ASHEVILLE DAILY CITIZEN.

By RANDOLPH-KERR PRINTING CO.

THE DAILY CITIZEN, Democratic, is published every afternoon (except Sunday) at the following rates—strictly cash:

WEDNESDAY, JULY 15, 1891.

A correspondent of THE CITIZEN YES terday, in commending the police force of Asheville said: "Not a word of encouragement has yet been given them." The correspondent is mistaken. It he will take the trouble to turn to his file of THE CITIZEN and read "The Tattler's" column on July 4, he will see that his statement was an error.

Blaine.

Blaine is at death's door. Blaine was never before so well at his present time of life. He has Bright's disease of the head and is getting brighter all the time. There is a death pallor on his face; there are deep, black circles under his eyes; he is very thin and haggard; the bones seem ready to protrude through the skin; the lips are as blue as indigo; the eyes are glassy and dull. He seems to be always shivering, as if chilled. He is not able to stand alone; in fact, it is doubtful if he could sit on a chair without assistance. His mind is shattered. His memory was never before so good. He will not live more than a few months. He now seems strong enough to go through another presidential campaign.

Such is the news from Bar Harbor. It is impossible, more shame to the press, to know what is the truth in the matter of Mr. Blaine's bealth.

The Bougherty Interview.

Capt. T. W. Patton thinks our local editor "exceeded the bounds of so far as it relates to the postmasterpropriety in publishing his interview with the prisoner Dougherty;" and he asks "why was THP CITIZEN alone, of all the crowd permitted to enter the jail?"

Capt. Patton has not correctly informed himself. THE CITIZEN reporter against that of the postmaster general was not only the one permitted to see Dougherty, and we presume Capt. Pat- of times already of slippery truth-hiding ton's privilege in this matter would not and other acts inconsistent with his have been exceeded by ours had he expressed a desire to see Dougherty.

As to the proprieties of the case Dougherty was told that he could talk From the Chicago Tribune for publication if he wished; nothing was "drawn from him" in the sense that these words intimate; that is, that THE CITIzes took Dougherty at an unguarded moment and got him to talking against his best judgment.

It should not be forgotten, also, that From the New York Sun in the eye of the law at least Dougherty | Clerk-You say you have five window is an innocent man. Can it be contempt of court or an abuse of the proprieties to give an accused man an opportunity to be heard in his own detense? Ou the contrary, an opportunity to talk under such circumstances has ever been held as a privilege, one the press can hardly deny anyone however great the crime he is um in North Carolina. charged with. There may be doubts as to whether Dougherty helped himself by than any other secular paper in the state. Is always filled with the choicest readspeaking; but as to his right to be heard and as to the right of a newspaper to give him a hearing it seems to THE CITIZEN there can be no doubt whatever.

News, and all the news, makes THE zen there can be no doubt whatever.

It would be interesting to have Judge Carter's opinion on this point.

What is an Avenue?

There is an ambition to magnify little the advertiser an hundred fold. things by giving them big names, as if the frog by inflating himself with wind could make himself intrinsically beavier and greater. He was an empty bubble after all, and a stout kick would collapse one in a hundred; they break him in an instant into normal insignificance. How much greater, wider or more shady do the throughfares of Asheville become by being dubbed avenue?

Is Bridge street to be made more attractive, more passable in muddy seasons, more shady under the summer sun, more easy of transit because local vanity insists upon styling it Central avenue?

The word avenue is suggestive of breadth, convenience, grandeur. It is wove the light of a lamp. presumed to open up long vistas of shade, lines of trees and succession of magnificent bomes. Avenues tell of elegance, of refinement, of culture, of stability. Washington City with its Pennsylvania avenue, and others of similar width and extent furnishes the ideal avenue. How minished sales and less profit abourd the feeble attempt, without the possession of the first principle for the change, to metamorphose unpretentious Bridge street into Central avenue!

The stranger will regard it as the keenest irony. The sensible citizen will view the change with mortification. For, in relation to the true idea of the avenue, Bridge street, like most of the streets of Asheville, is, as compared with Pennsylvania avenue a lane after all. No pretentious name will make it wider or give it greater dignity. At the present moment the cutting of a sewer one princely remedy above all others' Made expressly for woman, it is adapted connection ten feet from the side walk to to her special needs, and fulfills every rethe main in the centre of the street has quirement. reduced the travel way to a contraction only sufficing for the passage of one vehicle at a time. And this is Central avenue! The whole idea is too absurd to ter of the situation. Positively guaranhave merited the attention it has re-teed to give satisfaction in all cases, or money paid for it returned. The only ceived. Let Bridge street resume its former modest title, and not add to the ridicule to be brought upon the city by aspiration after big names misapplied. Asheville is too great in itself to be misled by the mania of imitation.

The liver, more than any other organ, is the index of the body. With a morbid liver the whole system is out of gear!
