AVOID ALL "NEAR ACCIDENTS"

Perils Which Cause "Near Accidents" Should Be Abolished With Proper Care to Prevent Recurrence.

A "near accident" may be defined as a happening, the nature of which is dangerous to persons, but which did not result in injury owing to the fortunate absence of a man from a particular spot, or to his quickness, or to the merest other chance, but the recurrence of which is always a peril—a peril which should be abolished by proper care.

A familiar illustration of a near accident is the case of a person caught between two trains traveling in opposite directions on different tracks, but who escaped death or injury by lying down between the tracks. There are many other such instances of escaped injury, inside as well as outside the industrial shops. Tools and materials slipping from scaffolds and roofs, but striking no one. Ladders falling or slipping with men who land unhurt, vehicles skidding and just missing pedestrians or other vehicles—all these are common occurrences.

These are but few of the many instances that will suggest themselves to the average reader, but in every instance of this kind there is a lesson from which every one should profit. "Near accidents" are a fruitful source of suggestion for precautions to be observed, and for rules to be formulated for the avoidance of dangerous practices.

Regrettable as it may be, however, the fact remains that too little attention is paid to "near accidents." It seems to require actual accidents to startle us sufficiently. This should not be so. There is just as much instruction to be had from "near accidents" as from actual accidents. "Safety First" work is a study and prevention of accident causes, and it should not require the theft of a horse to make you realize the importance of locking the barn.

Good safety work is seeing that there is a lock on the barn door before the attempt is made to steal the horse.

Complete Insurance Records in over 17,000 fires in buildings equipped with sprinklers indicate that over 75% were extinguished or controlled with 5 sprinklers or less. Over 90% were extinguished or controlled with 20 sprinklers or less.—Indiana Insurance Bulletin.

Every minute of each day sees $900 in value rising in smoke, and each year shows a record of four fires to each thousand of our population.—Indiana Insurance Bulletin.

AIDING HOOVER BY CONSERVING FOODS FROM LOSS BY FIRE

GREATEST CO-OPERATION IS PROMISED BY WAREHOUSES, GOTTON GINS, GRAIN ELEVATORS, ETC.

The National Board of Fire Underwriters has recently received its first report covering the first three months of the association's campaign toward the prevention of fire which is a part of the conservation campaign in aid of the war under the general direction of Herbert C. Hoover, President Wilson's food supply director. The report cites the fact that President E. M. Russell, of Hertford, Conn., President of the National Board to start the work wrote letters to the governors of the cotton producing and grain growing states urging their co-operation with the National Board and its affiliated organizations for the safeguarding of warehouses, cotton gins, compresses and grain elevators, all manner of mill storage properties and such works. The strongest co-operation has been received, the report says, from all these sources.

The advisory committee of insurance officials were appointed in different sections of the country to work with state officials on inspections and safeguards. Meetings have been held in almost every state and property owners as well as state officials and insurance men attended. Great interest and hard work have resulted and the special agents of companies in every field have been mobilized for conservation work. The inspection on this work have been given special authority in the form of a letter or identification card carrying the photograph and signature of the bearer with the proper authorization attached. Inspections have been educational and owners have been very quick to follow suggestions for improvements.

The National Board Committee has been in close contact with the officials of the conservation board under the administration of Mr. Hoover, and has prepared a thorough list of elevators with their grading and specifications for fire danger. In addition to the conservation service the National Board has furnished valuable information to the Council of National Defense in classified lists of factories capable of manufacturing munitions and other war materials.
