated by electro magnets, the circuits through which are controled by the perforated cards or strips. The method is already successfully in use at the Surgeon-General's office for the handling of medical returns from the army posts.
